An admirable statement of the aims of the Library of Philosophy was provided by the first editor, the late Professor J. H. Muirhead, in his description of the original programme printed in Erdmann's History of Philosophy under the date 1890. This was slightly modified in subsequent volumes to take the form of the following statement

'The Muirhead Library of Philosophy was designed as a contribution to the History of Modern Philosophy under the heads' first of Different Schools of Thought—Sensationalist, Realist, Idealist, Intuitivist; secondly of different Subjects—Psychology, Ethics, Political Philosophy, Theology While much had been done in England in tracing the course of evolution in nature, history, economics, morals and religion, little had been done in tracing the development of thought on these subjects. Yet "the evolution of opinion is part of the whole evolution".

'By the co-operation of different writers in carrying out this plan it was hoped that a thoroughness and completeness of treatment, otherwise unattainable, might be secured. It was believed also that from writers mainly British and American fuller consideration of English Philosophy than it had hitherto received might be looked for. In the earlier series of books containing, among others, Bosanquet's History of Aesthetic, Pfleiderer's Rational Theology since Kant, Albee's History of English Utilitarianism, Bonar's Philosophy and Political Economy, Brett's History of Psychology, Ritchie's Natural Rights, these objects were to a large extent effected.

In the meantime original work of a high order was being produced both in England and America by such writers as Bradley, Stout, Bertrand Russell, Baldwin, Urban, Montague, and others, and a new interest in foreign works, German, French and Italian, which had either become classical or were attracting public attention, had developed. The scope of the Library thus became extended into something more international, and it is entering on the fifth decade of its existence in the hope that it may contribute to that mutual understanding between countries which is so pressing a need of the present

The need which Professor Muirhead stressed is no less pressing today, and few will deny that philosophy has much to do with enabling us to meet it, although no one, least of all

Muirhead himself, would regard that as the sole, or even the main, object of philosophy As Professor Muirhead continues to lend the distinction of his name to the Library of Philosophy it seemed not inappropriate to allow him to recall us to these aims in his own words. The emphasis on the history of thought also seemed to me very timely, and the number of important works promised for the Library in the very near future augur well for the continued fulfilment, in this and other ways, of the expectations of the original editor.

PREFACE

HUMAN nature is not altogether unchanging but it does remain sufficiently constant to justify the study of ancient classics The problems of human life and destiny have not been superseded by the striking achievements of science and technology. The solutions offered, though conditioned in their modes of expression by their time and environment, have not been seriously affected by the march of scientific knowledge and criticism The responsibility laid on man as a rational being, to integrate himself, to relate the present to the past and the future, to live in time as well as in eternity, has become acute and urgent. The Upanisads, though remote in time from us. are not remote in thought. They disclose the working of the primal impulses of the human soul which rise above the differences of race and of geographical position. At the core of all historical religions there are fundamental types of spiritual experience though they are expressed with different degrees of clarity. The Upanisads illustrate and illuminate these primary experiences.

These are really the thoughts of all men in all ages and lands, they are not original with me. If they are not yours as much as mine, they are nothing or next to nothing,' said Walt Whitman The Upanisads deal with questions which arise when men begin to reflect seriously and attempt answers to them which are not very different, except in their approach and emphasis from what we are now inclined to accept. This does not mean that the message of the Upanisads, which is as true today as ever, commits us to the different hypotheses about the structure of the world and the physiology of man. We must make a distinction between the message of the Upanisads and their mythology The latter is liable to correction by advances in science Even this mythology becomes intelligible if we place ourselves as far as possible at the viewpoint of those who conceived it Those parts of the Upanisads which seem to us today to be trivial, tedious and almost unmeaning, should have had value and significance at the time they were composed

Anyone who reads the Upanisads in the original Sanskrit will be caught up and carried away by the elevation, the poetry, the compelling fascination of the many utterances through which they lay bare the secret and sacred relations of the human soul and the Ultimate Reality When we read them, we cannot help being impressed by the exceptional ability, earnestness and ripeness of mind of those who wrestled with these ultimate questions. These souls who tackled these problems remain still and will remain for all time in essential harmony with the highest ideals of civilisation.

The Upanisads are the foundations on which the beliefs of millions of human beings, who were not much inferior to ourselves, are based. Nothing is more sacred to man than his own history. At least as memorials of the past, the Upanisads are worth our attention

A proper knowledge of the texts is an indispensable aid to the understanding of the Upanisads. There are parts of the Upanisads which repel us by their repetitiveness and irrelevance to our needs, philosophical and religious. But if we are to understand their ideas, we must know the atmosphere in which they worked. We must not judge ancient writings from our standards. We need not condemn our fathers for having been what they were or ourselves for being somewhat different from them. It is our task to relate them to their environment, to bridge distances of time and space and separate the transitory from the permanent.

There is a danger in giving only carefully chosen extracts We are likely to give what is easy to read and omit what is difficult, or give what is agreeable to our views and omit what is disagreeable. It is wise to study the Upanisads as a whole, their striking insights as well as their commonplace assumptions Only such a study will be historically valuable. I have therefore given in full the classical Upanisads, those commented on or mentioned by Samkara The other Upanisads are of a later date and are sectarian in character. They represent the popular gods, Siva, Visnu, Sakti, as manifestations of the Supreme Reality. They are not parts of the original Veda, are of much later origin and are not therefore as authoritative as the classical Upanisads If they are all to be included, it would be difficult to find a Publisher for so immense a work I have therefore selected a few other Upanisads, some of those to which references are made by the great teachers, Samkara and Rāmānuia

In the matter of translation and interpretation, I owe a heavy debt, directly and indirectly, not only to the classical commentators but also to the modern writers who have worked on the subject. I have profited by their tircless labours The careful reader will find, I hope, that a small advance in a few places at least has been made in this translation towards a better understanding of the texts.

Passages in verse are not translated into rhyme as the padding and inversion necessary for observing a metrical pattern take away a great deal from the dignity and conciseness of the original.

It is not easy to render Sanskrit religious and philosophical classics into English for each language has its own characteristic genius. Language conveys thought as well as feeling. It falls short of its full power and purpose, if it fails to communicate the emotion as fully as it conveys the idea. Words convey ideas but they do not always express moods In the Upanişads we find harmonies of speech which excite the emotions and stir the soul I am afraid that it has not been possible for me to produce in the English translation the richness of melody, the warmth of spirit, the power of enchantment that appeals to the ear, heart and mind I have tried to be faithful to the originals, sometimes even at the cost of elegance. I have given the texts with all their nobility of sound and the feeling of the numinous

For the classical Upanisads the text followed is that commented on by Sankara A multitude of variant readings of the texts exist, some of them to be found in the famous commentaries, others in more out of the way versions. The chief variant readings are mentioned in the notes As my interest is philosophical rather than linguistic, I have not discussed them. In the translation, words which are omitted or understood in Sanskrit or are essential to complete the grammatical structure

are inserted in brackets

We cannot bring to the study of the Upanişads virgin minds which are untouched by the views of the many generations of scholars who have gone before us. Their influence may work either directly or indirectly. To be aware of this limitation, to estimate it correctly is of great importance in the study of ancient texts. The classical commentators represent in their works the great oral traditions of interpretation which have been current in their time. Centuries of careful thought lie behind the exegetical traditions as they finally took shape. It would be futile to neglect the work of the commentators as there are words and passages in the Upanişads of which we could make little sense without the help of the commentators

We do not have in the Upanisads a single well-articulated system of thought We find in them a number of different strands which could be woven together in a single whole by sympathetic interpretation Such an account involves the expression of opinions which can always be questioned Impartiality does not consist in a refusal to form opinions or in a futile attempt to conceal them. It consists in rethinking the thoughts of the past, in understanding their environment, and in relating them to the intellectual and spiritual needs of our own time While we should avoid the attempt to read into the terms of the past the meanings of the present, we cannot overlook the fact that certain problems are the same in all ages We must keep in mind the Buddhist saying 'Whatever is not adapted to such and such persons as are to be taught cannot be called a teaching 'We must remain sensitive to the prevailing currents of thought and be prepared, as far as we are able, to translate the universal truth into terms intelligible to our audience, without distorting their meaning. It would scarcely be possible to exaggerate the difficulty of such a task, but it has to be undertaken If we are able to make the seeming abstractions of the Upanisads flame anew with their ancient colour and depth, if we can make them pulsate with their old meaning, they will not appear to be altogether irrelevant to our needs, intellectual and spiritual. The notes are framed in this spirit

The Upanisads which base their affirmations on spiritual experience are invaluable for us, as the traditional props of faith, the infallible scripture, miracle and prophecy are no longer available. The irreligion of our times is largely the product of the supremacy of religious technique over spiritual life. The study of the Upanisads may help to restore to fundamental things of religion that reality without which they seem to be meaningless.

Besides, at a time when moral aggression is compelling people to capitulate to queer ways of life, when vast experiments in social structure and political organisation are being made at enormous cost of life and suffering, when we stand perpleved and confused before the future with no clear light to guide our way, the power of the human soul is the only refuge If we resolve to be governed by it, our civilisation may enter upon its most glorious epoch. There are many 'dissatisfied children of the spirit of the west,' to use Romain Rolland's phrase, who are oppressed that the universality of her great thoughts has been defamed for ends of violent action. that they are trapped in a blind alley and are savagely crushing each other out of existence When an old binding culture is being broken, when ethical standards are dissolving, when we are being aroused out of apathy or awakened out of unconsciousness, when there is in the air general ferment, inward stirring, cultural crisis, then a high tide of spiritual agitation sweeps over peoples and we sense in the horizon something novel, something unprecedented, the beginnings of a spiritual renaissance We are living in a world of freer cultural intercourse and wider world sympathies. No one can ignore his neighbour who is also groping in this world of sense for the world unseen. The task set to our generation is to reconcile the varying ideals of the converging cultural patterns and help them to sustain and support rather than combat and destroy one another. By this process they are transformed from within and the forms that separate them will lose their exclusivist meaning and signify only that unity with their own origins and inspirations

The study of the sacred books of religions other than one's own is essential for speeding up this process. Students of Christian religion and theology, especially those who wish to make Indian Christian thought not merely 'geographically' but 'organically' Indian, should understand their great heritage which is contained in the Upanisads

For us Indians, a study of the Upanisads is essential, if we are to preserve our national being and character. To discover the main lines of our traditional life, we must turn to our classics, the Vedas and the Upanisads, the Bhagavad-gītā and the Dhamma-pada They have done more to colour our minds than we generally acknowledge They not only thought many of our thoughts but coined hundreds of the words that we use in daily life. There is much in our past that is degrading and deficient but there is also much that is life-giving and elevating. If the past is to serve as an inspiration for the future, we have to study it with discrimination and sympathy. Again, the highest achievements of the human mind and spirit are not limited to the past The gates of the future are wide open. While the fundamental motives, the governing ideas which constitute the essential spirit of our culture are a part of our very being, they should receive changing expression according to the needs and conditions of our time

There is no more inspiring task for the student of Indian thought than to set forth some phases of its spiritual wisdom and bring them to bear on our own life. Let us, in the words of Socrates, 'turn over together the treasures that wise men have left us, glad if in so doing we make friends with one another'

The two essays written for the Philosophy of the Upamsads (1924), which is a reprint of chapter IV from my Indian Philosophy, Volume I, by Rabindranath Tagore and Edmond Holmes, are to be found in the Appendices A and B respectively

I am greatly indebted to my distinguished and generous friends Professors Suniti Kumar Chatterji, and Siddhesvar Bhattacharya for their great kindness in reading the proofs and making many valuable suggestions

INTRODUCTION

GENERAL INFLUENCE

THE Upanisads represent a great chapter in the history of the human spirit and have dominated Indian philosophy, religion and life for three thousand years. Every subsequent religious movement has had to show itself to be in accord with their philosophical statements Even doubting and denying spirits found in them anticipations of their hesitancies, misgivings and negations. They have survived many changes, religious and secular, and helped many generations of men to formulate their views on the chief problems of life and existence.

Their thought by itself and through Buddhism influenced even in ancient times the cultural life of other nations far beyond the boundaries of India, Greater India, Tibet, China, Japan and Korea and in the South, in Ceylon, the Malay Peninsula and far away in the islands of the Indian and the Pacific Oceans In the West, the tracks of Indian thought may be traced far into Central Asia, where, buried in the sands of the desert, were found Indian texts ¹ of the desert, were found indian texts.

The Upanisads have shown an unparalleled variety of appeal during these long centuries and have been admired by different people, for different reasons, at different periods They are said

^{&#}x27;For the historian, who pursues the history of human thought, the Upanisads have a yet far greater significance. From the mystical doctrines of the Upanisads, one current of thought may be traced to the mysticism of the Persian Sufism, to the mystic, theosophical logos doctrine of the Neo-Platonics and the Alexandrian Christian mystics, Eckhart and Tauler, and finally to the philosophy of the great German mystic of the nineteenth century, Schopenhauer' Winternitz: A History of Indian Literature E T Vol I (1927), p 266 See Eastern Religions and Western Thought Second Edition (1940), Chapters IV, V, VI, VII It is said that Schopenhauer had the Latin text of the Upanisads on his table and 'was in the habit, before going to bed, of performing his devotions from its pages' Bloomfield Religion of the Veda (1908), p. 55. 'From every sentence [of the Upanisads], deep original and sublime thoughts arise, and the whole is pervaded by a high and holy and earnest spirit In the whole world. there is no study so beneficial and so elevating as that of the Upanisads They are products of the highest wisdom They are destined sooner or later to become the faith of the people' Schopenhauer.

to provide us with a complete chart of the unseen Reality, to give us the most immediate, intimate and convincing light on the secret of human existence, to formulate, in Deussen's words, 'philosophical conceptions unequalled in India or perhaps anywhere else in the world, or to tackle every fundamental problem of philosophy All this may be so or may not be so But of one thing there is no dispute, that those earnest spirits have known the fevers and ardours of religious seeking, they have expressed that pensive mood of the thinking mind which finds no repose except in the Absolute, no rest except in the Divine. The ideal which haunted the thinkers of the Upanisads, the ideal of man's ultimate beatitude, the perfection of knowledge, the vision of the Real in which the religious hunger of the mystic for divine vision and the philosopher's ceaseless quest for truth are both satisfied is still our ideal A N. Whitehead speaks to us of the real which stands behind and beyond and within the passing flux of this world, 'something which is real and yet waiting to be realised, something which is a remote possibility and yet the greatest of present facts, something that gives meaning to all that passes, and yet eludes apprehension, something whose possession is the final good, and yet is beyond all reach, something which is the ultimate ideal and the hopeless quest '2 A metaphysical curiosity for a theoretical explanation of the world as much as a passionate longing for liberation is to be found in the Upanisads Their ideas do not only enlighten our minds but stretch our souls

If the ideas of the Upanisads help us to rise above the glamour of the fleshly life, it is because their authors, pure of soul, ever striving towards the divine, reveal to us their pictures of the splendours of the unseen. The Upanisads are respected not because they are a part of śruti or revealed literature and so hold a reserved position but because they have inspired generations of Indians with vision and strength by their inexhaustible significance and spiritual power. Indian thought has constantly turned to these scriptures for fresh illumination and spiritual recovery or recommencement, and not in vain. The fire still burns bright on their altars. Their light is for the seeing eye and their message is for the seeker after truth ¹

THE TERM 'UPANIŞAD'

The word 'upanisad' is dervied from upa (near), ni (down) and sad (to sit), i.e. sitting down near. Groups of pupils sit near the teacher to learn from him the secret doctrine. In the quietude of forest hermitages the Upanisad thinkers pondered on the problems of the deepest concern and communicated their knowledge to fit pupils near them. The seers adopt a certain reticence in communicating the truth. They wish to be satisfied that their pupils are spiritually and not carnally minded. To respond to spiritual teaching, we require the spiritual disposition.

The Upanisads contain accounts of the mystic significance of the syllable aum, explanations of mystic words like tajjalān, which are intelligible only to the initiated, and secret texts and esoteric doctrines. Upanisad became a name for a mystery, a secret, rahasyam, communicated only to the tested few 3 When

In an article on Christian Vedāntism, Mr R Gordon Milburn writes, 'Christianity in India needs the Vedānta We missionaries have not realised this with half the clearness that we should We cannot move freely and joyfully in our own religion; because we have not sufficient terms and modes of expression wherewith to express the more immanental aspects of Christianity A very useful step would be the recognition of certain books or passages in the literature of the Vedānta as constituting what might be called an Ethnic Old Testament. The permission of ecclesiastical authorities could then be asked for reading passages found in such a canon of Ethnic Old Testament at divine service along with passages from the New Testament as alternatives to the Old Testament lessons' Indian Interpreter 1913

² Cp Plato 'To find the Father and Maker of this universe is a hard task, and when you have found him, it is impossible to speak of him before all people' Timaeus

the question of man's final destiny was raised, Yājñavalkya took his pupil aside and whispered to him the truth. According to the Chāndogya Upanisad, the doctrine of Brahman may be imparted by a father to his elder son or to a trusted pupil, but not to another, whoever he may be, even if the latter should give him the whole earth surrounded by the waters and filled with treasures In many cases it is said that the teacher communicates the secret knowledge only after repeated entreaty and severe testing

Samkara derives the word upanisad as a substantive from the root sad, 'to loosen,' 'to reach' or 'to destroy' with upa and m as prefixes and kvip as termination? If this derivation is accepted, upanisad means brahma-knowledge by which ignorance is loosened or destroyed. The treatises that deal with brahma-knowledge are called the Upanisads and so pass for the Vedānta. The different derivations together make out that the Upanisads give us both spiritual vision and philosophical argument. There is a core of certainty which is essentially incommunicable except by a way of life. It is by a strictly personal effort that one can reach the truth the Indian tradition puts it at one hundred and eight. Prince Muhammad Dara Shikoh's collection translated into Persian (1656-1657) and then into Latin by Anguetil Duperron (1801 and 1802) under the title Oupnekhat, contained about fifty. Colebrooke's collection contained fifty-two, and this was based on Nārāyana's list (c. A D. 1400). The principal Upanisads are said to be ten. Samkara commented on eleven, Isa, Kena, Katha, Praśna, Mundaka, Māndūkya, Taittirīya, Aitarcya, Chāndogya, Brhad-āranyaka and Svetāsvatara He also refers to the Kausītakī, Jābāla, Mahānārāyana and Paingala Upanisads in his commentary on the Brahma Sūtra These together with the Mastrāyanīya or Mastrī Upanisad constitute the principal Upanisads. Rāmānuja uses all these Upanisads as also the Subāla and the Cūlika. He mentions also the Garbha, the Tābāla and the Mahā Upanisads Vidyāraņya includes Nṛṣṣmhottara-tāpanī Upanisad among the twelve he explained in his Sarvopanisad-arthanubhūti-prakāša. The other Upanisads which have come down are more religious than philosophical. They belong more to the Purana and the Tantra than to the Veda. They glorify Vedanta or Yoga or Samnyasa or extol the worship of Siva, Sakti or Visnu.2

There is, however, considerable argument about the older and more original Upanisads Max Muller translated the eleven Upanisads quoted by Samkara together with Mastrayaniya Deussen, though he translated no less than sixty, considers that fourteen of them are original and have a connection with Vedic schools Hume translated the twelve which Max Muller selected and added to them the Mandakya. Ketth in his Religion and Philosophy of the Veda and the Upanisads includes the Mahānārāyana His list of fourteen is the same as that of Deussen.

Modern criticism is generally agreed that the ancient prose Upaniṣads, Aitareya, Kausītakī, Chāndogya, Kena, Taitirīya and Brhad-āranyaka, together with Īśa and Katha belong to the eighth and seventh centuries B c They are all pre-Buddhistic. They represent the Vedānta in its pure original form and are the earliest philosophical compositions of the world. These Upanisads belong to what Karl Jaspers calls the Axial Era of the world, 800 to 300 B c, when man for the first time simultaneously and independently in Greece, China and India questioned the traditional pattern of life

As almost all the early literature of India was anonymous, we do not know the names of the authors of the Upanişads. Some of the chief doctrines of the Upanisads are associated with the names of renowned sages as Āruni, Yājāavalkya, Bālāki, Švetaketu, Sāndilya They were, perhaps, the early exponents of the doctrines attributed to them The teachings were developed in parisads or spiritual retreats where teachers and pupils discussed and defined the different views

As a part of the Veda, the Upanisads belong to srute or revealed literature They are immemorial, sanātana, timeless Their truths are said to be breathed out by God or visioned by the seers They are the utterances of the sages who speak out of the fullness of their illumined experience. They are not reached by ordinary perception, inference or reflection, but seen by the seers, even as we see and not infer the wealth and not of colour in the summer sky The seers have the same sense of assurance and possession of their spiritual vision as we have of our physical perception The sages are men of 'direct' vision. in the words of Yaska, saksat-krta-dharmanah, and the records of their experiences are the facts to be considered by any philosophy of religion The truths revealed to the seers are not mere reports of introspection which are purely subjective The inspired sages proclaim that the knowledge they communicate is not what they discover for themselves. It is revealed to them without their effort ¹ Though the knowledge is an experience of the seer, it is an experience of an independent reality which impinges on his consciousness. There is the impact of the real on the spirit of the experiencer. It is therefore said to be a direct disclosure from the 'wholly other,' a revelation of the Divine Symbolically, the Upanisads describe revelation as the breath of God blowing on us 'Of that great being, this is the breath, which is the Rg Veda.' The divine energy is compared to the breath which quickens It is a seed which fertilises or a flame which kindles the human spirit to its finest issues. It is interesting to know that the Brhad-āranyaka Upanisad tells us that not only the Vedas but history, sciences and other studies are also 'breathed forth by the great God.'3

The Vedas were composed by the seers when they were in a state of inspiration. He who inspires them is God. Truth is impersonal, apauruseya and eternal, nilya. Inspiration is a joint activity, of which man's contemplation and God's revelation are two sides The Svetāśvatara Upaniṣad says that the sage Svetāśvatara saw the truth owing to his power of contemplation, tapaḥ-prabhāva, and the grace of God, deva-prasāda. The dual significance of revelation, its subjective and objective character, is suggested here.

The Upanisads are vehicles more of spiritual illumination than of systematic reflection. They reveal to us a world of rich and varied spiritual experience rather than a world of abstract

by God, while the Mimāmsakas hold that the Vedas were composed by God, while the Mimāmsakas hold that they were not composed at all either by man or by God, but have existed from all eternity in the form of sounds. It is perhaps a way of saying that the timeless truths of eternity exist from everlasting to everlasting Aristotle regards the fundamental truths of religion as eternal and indestructible, philosophical categories. Their truths are verified not only by logical reason but by personal experience. Their aim is practical rather than speculative. Knowledge is a means to freedom. Philosophy, biahma-vidyā, is the pursuit of wisdom by a way of life.

THE UPANIŞADS AS THE VEDĀNTA

The Vedanta meant originally the Upanisads, though the word is now used for the system of philosophy based on the Upanisads Literally, Vedānia means the end of the Veda. vedasya antah, the conclusion as well as the goal of the Vedas The Upanisads are the concluding portions of the Vedas Chronologically they come at the end of the Vedic period As the Upanisads contain abstruse and difficult discussions of ultimate philosophical problems, they were taught to the pupils at about the end of their course. When we have Vedic recitations as religious exercises, the end of these recitals is generally from the Upanişads The chief reason why the Upanişads are called the end of the Veda is that they represent the central aim and meaning of the teaching of the Veda The content of the Upanisads is vedānta vijāānam, the wisdom of the Vedānta? The Samhitas and the Brahmanas, which are the hymns and the liturgical books, represent the karma-kānda or the ritual portion, while the Upanisads represent the jāāna-kānda or the knowledge portion The learning of the hymns and the performance of the rites are a preparation for true enlightenment 3

The Upanisads describe to us the life of spirit, the same yesterday, to-day and for ever. But our apprehensions of the life of spirit, the symbols by which we express it, change with time. All systems of orthodox Indian thought accept the authoritativeness of the Vedas, but give themselves freedom in their interpretation. This variety of interpretation is made possible by the fact that the Upanisads are not the thoughts of a single philosopher or a school of philosophers who follow a single tradition. They are the teachings of thinkers who were interested in different aspects of the philosophical problem, and therefore offer solutions of problems which vary in their interest and emphasis There is thus a certain amount of fluidity in their thought which has been utilised for the development of different philosophical systems. Out of the wealth of suggestions and speculations contained in them, different thinkers choose elements for the construction of their own systems, not infrequently even through a straining of the texts. Though the Upanisads do not work out a logically coherent system of metaphysics, they give us a few fundamental doctrines which stand out as the essential teaching of the early Upanisads. These are recapitulated in the Brahma Sülra.

The Brahma Sūtra is an aphoristic summary of the teaching of the Upaniṣads, and the great teachers of the Vedānta develop their distinctive views through their commentaries on this work. By interpreting the sūtras which are laconic in form and hardly intelligible without interpretation, the teachers justify their views to the reasoning intelligence.

Different commentators attempt to find in the Upanisads and the Brahma Sūtra a single coherent doctrine, a system of thought which is free from contradictions. Bhartrprapanca, who is anterior to Samkara, maintains that the selves and the physical universe are real, though not altogether different from Brahman. They are both identical with and different from Brahman, the three together constituting a unity in diversity. Ultimate Reality evolves into the universal creation systi and the universe retreats into it at the time of dissolution, pralaya.

The advaita of Samkara insists on the transcendent nature

of non-dual Brahman and the duality of the world including Iśvara who presides over it Reality is Brahman or Ātman No predication is possible of Brahman as predication involves duality and Brahman is free from all duality. The world of duality is empirical or phenomenal. The saving truth which redeems the individual from the stream of births and deaths is the recognition of his own identity with the Supreme 'That thou art' is the fundamental fact of all existence ¹ The multiplicity of the universe, the unending stream of life, is real, but only as a phenomenon

Rāmānuja qualifies the non-dual philosophy so as to make the personal God supreme While Brahman, souls and the world are all different and eternal, they are at the same time inseparable 2 Inseparability is not identity Brahman is related to the two others as soul to body They are sustained by Him and subject to His control Ramanuja says that while God exists for Himself, matter and souls exist for His sake and subserve His purposes. The three together form an organic whole Brahman is the inspiring principle of the souls and the world The souls are different from, but not independent of, God They are said to be one only in the sense that they all belong to the same class. The ideal is the enjoyment of freedom and bliss in the world of Nārāvana, and the means to it is either prapatti or bhakir The individual souls, even when they are freed through the influence of their devotion and the grace of God, retain their separate individuality For him and Madhva, God, the author of all grace, saves those who give to Him the worship of love and faith

For Madhva there are five eternal distinctions between (1) God and the individual soul, (2) God and matter, (3) soul and matter, (4) one soul and another, (5) one particle of matter and another. The supreme being endowed with all auspicious qualities is called Visnu, and Laksmī is His power dependent on Him Mokṣa is release from rebirth and residence in the abode of Nārāyana Human souls are innumerable, and each of them is separate and eternal The divine souls are destined for salvation Those who are neither very good nor very bad are subject to samsara, and the bad go to hell. Right knowledge of God and devotion to Him are the means to salvation Without divine grace there can be no salvation I Baladeva adopts the view of acintya-bhcdābhcda Difference and non-difference are positive facts of experience and yet cannot be reconciled. It is an incomprehensible synthesis of opposites Rāmānuja, Bhāskara, Nimbārka and Baladeva believe that there is change in Brahman, but not of Brahman?

RELATION TO THE VEDAS RG VEDA

Even the most inspired writers are the products of their environment They give voice to the deepest thoughts of their own epoch A complete abandonment of the existing modes of thought is psychologically impossible. The writers of the Rg Veda speak of the ancient makers of the path 3 When there is an awakening of the mind, the old symbols are interpreted in a new way.

In pursuance of the characteristic genius of the Indian mind, not to shake the beliefs of the common men, but to lead them on by stages to the understanding of the deeper philosophical meaning behind their beliefs, the Upanisads develop the Vedic ideas and symbols and give to them, where necessary, new meanings which relieve them of their formalistic character Texts from the Vedas are often quoted in support of the teachings of the Upanisads

The thought of the Upanisads marks an advance on the ritualistic doctrines of the Brahmanas, which are themselves different in spirit from the hymns of the Rg Veda A good deal of time should have elapsed for this long development. The mass of the Rg Veda must also have taken time to produce, especially when we remember that what has survived is probably a small part compared to what has been lost.

Whatever may be the truth about the racial affinities of the Indian and the European peoples, there is no doubt that Indo-European languages derive from a common source and illustrate a relationship of mind In its vocabulary and inflexions Sanskrit² presents a striking similarity to Greek and Latin Sir William Jones explained it by tracing them all to a common source 'The Sanskrit language,' he said in 1786, in an address to the Asiatic Society of Bengal, 'whatever be its antiquity, is of a wonderful structure, more perfect than the Greek, more copious than the Latin, and more exquisitely refined than either, yet bearing to both of them a stronger affinity, both in the roots of verbs, and in the forms of grammar, than could possibly have been produced by accident, so strong, indeed, that no philologer could examine them all without believing them to have sprung from some common source which perhaps no longer exists There is a similar reason, though not quite so forcible, for supposing that both the Gothic and the Celtic, though blended with a different idiom, had the same origin with the Sanskrit, and the old Persian might be added to the same family'

The oldest Indo-European literary monument is the Rg Veda 3 The word 'Veda,' from vid, to know, means knowledge

'We have no right to suppose that we have even a hundredth part of the religious and popular poetry that existed during the Vedic age 'Max Muller Six Systems of Indian Philosophy (1899), p 41

² samskrta perfectly constructed speech

3 'The Veda has a two-fold interest it belongs to the history of the world and to the history of India. In the history of the world, the Veda fills a gap which no literary work in any other language could fill. It carries us back to times of which we have no records anywhere, and gives us the very words of a generation of men, of whom otherwise we could form but the vaguest estimate by means of conjectures and inferences. As long as man continues to take an interest in the history of his race and as long as we collect in libraries and museums the relics of former ages, the first place in that long row of books which contains the records of the Aryan branch of mankind will belong for ever to the Rg Veda' Max Muller Ancient History of Sanskrit Literature (1859), p. 63. The Rg Veda, according to Ragozin' is, without the shadow of a doubt, the oldest book of the Aryan family of nations' Vedic India (1895), p. 114.

Winternitz observes 'If we wish to learn to understand the beginnings of our own culture, if we wish to understand the oldest Indo-European par excellence, sacred wisdom Science is the knowledge of secondary causes, of the created details; wisdom is the knowledge of primary causes, of the Uncreated Principle The Veda is not a single literary work like the Bhagavad-gīlā or a collection of a number of books compiled at some particular time as the Tri-pitaka of the Buddhists or the Bible of the Christians, but a whole literature which arose in the course of centuries and was handed down from generation to generation through oral transmission. When no books were available memory was strong and tradition exact. To impress on the people the need for preserving this literature, the Veda was declared to be sacred knowledge or divine revelation. Its sanctity arose spontaneously owing to its age and the nature and value of its contents. It has since become the standard of thought and feeling for Indians

The name Veda signifying wisdom suggests a genuine spirit of inquiry. The road by which the Vedic sages travelled was the road of those who seek to inquire and understand. The questions they investigate are of a philosophical character. 'Who, verily, knows and who can here declare it, where it was born and whence comes this creation? The gods are later than this world's production Who knows, then, whence it first came into being?' According to Sāyaṇa, Veda is the book which describes the transcendent means for the fulfilment of well-being and the avoidance of evils 2 culture, we must go to India, where the oldest literature of an Indo-European people is preserved. For, whatever view we may adopt on the problem of the antiquity of Indian literature, we can safely say that the oldest monument of the literature of the Indians is at the same time the oldest monument of Indo-European literature which we possess. A History of Indian Literature, E. T. Vol. I (1927), p. 6 See also Bloomfield: The Religion of the Veda (1908), p. 17. He says that the Rg Veda is not only 'the most ancient literary monument of India' but also 'the most ancient literary document of the Indo-European peoples' 'This literature is earlier than that of either Greece or Israel, and reveals a high level of civilisation among those who found in it the expression of their worship,' according to Dr Nicol Macnicol See his Hindu Scriptures (1938), p. XIV

of songs of praise, the Yajur Veda, which deals with sacrificial formulas, the Sāma Veda which refers to melodies, and the Atharva Veda, which has a large number of magic formulas Each contains four sections consisting of (1) Samhītā or collection of hymns, prayers, benedictions, sacrificial formulas and litanies, (11) Brāhmanas or prose treatises discussing the significance of sacrificial rites and ceremonies, (111) Āranyakas or forest texts, which are partly included in the Brāhmanas and partly reckoned as independent, and (111) Upanisads

Veda denotes the whole literature made up of the two portions called Manira and Brāhmana ¹ Mantra is derived by Yāska from manana, thinking ² It is that by which the contemplation of God is attempted Brāhmana deals with the elaboration of worship into ritual Parts of Brāhmanas are called Āranyakas Those who continue their studies without marrying are called aranas or aranamānas They lived in hermitages or forests The forests where aranas (ascetics) live are aranyas Their speculations are contained in Āranyakas

Yāska refers to different interpretations of the Vedās by the ritualists (yājñikas), the etymologists (nairuktas) and mythologists (aitihāsikas) The Brhad-devatā which comes after Yāska's Nirukta also refers to various schools of thought in regard to Vedic interpretations. It mentions ātma-vādīns or those who relate the Vedas to the psychological processes

The Rg Veda, which comprises 1,017 hymns divided into ten books, represents the earliest phase in the evolution of religious consciousness where we have not so much the commandments of priests as the outpourings of poetic minds who were struck by the immensity of the universe and the inexhaustible mystery of life. The reactions of simple yet unsophisticated minds to the wonder of existence are portrayed in these joyous hymns which attribute divinity to the striking aspects of nature. We have worship of devas, 3 deities like Sūrya (sun),

Soma (moon), Agni (fire), Dyaus (sky), Prthivī (carth), Maruts (storm winds), Vāyu (wind), Ap (water), Uşas (dawn). Even deities whose names are no longer so transparent were originally related to natural phenomena such as Indra, Varuna, Mitra, Aditi, Visnu, Pūsan, the two Asvins, Rudra and Parjanya Qualities which emphasise particular important aspects of natural phenomena attained sometimes to the rank of independent deities 2 Savitr, the inspirer or the life-giver, Vivasvat, the shining, were at first attributes and names of the Sun but later became independent Sun-gods Some of the deities worshipped by the different tribes were admitted into the Vedic pantheon Püşan, originally the Sun-god of a small shepherd tribe, becomes the protector of travellers, the god who knows all the paths. Some deities have their basis in abstract qualities such as śraddhā, faith, manyu, anger.3 We also come across Rbhus, or elves, Apsaras or nymphs, Gandharvas or forest or field spirits.4 Asmas who become the enemies of the gods in the later Vedic works retain in the Rg Veda the old meaning of 'possessors of wonderful power' or 'God' which the corresponding word Ahura has in the Avesta 5

The ancient Greeks advanced the natural elements into gods by desiying their attributes Apollo shone in the sun Boreas howled in the mountain blasts Zeus threatened in the lightning and struck in the thunderbolt

3 These occur in the latest hymns of the tenth book of the Rg Veda. 4 The Vedic Indians were not phallus worshippers Sisna-devāli (R V. VII 21 5, X 99 3) does not mean phallus-worshippers Yaska says that it refers to non-cenbates 'sisna-devāh a-biahmacaryāh,' IV 9 Sayana adopts this view sisnena divyanti kridanti, iti sisna-devāh, a-brahmacaryā ity arthah Though it is a bahuvrīhi compound meaning those whose deity is phallus, the word 'deva' is to be taken in its secondary sense, laksyārtha It means those who are addicted to sex life. The plural number also suggests that it is not a deity that is meant Cp the later Sanskrit

siśnodara-parāyanāh 'Addicted to the gratification of sex and stomach' 5 The Persians call their country Iran, which is the arriva of the Avesta and signifies the land of the Aryans Even to-day after centuries of Islam, the influences of Aryan thought are not altogether effaced. The Muslims of Persia tend to emphasise passages of the Quran which are capable of a mystic interpretation Professor E G. Browne writes. When in the seventh century the warlike followers of the Arabian prophet swept across Iran, overwhelming in their tumultuous onslaught

Varuna, a god common both to the Indians and the Iranians, regulates the course of the sun and the sequence of the seasons. He keeps the world in order and is the embodiment of truth and order which are binding on mankind. He protects moral laws and punishes the sinful. The Vedic Indians approach Varuna in trembling and fear and in humble reverence and ask for forgiveness of sins. Indra, who is a king among the gods, occupying the position of Zeus in the Greek Olympus, is invoked by those who are fighting and struggling. Agni is the mediator between men and gods. The hymnis speak of him as a dear friend, the master of the house, grha-pati. He bears the sacrificial offerings to the gods and brings the gods down to an ancient dynasty and a venerable religion, a change, apparently almost unparalleled in history, was in the course of a few years brought over the land. Where for centuries the ancient hymns of the Avesta had been chanted and the sacred fire had burned, the cry of the Mu'ezzin summoning the faithful to prayer rang out from minarets reared on the runs of the temples of Ahura Mazda. The priests of Zoroaster fell by the sword, the ancient books perished in the flames, and soon none were left to represent a once mighty faith but a handful of exiles flying towards the shores of India and a despised and persecuted remnant in solitary Yezd and remote Kirman. Yet, after all, the change was but skin deep and soon a host of heterodox sects born on Persian soil—Shi'ites, Sufis, Ismailis and philosophers arose to vindicate the claim of Aryan thought to be free and to transform the religion forced on the nation by Arab steel into something which, though still wearing a semblance of Islam, had a significance widely different from that which one may fairly suppose was intended by the Arabian prophet 'A Year amongst the Persians (1927), p. 134

amongsi the Persians (1927), p 134

1 Varuna becomes Ahura Mazda (Ormuzd), the supreme God and Creator of the world In one of those conversations with Zoroaster which embody the revelation that was made to him, it is recorded, Ahura says, 'I maintain that sky there above, shining and seen afar and encompassing the earth all round. It looks like a palace that stands built of a heavenly substance firmly established with ends that lie afar, shining, in its body of ruby over the three worlds, it is like a garment inlaid with stars made of a heavenly substance that Mazda puts on 'Yasht XIII Like Varuna, who is the lord of ria, Ahura is the lord of aša As Varuna is closely allied with Mitra, so is Ahura with Mitra, the sun-god Avesta knows Verethragna who is Vrtrahan, the slayer of Vrtra Dyaus, Apāmnapāt (Apām Napāt), Gandharva (Gandarewa), Kṛśānu (Keresāni), Vāyu (Vayu), Yama, son of Vivasvant (Yima, son of Vivanhvant) as well as Yayña (Yasna), Hotr (Zaotar), Atharva priest (Āthravan) These point to the common religion of the undivided Indo-Aryans and Iranians

In the later Avesta, the supreme God is the sole creator but his attributes of the good spirit, righteousness, power, piety, health and immortality become personified as 'the Immortal Holy Ones.' the sacrifice. He is the wise one, the chief priest, purohita. Mitra is the god of light. When the Persians first emerge into history, Mitra is the god of light who drives away darkness. He is the defender of truth and justice, the protector of righteousness, the mediator between Ahura Mazda and man ¹

Mitra, Varuna and Agni are the three eyes of the great illuminator Sun.² Aditi is said to be space and air, mother, father and son She is all comprehending ³ Deities presiding over groups of natural phenomena became identified. The various Sun-gods, Sūrya, Savitr, Mitra and Viṣnu tended to be looked upon as one. Agni (Fire) is regarded as one deity with three forms, the sun or celestial fire, lightning or atmospheric fire and the earthly fire manifest in the altar and in the homes of men.

Again, when worship is accorded to any of the Vedic deities, we tend to make that deity, the supreme one, of whom all others are forms or manifestations. He is given all the attributes of a monotheistic deity. As several deities are exalted to this first place, we get what has been called henotheism, as distinct from monotheism. There is, of course, a difference between a psychological monotheism where one god fills the entire life of the worshipper and a metaphysical monotheism. Synthesising processes, classification of gods, simplification of the ideas of divine attributes and powers prepare for a metaphysical unity, the one principle informing all the deities. The supreme

The Vedic Indians were sufficiently logical to realise that the attributes of creation and rulership of the world could be granted only to one being. We have such a being in Prajā-pati, the lord of creatures, Viśva-karman, the world-maker. Thus the logic of religious faith asserts itself in favour of monotheism. This tendency is supported by the conception of ria or order. The universe is an ordered whole; it is not disorderliness (akosmia). If the endless variety of the world suggests numerous deities, the unity of the world suggests a unitary conception of the Deity.

If philosophy takes its rise in wonder, if the impulse to it is in scepticism, we find the beginnings of doubt in the Rg Veda It is said of Indra 'Of whom they ask, where is he? Of him indeed they also say, he is not '3 In another remarkable hvmn. the priests are invited to offer a song of praise to Indra, 'a true one, if in truth he is, for many say, "There is no Indra, who has ever seen him? To whom are we to direct the song of praise?" '4 When reflection reduced the deities who were once so full of vigour to shadows, we pray for faith 'O Faith, endow us with belief '5 Cosmological thought wonders whether speech and air were not to be regarded as the ultimate essence of all things 6 In another hymn Praja-pati is praised as the creator and preserver of the world and as the one god, but the refram occurs in verse after verse 'What god shall we honour by means of sacrifice?'7 Certainty is the source of mertia in thought, while doubt makes for progress

The most remarkable account of a superpersonal monism is to be found in the hymn of Creation 1 It seeks to explain the universe as evolving out of One. But the One is no longer a god like Indra or Varuna, Prajā-pati or Viśva-karman. The hymn declares that all these gods are of late or of secondary origin. They know nothing of the beginning of things. The first principle, that one, tad ekam, is uncharacterisable. It is without qualities or attributes, even negative ones To apply to it any description is to limit and bind that which is limitless and boundless.2 'That one breathed breathless. There was nothing else' It is not a dead abstraction but indescribable perfection of being Before creation all this was darkness shrouded in darkness, an impenetrable void or abyss of waters,3 until through the power of tapas,4 or the fervour of austerity, the One evolved into determinate self-conscious being. He becomes a creator by self-limitation. N thing outside himself can limit him. He only can limit himself. He does not depend on anything other than himself for his manifestation. This power of 3 Cp Genesis I. 2, where the Spirit of God is said to move on the face of the waters, and the Puranic description of Visnu as resting on the Serpent Infinite in the milky ocean. Homer's Iliad speaks of Oceanos as 'the source of all things' including even the gods 14, 246, 302. Many others, North American Indians, Aztecs, etc. have such a belief.

According to Aristotle, Thales considered that all things were made of water. The Greeks had a myth of Father-Ocean as the origin of all things.

'All this remained as water along (without any form). Only Praja-pati came to be in the lotus leaf. In his mind arose the desire, "let me create this (the world of names and forms)."

Two explanations are offered for the presence of identical symbols used in an identical manner in different parts of the world W. J. Perry and his friends argue that these myths and symbols were derived originally from Egyptian culture which once spread over the world, leaving behind these vestiges when it receded This theory does not bear close examination and is not widely held. The other explanation is that human beings are very much the same the world over, their minds are similarly constituted and their experience of life under primitive conditions does not differ from one part of the world to another and it is not unnatural that identical ideas regarding the origin and nature of the world arise independently.

actualisation is given the name of maya in later Vedanta, for the manifestation does not disturb the unity and integrity of the One The One becomes manifested by its own intrinsic power, by its tapas. The not-self is not independent of the self It is the avyakta or the unmanifested While it is dependent on the Supreme Self, it appears as external to the individual ego and is the source of its ignorance. The waters represent the unformed non-being in which the divine lay concealed in darkness. We have now the absolute in itself, the power of self-limitation, the emergence of the determinate self and the not-self, the waters, darkness, parā-prakrts. The abyss is the not-self, the mere potentiality, the bare abstraction, the receptacle of all developments The self-conscious being gives it existence by impressing his forms or Ideas on it The unmanifested, the indeterminate receives determinations from the self-conscious Lord. It is not absolute nothing, for there is never a state in which it is not in some sense." The whole world is formed by the union of being and not-being and the Supreme Lord has facing him this indetermination, this aspiration to existence 2 Rg Veda describes not-being (asat) as lying 'with outstretched

In the Puranas, this idea is variously developed Brahma Purana makes out that God first created the waters which are called nara and released his seed into them, therefore he is called Narayana The seed grew into a golden egg from which Brahmā was born of his own accord and so is called svayambha Brahma divided the egg into two halves, heaven and earth I r 38 ff

Speaking of Boehme's mystic philosophy which influenced William Law, Stephen Hobhouse writes that he believes 'in the Ungrund, the fathornless abyss of freedom or indifference, which is at the root, so to speak, of God and of all existences . the idea of the mighty but blind face of Desire that arises out of this abyss and by means of imagination shapes itself into a purposeful will which is the heart of the Divine personality ' Selected Mystical Writings of William Law (1948), p 307

In this $k\bar{a}ma$, 'the wise searching in their hearts, have by contemplation $(man\bar{\imath}\bar{\imath}\bar{a})$, discovered the connection between the existent and the non-existent'. The world is created by the personal self-conscious God who acts by his intelligence and will

This is how the Vedic seers understood in some measure how they and the whole creation arose. The writer of the hymn has the humility to admit that all this is a surmise, for it is not possible for us to be sure of things which lie so far beyond human knowledge.3

This hymn suggests the distinction between the Absolute Reality and Personal God, Brahman and Iśvara, the Absolute beyond being and knowledge, the super-personal, super-essential godhead in its utter transcendence of all created beings and its categories and the Real manifested to man in terms of the highest categories of human experience. Personal Being is treated as a development or manifestation of the Absolute.

In another hymn,4 the first existent being is called Prajā-pati, facing the chaos of waters. He impregnates the waters and becomes manifest in them in the form of a golden egg or germ, from which the whole universe develops.5 He is called the one

⁵ hranya-garbha, literally gold-germ, source of golden light, the world-soul, from which all powers and existences of this world are derived. It comes later to mean Brahmā, the creator of the world. In the Orphic Cosmogony we have similar ideas. Professor F. M. Cornford writes, 'In the beginning there was a primal undifferentiated unity, called by the Orphics "Night" Within this unity the world egg was generated, or

ceived as a cosmic person with a thousand heads, eyes and feet, who filled the whole universe and extended beyond it, by the length of ten fingers, the universe being constituted by a fourth of his nature 2 The world form is not a complete expression or manifestation of the divine Reality. It is only a fragment of the divine that is manifested in the cosmic process The World-soul is a partial expression of the Supreme Lord.

Creation is interpreted in the Vedas as development rather than the bringing into being something not hitherto existent. The first principle is manifested in the whole world. Purusa by his sacrifice becomes the whole world. This view prepares for the development of the doctrine which is emphasised in the Upanisads that the spirit in man is one with the spirit which is the prius of the world

Within this world we have the one positive principle of being and yet have varying degrees of existence marked by varying degrees of penetration or participation of nonentity by divine being God as Huanya-garbha is nothing of the already made. He is not an ineffective God who sums up in himself all that is given

Rg Veda used two different concepts, generation and birth, and something artificially produced to account for creation Heaven and earth are the parents of the gods; or the Creator of the world is a smith or a carpenter.

Again 'In the beginning was the golden germ From his birth he was sole lord of creation. He made firm the earth and this bright sky;'3

In this hymn Prajā-pati, the lord of offspring, assumes the name of Hiranya-garbha, the golden germ, and in the Atharva Veda and later literature Hiranya-garbha himself becomes a supreme deity 4 The Rg Veda is familiar with the four-fold distinction of (i) the Absolute, the One, beyond all dualities and distinctions, (ii) the self-conscious Subject confronting the object, (iii) the World-soul, and (iv) the world x

The monistic emphasis led the Vedic thinkers to look upon the Vedic deities as different names of the One Universal Godhead, each representing some essential power of the divine being 'They call him Indra, Mitra, Varuna, Agni He is the heavenly bird Garutmat To what is one, the poets give many a name They call it Agni, Yama, Mātariśva '² The real that lies behind the tide of temporal change is one, though we speak of it in many ways Agni, Yama, etc., are symbols They are not gods in themselves They express different qualities of the object worshipped. The Vedic seers were not conscious of any iconoclastic mission. They did not feel called upon to denounce

This list finds a parallel, as we shall see, in the hierarchy of being given in the Mā U with its four grades of consciousness, the waking or the perceptual, the dreaming or the imaginative, the self in deep sleep or the conceptual, the iurīya or the transcendent, spiritual consciousness which is not so much a grade of consciousness as the total consciousness

Plato in the Timasus teaches that the Supreme Deity, the Demi-urge, creates a universal World-Soul, through which the universe becomes an organism. The World-Soul bears the image of the Ideas, and the world-body is fashioned in the same pattern. If the whole world has not been ordered as God would have desired, it is due to the necessity which seems to reside in an intractable material, which was in 'disorderly motion' before the Creator imposed form on it

bidding

Cp Cicero 'God being present everywhere in Nature, can be regarded in the field as Ceres; or on the sea as Neptine, and elsewhere in a variety of forms in all of which He may be worshipped De Nature Deorum

For Plutarch and Maximus of Tyre, the different gods worshipped in the third century Roman Empire were symbolic representations of a

Supreme God who is unknowable in his inmost nature

'God himself, the father and fashioner of all is unnameable by any lawgiver, unutterable by any voice, not to be seen by any eye. But if a Greek is stirred to the remembrance of God by the art of Phidias, an Egyptian by paying worship to animals, another man by a river, another by fire, I have no anger for their divergence, only let them know, let them love, let them remember'

In the Taittiriya Samhitā and Śaiapatha Brāhmana, it is said that Prajā-pati assumed certain forms of fish (matsya), tortoise (kūrma) and boar (varāha) for the attainment of certain ends When the doctrine of avalāras, incarnations, becomes established, these three become the

the worship of the various deities as disastrous error or mortal sin They led the worshippers of the many deities to the worship of the one and only God by a process of reinterpretation and reconciliation

The reaction of the local cults on the Vedic faith is one of the many causes of variety of the Vedic pantheon. People in an early stage of culture are so entirely steeped in the awe and reverence which have descended to them that they cannot easily or heartily adopt a new pattern of worship. Even when militant religions fell the tall trees of the forest, the ancient beliefs remain as an undergrowth. The catholic spirit of Hinduism which we find in the Rg Veda has always been ready to give shelter to foreign beliefs and assimilate them in its own fashion. While preferring their own, the Vedic Indians had the strength to comprehend other peoples' ways.

There is no suggestion in the Rg Veda of the illusory character of the empirical world We find varied accounts of creation. The Supreme is compared to a carpenter or a smith who fashions or smelts the world into being Sometimes he is said to beget all beings He pervades all things as air or ether (ākāśa) pervades the universe. He animates the world as the life-breath (brana) animates the human body, a comparison which has been developed with remarkable ingenuity by Rāmānuja.

Rg Veda raises the question of the nature of the human self, ko nu ātmā: It is the controller of the body, the unborn part, ajo bhāgah2, which survives death. It is distinguished from the fiva or the individual soul.3 The famous verse of the two birds dwelling in one body, which is taken up by the Upanisads. distinguishes the individual soul which enjoys the fruits of actions from the spirit which is merely a passive spectator.5 This distinction between the individual soul and the supreme self is relevant to the cosmic process and is not applicable to the supreme supra-cosmic transcendence. Those who think that the distinction is to be found in the Supreme Transcendence

'Let this mortal clay (self) be the immortal god '2 'Vouchsafe, O Indra, that we may be you '3 One can become a devata, a deity, by one's own deeds 4 The aim of the Rg Veda is to become like gods. The individual soul can become the Universal Spirit

The way to spiritual attainment is through worships and moral life. Vestiges of Yoga discipline are found in a late passage which describes the kesius or the long-haired ascetics with their yogic powers that enabled them to move at will in space. Of a mum, it is said that his mortal body men see but he himself fares on the path of the faery spirits. His hair is long and his soiled garments are of yellow hue. Vämadeva when he felt the unity of all created things with his own self exclaimed 'I am Manu, I am Sūrya '7 So also King Trasadasyu said that he was Indra and the great Varuna 8

The cardinal virtues are emphasised 'O Mitra and Varuna, by your pathway of truth may we cross' 9 Mere memorising of the hymns is of no avail if we do not know the Supreme which sustains all 20 balanced social organisations with their systems of belief and codes of behaviour. The fundamental needs of society are the moral and the spiritual, the military and the economic. In Indo-European society these three functions are assigned to three different groups, the men of learning and virtue, the men of courage and fight, and the men who provide the economic needs, the Brāhmana, the K-atriya and the Vaisya. Below them were the Sūdras devoted to service. These distinctions are found in the Rg Veda, though they are not crystallised into castes. Ancient Iranian society was constituted on a similar pattern

Even the gods were classified into the Brāhmana, the Ksatriya and the Vaisya according to the benefits which they provide, moral, military or economic Our prayers are for righteousness, victory and abundance Sūrya, Savitr are gods who confer spiritual benefits. Indra is a war god and Aśvins give us health and food. In Roman mythology Jupiter provides spiritual benefits, Mars is the god of war and Quirinus is the god of plenty.

Pitaias or fathers or ancestral spirits receive divine worship. The king of the ancestral spirits who rules in the kingdom of the deceased is Yama, a god who belongs to the Indo-Iranian period. He is identical with Yima of the Avesta, who is the first human being, the primeval ancestor of the human race. As the first one to depart from this world and enter the realm of the dead, he became its king. The kingdom of the dead is in heaven, and the dying man is comforted by the belief that after death he will abide with King Yama in the highest heaven. The world of heaven is the place of refuge of the departed. In the funeral hymn, the departing soul is asked to 'go forth along the ancient pathway by which our ancestors have departed. The Vedic Heaven is described in glowing terms 'where inexhaustible radiance dwells, where dwells the King Vaivasvata's

There is no reference to rebirth in the Rg Veda, though its elements are found. The passage of the soul from the body, its dwelling in other forms of existence, its return to human

Good men go to heaven and others to the world presided over by Yama 7 Their work (dharma) decided their future 8

In the Rg Veda we find the first adventures of the human mind made by those who sought to discover the meaning of existence and man's place in life, 'the first word spoken by the Aryan man'9

THE YAJUR, THE SAMA AND THE ATHARVA VEDAS

Sacred knowledge is trayī vidyā It is three-fold, being the knowledge of the Rg, the Yajur and the Sāma Vedas The two latter use the hymns of the Rg and the Atharva Vedas and arrange them for purposes of ritual The aim of the Yajur Veda is the correct performance of the sacrifice to which is attributed the whole control of the universe Deities are of less importance than the mechanism of the sacrifice In the Atharva Veda the position of the deities is still less important A certain aversion to the recognition of the Atharva Veda as a part of the sacred canon is to be noticed Even the old Buddhist texts speak of learned Brāhmanas versed in the three Vedas 10

Though we meet in the Atharva Vcda many of the gods of the Rg Veda, their characters are not so distinct. The sun becomes rohita, the ruddy one. A few gods are exalted to the position of Praja-pati, Dhatr (Establisher), Vidhatr (arranger). Paramesthin (he that is in the highest). In a notable passage the Supreme in the form of Varuna is described as the universal. omnipresent witness.1 There are references to kāla or time as the first cause of all existence, kāma or desire as the force behind the evolution of the universe, skambha or support who is conceived as the principle on which everything rests. Theories tracing the world to water or to air as the most subtle of the physical elements are to be met with.

The religion of the Atharva Veda reflects the popular belief in numberless spirits and ghosts credited with functions connected in various ways with the processes of nature and the life of man.3 We see in it strong evidence of the vitality of the pre-Vedic animist religion and its fusion with Vedic beliefs. All objects and creatures are either spirits or are animated by spirits While the gods of the Rg Veda are mostly friendly ones we find in the Atharva Veda dark and demoniacal powers which bring disease and misfortune on mankind We have to win them by flattering petitions and magical rites. We come across spells and incantations for gaining worldly ends. The Vedic seer was loth to let the oldest elements disappear without trace. Traces of the influence of the Atharva Veda are to be found in the Upanisads There are spells for the healing of diseases, bhaisanyani, for life and healing ayusyani suktani. These were the beginnings of the medical science 3

The liberated soul is described as 'free from desire, wise. immortal, self-born . . . not deficient in any respect . . . wise, unageing, young '4

THE BRĀHMANAS

The elements of the ritualistic cult found in the Vedas are developed in the Brāhmanas into an elaborate system of ceremonies While in the Rg Veda the sacrifices are a means for the propitiation of the gods, in the Brāhmanas they become ends in themselves Even the gods are said to owe their position to sacrifices There are many stories of the conflict between devas and asuras for world power and of the way in which gods won through the power of the sacrifice.

It is not the mechanical performance of a sacrificial rite that brings about the desired result, but the knowledge of its real meaning Many of the Brāhmana texts are devoted to the exposition of the mystic significance of the various elements of the ritual By means of the sacrifices we 'set in motion' the cosmic forces dealt with and get from them the desired results. The priests who knew the details of the aim, meaning and performance of the sacrifice came into great prominence. Gods became negligible intermediaries. If we perform a rite with knowledge, the expected benefit will result. Soon the actual performance of the rite becomes unnecessary. Ritualistic religion becomes subordinate to knowledge.

The Brāhmanas are convinced that life on earth is, on the whole, a good thing The ideal for man is to live the full term of his life on earth. As he must die, the sacrifice helps him to get to the world of heaven

While the Vedic poets hoped for a life in heaven after death, there was uneasiness about the interference of death in a future life. The fear of re-death, punar-mrtyu becomes prominent in the Brāhmanas Along with the fear of re-death arose the belief of the imperishability of the self or the ātman, the essential part of man's being. Death is not the end but only causes new existences which may not be better than the present one. Under the influence of popular animism which sees souls similar to the human in all pares of nature, future life was brought down to earth. According to the Satapatha Brāhmana, a man has three births, the first which he gets from his parents, the second through sacrificial ceremonies and the third which he obtains after death and cremation.

VIII

THE ARANYAKAS

The Aranyakas do not give us rules for the performance of sacrifices and explanations of ceremonies, but provide us with the mystic teaching of the sacrificial religion. As a matter of fact, some of the oldest Upanisads are included in the Aranyaka texts, which are meant for the study of those who are engaged in the vow of forest life, the Vānaprasthas As those who retire to the forests are not like the house-holders bound to the ritual, the Aranyakas deal with the meaning and interpretation of the sacrificial ceremonies. It is possible that certain sacred rites were performed in the seclusion of the forests where teachers and pupils meditated on the significance of these rites. The

THE UPANISADS

The Āraṇyakas¹ shade off imperceptibly into the Upaniṣads even as the Brāhmaṇas shade off into the Āraṇyakas. While the student (brahmacārin) reads the hymns, the householder (grhastha) attends to the Brāhmaṇas which speak of the daily duties and sacrificial ceremonies, the hermit, the man of the forest (vānaprastha), discusses the Āraṇyakas, the monk who has renounced worldly attachment (saṅnyāsin), studies the Upaniṣads, which specialise in philosophical speculations.

The great teachers of the past did not claim any credit for themselves, but maintained that they only transmitted the wisdom of the ancients. The philosophical tendencies implicit in the Vedic hymns are developed in the Upanisads.

Hymns to gods and goddesses are replaced by a search for the reality underlying the flux of things. 'What is that which, being known, everything else becomes known?' Kena Upanisad gives the story of the discomfiture of the gods who found out the truth that it is the power of Brahman which sustains the gods of fire, air, etc. While the poets of the Veda speak to us of the many into which the radiance of the Supreme has split, the philosophers of the Upanisads speak to us of the One Reality behind and beyond the flux of the world. The Vedic deities are the messengers of the One Light which has burst forth into the universal creation. They serve to mediate between pure thought and the intelligence of the dwellers in the world of sense

When we pass from the Vedic hymns to the Upanisads we find that the interest shifts from the objective to the subjective. from the brooding on the wonder of the outside world to the meditation on the significance of the self. The human self contains the clue to the interpretation of nature. The Real at the heart of the universe is reflected in the infinite depths of the soul. The Upanisads give in some detail the path of the inner ascent, the inward journey by which the individual souls get at the Ultimate Reality. Truth is within us. The different Vedic gods are envisaged subjectively 'Making the Man (purusa) their mortal house the gods indwelt him '1 'All these gods are in me '2 'He is, indeed, initiated, whose gods within him are initiated, mind by Mind, voice by Voice '3 The operation of the gods becomes an epiphany. 'This Brahma, verily, shines when one sees with the eye and likewise dies when one does not see '4 The deities seem to be not different from Plato's Ideas or Eternal Reasons.

In the Upanisads we find a criticism of the empty and barren ritualistic religion 5 Sacrifices were relegated to an inferior position They do not lead to final liberation, they take one to the world of the Fathers from which one has to return to earth again in due course 6 When all things are God's, there is no point in offering to him anything, except one's will, one's self. The sacrifices are interpreted ethically. The three periods of life supersede the three Soma offerings 7 Sacrifices become self-denying acts like purusa-medha and sarva-medha which enjoin abandonment of all possessions and renunciation of the world. For example, the Bṛhad-āranyaka Upanisad opens with an account of the horse sacrifice (aśva-medha) and interprets it as a meditative act in which the individual offers up the

by logical thinking, but by the energy of our whole inner being. Prayer starts with faith, with complete trust in the Being to whom appeal is made, with the feeling of a profound need, and a simple faith that God can grant us benefits and is well disposed towards us. When we attain the blinding experience of the spiritual light, we feel compelled to proclaim a new law for the world.

The Upanisad seers are not bound by the rules of caste, but extend the law of spiritual universalism to the utmost bounds of human existence. The story of Satyakāma Jābāla, who, though unable to give his father's name, was yet initiated into spiritual life, shows that the Upanisad writers appeal from the rigid ordinances of custom to those divine and spiritual laws which are not of today or of yesterday, but live for ever and of their origin knoweth no man. The words tat train as are so familiar that they slide off our minds without full comprehension.

The goal is not a heavenly state of bliss or rebirth in a better world, but freedom from the objective, cosmic law of karma and identity with the Supreme Consciousness and Freedom The Vedic paradise, svarga, becomes a stage in the individual's growth.

The Upanisads generally mention the Vedas with respect and their study is enjoined as an important duty ² Certain verses from the Vedas such as the gāyatī ī form the subject of meditations³ and sometimes verses from the Vedas are quoted in support of the teaching of the Upanisads ⁴ While the Upanisads use the Vedas, their teaching is dependent on the personal experience and testimony of teachers like Yājñavalkya, Sāndilya The authority of the Vedas is, to no small extent, due to the inclusion of the Upanisads in them

ULTIMATE REALITY BRAHMAN

To the pioneers of the Upanisads, the problem to be solved presented itself in the form, what is the world rooted in? What is that by reaching which we grasp the many objects perceived in the world around us? They assume, as many philosophers do, that the world of multiplicity is, in fact, reducible to one single, primary reality which reveals itself to our senses in different forms. This reality is hidden from senses but is discernible to the reason. The Upanisads raise the question, what is that reality which remains identical and persists through change?

The word used in the Upanisads to indicate the supreme reality is brahman It is derived from the root brh 'to grow, to burst forth' The derivation suggests gushing forth, bubbling over, ceaseless growth, brhattvam Samkara derives the word 'brahman' from the root brhain to exceed, atisavana and means by it eternity, purity For Madhva, brahman is the person in whom the qualities dwell in fullness, brhanto hy asmin gunāh The real is not a pale abstraction, but is quickeningly alive, of powerful vitality. In the Rg Veda, brahman is used in the sense of 'sacred knowledge or utterance, a hymn or incantation,' the concrete expression of spiritual wisdom Sometimes Vac is personified as the One.2 Viśva-karman, the All-Maker is said to be the lord of the holy utterance 3 Brahman is mantra or prayer. Gradually it acquired the meaning of power or potency of prayer, It has a mysterious power and contains within itself the essence of the thing denoted Brhaspati, Brahmanaspati are interpreted as the lord of prayer.

In the Brahmanas, brahman denotes the ritual and so is regarded as omnipotent. He who knows brahman knows and controls the universe. Brahman becomes the primal principle and guiding spirit of the universe 'There is nothing more ancient or brighter than this brahman.'1

In later thought, brahman meant wisdom or Veda As divine origin was ascribed to the Veda or brahman, the two words were used with the same meaning. Brahman or sacred knowledge came to be called the first created thing, brahma prathamajam and even to be treated as the creative principle, the cause of all existence.

The word suggests a fundamental kinship between the aspiring spirit of man and the spirit of the universe which it seeks to attain The wish to know the Real implies that we know it to some extent. If we do not know anything about it. we cannot even say that it is and that we wish to know it If we know the Real, it is because the Real knows itself in us The desire for God, the feeling that we are in a state of exile, implies the reality of God in us All spiritual progress is the growth of half-knowledge into clear illumination. Religious experience is the evidence for the Divine. In our inspired moments we have the feeling that there is a greater reality within us, though we cannot tell what it is From the movements that stir in us and the utterances that issue from us, we perceive the power, not ourselves, that moves us Religious experience is by no means subjective God cannot be known or experienced except through his own act If we have a knowledge of Brahman, it is due to the working of Brahman in us 2 Prayer is the witness to the spirit of the transcendent divine immanent in the spirit of man. The thinkers of the Upanisads based the reality of Brahman on the fact of spiritual experience, ranging from simple prayer to illuminated experience The distinctions which they make in the nature of the Supreme Reality are not merely logical. They are facts of spiritual experience

¹ Salapatha Brāhmana X 3 5. 11 ² Cp St Anselm. 'I cannot seek Thee except Thou teach me, nor find Thee except Thou reveal Thyself', Rūmī 'Was it not I who summoned Thee to long service, was it not I who made Thee busy with my name? Thy calling "Allāh" was my "Here am I".'

The thinkers of the Upanisads attempt to establish the reality of God from an analysis of the facts of nature and the facts of inner life

'Who knows and who can declare what pathway leads to the gods?

Seen are their lowest dwelling-places only,

What pathway leads to the highest, most secret regions ?'r

The Upanisads assume that it is a distorted habit of mind which identifies 'the highest, most secret regions' with the 'lowest dwelling-places' The Real is not the actual The Upanisads ask, 'What is the tajjalān from which all things spring, into which they are resolved and in which they live and have their being 2

The Brhad-āranyaka Upanisad maintains that the ultimate reality is being, san-matram hi brahma Since nothing is without reason there must be a reason why something exists rather than nothing There is something, there is not nothing The world is not self-caused, self-dependent, self-maintaining All philosophical investigation presupposes the reality of being, astitva-nisthā 3 The theologian accepts the first principle of being as an absolute one, the philosopher comes to it by a process of mediation By logically demonstrating the impossibility of not-being in and by itself, he asserts the necessity of being Being denotes pure affirmation to the exclusion of every possible negation It expresses simultaneously God's consciousness of himself and his own absolute self-absorbed being. We cannot live a rational life without assuming the reality of being Notbeing is sometimes said to be the first principle 4 It is not absolute non-being but only relative non-being, as compared with later concrete existence

Even as the nyagrodha tree is made of the subtle essence which we do not perceive, so is this world made of the infinite Brahman: 'It is at the command of that Imperishable that the sun and the moon stand bound in their places. It is at the command of that Imperishable that the heaven and the earth stand each in its own place. It is at the command of that Imperishable that the very moments, the hours, the days, the nights, the half-months, the months, the seasons and the years have their appointed function in the scheme of things It is at the command of that Imperishable that some rivers flow to the east from the snow-clad mountains while others flow to the west '2 When Bālāki defines Brahman as the person in the sun (ādityc puruşah) and successively as the person in the moon, in lightning, in other, in wind, in fire, in the waters, also as the person in the mind, in the shadow, in echo and in the body, King Ajātaśatru asks, 'Is that all?' When Bālāki confesses that he can go no farther, the king says, 'He who is the maker of all these persons, he, verily, should be known' Brahman is salyasya salyam, the Reality of the real, the source of all existing things 3

In some cosmological speculations the mysterious principle of reality is equated with certain naturalistic elements. Water is said to be the source of all things whatsoever 4 From it came satya, the concrete existent. Others like Raikva look upon air as the final absorbent of all things whatsoever, including fire and water 5. The Katha Upanisad tells us that fire, having entered the universe, assumes all forms. The Chāndogya Upanisad, however, makes out that fire is the first to evolve from the Primaeval Being and from fire came water and from water the earth. At the time of dissolution, the earth is dissolved in water, and water in fire and fire in the Primaeval Being 7 Ahāsa, ether, space, is sometimes viewed as the first principle look upon the earliest state of the material world as one of extension in space, of which the characteristic feature is vibration represented to us by the phenomenon of sound From ākāśa, vāyu, air arises Vibration by itself cannot create forms unless it meets with obstruction. The interaction of vibrations is possible in air which is the next modification. To sustain the different forces, a third modification arises, legas. of which light and heat are the manifestations. We still do not have stable forms and so the denser medium of water is produced A further state of cohesion is found in earth. The development of the world is a process of steady grossening of the subtle ākāśa or space All physical objects, even the most subtle, are built up by the combination of these five elements Our sense experience depends on them By the action of vibration comes the sense of sound, by the action of things in a world of vibrations the sense of touch, by the action of light the sense of sight, by the action of water the sense of taste, by the action of earth the sense of smell

In the Tasturiya Upanisadi the pupil approaches the father and asks him to explain to him the nature of Brahman He is given the formal definition and is asked to supply the content by his own reflection 'That from which these beings are born, that in which when born they live, and that into which they enter at their death is Brahman' What is the reality which conforms to this account? The son is impressed by material phenomena and fixes on matter (anna) as the basic principle He is not satisfied, for matter cannot account for the forms of life He looks upon life (prāna) as the basis of the world Life belongs to a different order from matter Life, again, cannot be the ultimate principle, for conscious phenomena are not commensurate with living forms. There is something more in consciousness than in life So he is led to believe that consciousness (manas) is the ultimate principle. But consciousness has different grades The instinctive consciousness of animals is quite different from the intellectual consciousness of human beings So the son affirms that intellectual consciousness (viiñāna) is Brahman Man alone, among nature's children has the capacity to change himself by his own effort and transcend his limitations Even this is incomplete because it is subject to discords and dualities Man's intellect aims at the attainment of truth but succeeds only in making guesses about it; there must be a power in man which sees the truth unveiled A deeper principle of consciousness must emerge if the fundamental intention of nature, which has led to the development of matter, life, mind, and intellectual consciousness, is to be accomplished The son finally arrives at the truth that spiritual freedom or delight (ananda), the ecstasy of fulfilled existence is the ultimate principle. Here the search ends, not simply because the pupil's doubts are satisfied but because the pupil's doubts are stilled by the vision of Self-evident Reality. He apprehends the Supreme Unity that lies behind all the lower forms The Upanisad suggests that he leaves behind the discursive reason and contemplates the One and is lost in ecstasy: It concludes with the affirmation that absolute Reality is satyam, truth, jñānam, consciousness, anantam, infinity.

There are some who affirm that ananda is the nearest approximation to Absolute Reality, but is not itself the Absolute Reality. For it is a logical representation. The experience gives us peace, but unless we are established in it we have not received the highest and modes of action, each acting on the other but not derived from each other. The evolution of life in the context of matter is produced not by the material principle but by the working of a new life-principle which uses the conditions of matter for the production of life Life is not the mechanical resultant of the antecedent co-ordination of material forces, but it is what is now called an emergent. We cannot, by a complete knowledge of the previous conditions, anticipate the subsequent result There is an element of the incalculable Life emerges when the material conditions are available, which permit life to organise itself in matter. In this sense, we may say that matter aspires for life, but life is not produced by lifeless particles So also life may be said to be aspiring for or be instinct with mind, which is ready to emerge when conditions enable it to organise itself in living matter Mind cannot be produced from things without mind When the necessary mental conditions are prepared, intelligence qualifies the mental living creature Nature is working according to this fundamental intention, which is being accomplished because it is essentially the instrument of the Supreme Being

In this account, the Upanişad assumes that the naturalistic theory of evolution cannot be accepted. The world is not to be viewed as an automatic development without any intelligent course or intelligible aim. Matter, life, mind, intelligence are different forms of existence with their specific characteristics.

The world is not the result of meaningless chance. There is a purpose working itself out through the ages. It is a view which modern science confirms. By interpreting the fragmentary relics of far remote times, science tells us how this earth in which we live was gradually adapted to be a place where life could develop, how life came and developed through uncounted centuries until animal consciousness arose and this again gradually developed, until apparently, man with self-conscious reason appeared on the scene. The long record of the development of the human race and the great gifts of spiritual men like the Buddha, Socrates, Jesus make out that man has to be transcended by God-man

It cannot be argued that, when material particles are organised in a specific way, life arises. The principle of organisation is not matter. The explanation of a thing is to be sought in what is above it in the scale of existence and value and not below it. Matter cannot raise itself. It moves to a higher level by the help of the higher itself. It cannot undergo inner development without being acted upon by something above it. The lower

is the material for the higher. Life is the matter for mind and form for physical material so also intellect is form for the mind and matter for the spirit. The eternal is the origin of the actual and its nisus to improvement. To think of it as utterly transcendent or as a future possibility is to miss its incidence in the actual. We cannot miss the primordiality of the Supreme. 'Verily, in the beginning this world was Brahman 'I There is the perpetual activity of the Supreme in the world

The Upanisad affirms that Brahman on which all else depends, to which all existences aspire, Brahman which is sufficient to itself, aspiring to no other, without any need, is the source of all other beings, the intellectual principle, the perceiving mind, life and body. It is the principle which unifies the world of the physicist, the biologist, the psychologist, the logician, the moralist and the artist. The hierarchy of all things and beings from soulless matter to the deity is the cosmos. Plato's world-architect, Aristotle's world-mover belong to the cosmos. If there is ordered development, progressive evolution, it is because there is the divine principle at work in the universe.

Cosmic process is one of universal and unceasing change and is patterned on a duality which is perpetually in conflict, the perfect order of heaven and the chaos of the dark waters Life creates opposites, as it creates sexes, in order to reconcile them 'In the beginning the woman (Urvasī) went about in the flood seeking a master '2 Indra, for example, divided the world into earth and sky. He 'produced his father and mother from his own body.' This conflict runs through the whole empirical world, and will end when the aim of the universe is accomplished. Creation moves upward towards the divine. When the union between the controlling spirit and the manifesting matter is completed, the purpose of the world, the end of the evolutionary process, the revelation of spirit on earth is accomplished. The earth is the foothold of God, the mother of all creatures whose father is heaven 3

As regards the primordial God Hiranya-garbha, a circular process is found. The primal being spontaneously produces the primeval water, from this comes the primordial God as the first born of the divine Order, the golden germ of the world 'who was the first seed resting on the navelof the unborn 'i Hinanya-garbha who is the World-soul expresses his spirit through the environment. Zoroaster reaches the conception of a single spiritual God, Ormuzd or Ahura Mazda, in whom the principle of good is personified, while the evil principle is embodied in Ahriman, or Angra Mainyu, who limits the omnipotence of Ahura Mazda. The whole creation is a combat between the two. The two principles strive eternally in life, and in this struggle men take part. Man is responsible for his actions, good or bad. If he struggles against evil, confesses God and cares for the purity of his body and soul, then after four periods of three thousand years each in the world's history a time shall arrive for the final victory of good over evil, of Ormuzd over Ahriman. The general resurrection of the dead and the last judgment will take place then, assuring him of his place among the saved and the righteous.

The Jews adopted the two principles of good and evil and they were taken over by Christianity When Blake speaks of the marriage of Heaven and Hell, Heaven represents the one clear light over all and Hell the dark world of passion and the senses Divided, both are equally barren, but from their union springs joy 'Oh that man would seek immortal moments! Oh that men could converse with God' was Blake's cry gence or Huanya-garbha On the subjective side, buddhi is the first element of the linga or the subtle body. It is the essence of the individual spirit Buddhi serves as the basis for the development of the principle of individuation, ahamkara, from which are derived, on the one hand, mind and the ten sense organs. five of perception and five of action and, on the other hand, the subtle elements from which arise in their turn the gross elements. Sattva is buddhe, the innermost of the three circles, the outer being rajas and tamas which are identified with ahamkara and manas, which are the emanations of rayas and tamas The sativa or the buddhi is the bija, the seed of the living individual, since it contains the seeds of karma which develop at each birth into a sense-organism. The sallva or linga is called the ego, the jīva As the buddh is the sūtrātman of the individual. so is Hıranya-garbha the sūtrātman, the thread-controller of the world

thought For Plato, the Logos was the archetypal idea For the Stoics it is the principle of reason which quickens and informs matter Philo speaks of the Divine Logos as the 'first born son,' 'archetypal man,' 'image of God,' 'through whom the world was created '4 Logos, the Reason, 'the Word was in the beginning and the Word became flesh' The Greek term. Logos, means both Reason and Word The latter indicates an act of divine will Word is the active expression of character The difference between the conception of Divine Intelligence or Reason and the Word of God is that the latter represents the will of the Supreme Vāc is Brahman 5 Vāc, word, wisdom, is treated in the Rg Veda as the all-knowing. Why is the universe what it is, rather than something else? Why is there this something, rather than another? This is traced to the divine will This world and its controlling spirit are the expressions of the Supreme Lord While the Worldsoul and the world are organically related and are interdependent, there is no such relationship between the Supreme Lord and the world, for that would be to subject the infinite to the finite. The relationship is an 'accident' to use Whitehead's expression. This word 'accident' implies two different considerations, (1) that Divine Creativity is not bound up with this world in such a way that the changes which occur in the world affect the integrity of the Divine, and (2) that the world is an accidental expression of the Divine principle Creativity is not bound to express itself in this particular form. If the choice were necessary it would not be free. Creation is the free expression of the Divine mind. icchā-mātram. The world is the manifestation of Hıranya-garbha and the creation of Isvara. The world is the free self-determination of God The power of selfdetermination, self-expression, belongs to God. It is not by itself. It belongs to the Absolute which is the abode of all possibilities, and by its creative power one of these possibilities is freely chosen for accomplishment. The power of manifestation is not alien to being. It does not enter it from outside. It is in being, inherent in it It may be active or inactive We thus get the conception of an Absolute-God, Brahman-Iśvara, where the first term indicates infinite being and possibility, and the second suggests creative freedom: Why should the Absolute Brahman perfect, infinite, needing nothing, desiring nothing, move out into the world? It is not compelled to do so. It may have this potentiality but it is not bound or compelled by it It is free to move or not to move, to throw itself into forms or remain formless. If it still indulges its power of creativity, it is because of its free choice

In Isvara we have the two elements of wisdom and power. Siva and Sakti By the latter the Supreme who is unmeasured and immeasurable becomes measured and defined Immutable being becomes infinite fecundity. Pure being, which is the free basis and support of cosmic existence, is not the whole of our experience Between the Absolute and the World-soul is the Creative Consciousness It is prajñāna-ghana or truth-consciousness If sat denotes the primordial being in its undifferenced unity, satya is the same being immanent in its differentiations If the Absolute is pure unity without any extension or variation, God is the creative power by which worlds spring into existence The Absolute has moved out of its primal poise and become knowledge-will It is the all-determining principle It is the Absolute in action as Lord and Creator While the Absolute is spaceless and timeless potentiality, God is the vast selfawareness comprehending, apprehending every possibility ¹

Brahman is not merely a featureless Absolute It is all this world Vāyu or air is said to be manifest Brahman, pratyaksam brahma The Svetāśvatara Upanisad makes out that Brahman is beast, bird and insect, the tottering old man, boy and girl Brahman sustains the cosmos and is the self of each individual Supra-cosmic transcendence and cosmic universality are both real phases of the one Supreme In the former aspect the Spirit is in no way dependent on the cosmic manifold, in the latter the Spirit functions as the principle of the cosmic manifold. The supra-cosmic silence and the cosmic integration are both real. The two, nirguna and saguna Brahman, Absolute and God, are not different Jayatīrtha contends that Samkara is wrong in holding that Brahman is of two kinds—brahman dvairūpyasya aprāmānikatvāt² It is the same Brahman who is described in different ways

Eckhart says 'God and Godhead are as different as heaven from earth . God becomes and unbecomes' 'All in Godhead is one, and of this naught can be said God works, but Godhead works not There is no work for it to do and no working in it Never did it contemplate anything of work God and Godhead differ after the manner of working and not working When I come into the Ground, into the depths, into the flow and fount of Godhead, none will ask me whence I have come or whither I go None will have missed me, God passes away' Sermon LVI Evans' E T

The personality of God is not to be conceived on the human lines. He is not to be thought of as a greatly magnified person. We should not attribute to the Divine human qualities as we know them. We have (1) the Absolute, (2) God as Creative power. (3) God immanent in this world. These are not to be regarded as separate entities. They are arranged in this order because there is a logical priority. The Absolute must be there with all its possibilities before the Divine Creativity can choose one. The divine choice must be there before there can be the Divine immanent in this world. This is a logical succession and not a temporal one. The world-spirit must be there before there can be the world We thus get the four poises or statuses of reality, the Absolute, Brahman, (2) the Creative Spirit, Isvara, (3) the World-Spirit, Hiranya-garbha, and (4) the World This is the way in which the Hindu thinkers interpret the integral nature of the Supreme Reality. Mandukya Upanisad says that Brahman is catus-pāt, four-footed, and its four principles are Brahman, Isvara, Huanyu-garbha and Virāj?

Aquinas says 'Things said alike of God and of other beings are not said either in quite the same sense or in a totally different sense but in an analogous sense' Summa Contra Gentiles XXXIV God is not good or loving in the human sense 'For who hath known the mind of the Lord' Romans XI 34 God is personal, but, as Karl Barth says, 'personal in an incomprehensible way in so far as the conception of His personality surpasses all our views of personality This is so, just because He and He alone is a true, real and genuine person Were we to overlook this and try to conceive God in our own strength according to our conception of personality, we should make an idol out of God' The Knowledge of God and the Service of God (1938). In Plotinus we have a similar scheme (i) The One alone, the simple, the unconditioned God beyond being of Basilides, the godhead of Eckhart which can only be indicated by negative terms. We cannot even affirm existence of it, though it is not non-existent. It cannot be thought of as either subject or object of experience, as in it subject and object are identical. It is pure impersonal experience or perhaps the ground of all experience, it is pure consciousness, ineffable supra-existence. It is not the first cause, not the creator god. It is cause only in the sense that it is everywhere, and without it nothing could be (ii) The Nous. The Intelligible world which Plotinus calls One—Many, the world of Platonic forms or archetypes. Not mere Ideas or things thought by the Divine Thinker, not mere passive archetypical pictures. They are active powers within the Divine mind. It is personal God. Unity cannot be separated from diversity. The most perfect form of expressive act is thought or intellection, viñāna, Divine Intellect, First thinker and thought, the personal Lord, Universal Intelligence, The

The conception of tri-suparna is developed in the fourth section of the Taittiriva Upanisad The Absolute is conceived as a nest from out of which three birds have emerged, viz Vırāı. Hıranya-garbha and Īśvara The Absolute conceived as it is in itself, independent of any creation, is called Brahman When it is thought of as having manifested itself as the universe, it is called Viraj, when it is thought of as the spirit moving everywhere in the universe, it is called Hiranya-garbha, when it is thought of as a personal God creating, protecting and destroying the universe, it is called Iśvara Iśvara becomes Brahmā, Visnu and Siva when his three functions are taken separately I The real is not a sum of these. It is an ineffable unity in which these conceptual distinctions are made. These are fourfold to our mental view, separable only in appearance If we identify the real with any one definable state of being, however pure and perfect, we violate the unity and divide the indivisible The different standpoints are consistent with each other, complementary to each other and necessary in their unknowable Absolute is mediated to us through the Divine Intelligence This Intellectual principle of Plotinus is the Isvara of the Upanisads This universal intelligence makes possible the multiple universe. For Plotinus this principle is the totality of divine thoughts or Ideas in Plato's sense These Ideas or Thoughts are real beings, powers They are the originals, archetypes, intellectual forms of all that exists in the lower spheres All the phases of existence down to the lowest ultimate of material being or the lowest forms of being in the visible universe are ideally present in this realm of divine thoughts. This divine intellectual principle has both being and non-being It has, for Plotinus, two acts, the upward contemplation of the One and generation towards the lower (iii) One and Many The soul of the All is the third, which fashions the material universe on the model of divine thoughts, the Ideas laid up within the Divine Mind It is the eternal cause of the cosmos, the creator and therefore the vital principle of the world God is envisaged as something apart from the world, its creator or artificer Human ideas of God are centred round him Plotinus does not make the sensible world a direct emanation from the Intelligible World It is the product or the creation of the World-soul, the third person of the Neo-Platonic trinity, herself an emanation from the Intelligible World, the Nous Our souls are parts or emanations of the World-soul The three hypostases form collectively, for Plotinus, the one transcendent being The All-Soul is the expression of the energy of the Divine, even as the Intellectual principle is the expression of the thought or vision of the godhead (iv) The many alone It is the world-body, the world of matter without form It is the possibility of manifested form · See also Paingala Ū totality for an integral view of life and the world. If we are able to hold them together, the conflicting views which are emphasised exclusively by certain schools of Indian Vedanta become reconciled.

Absolute being is not an existing quality to be found in the things. It is not an object of thought or the result of production. It forms an absolute contrast to, and is fundamentally different from, things that are, as is in its way nothingness. It can be expressed only negatively or analogically. It is that from which our speech turns back along with the mind, being unable to comprehend its fullness. It is that which the tongue of man cannot truly express nor human intelligence conceive. Samkara in his commentary on the Brahma Sūtra² refers to an Upanisad text which is not to be found in any of the extant Upanisads Bāhva, asked by Bāṣkali to expound the nature of Brahman, kept silent. He prayed, 'Teach me, sir' The teacher was silent, and when addressed a second and a third time he said. 'I am teaching but you do not follow. The self is silence.'

We can only describe the Absolute in negative terms. In the words of Plotinus, 'We say what he is not, We cannot say what he is.' The Absolute is beyond the sphere of predication It is the śūnyatā of the Buddhists It is 'not gross, not subtle, not short, not long, not glowing, not shadowy, not dark, not attached, flavourless, smell-less, eye-less, ear-less, speech-less, mind-less, breath-less, mouth-less, not internal, not external, consuming nothing and consumed by nothing '4 It cannot be

Plato says that the unfathomable ground of the universe, the absolute, is 'beyond essence and truth 'Plotinus describes the utter transcendence of the One thus 'Since the Nature or Hypostasis of The One is the engenderer of the All, it can Itself be none of the things in the All, that is, It is not a thing, It does not possess quality or quantity, It is not an Intellectual Principle, not a soul, It is not in motion and not at rest, not in space, not in time, It is essentially of a unique form or rather of no-form, since it is prior to form, as it is prior to movement and to rest, all these categories hold only in the realm of existence and constitute the multiplicity characteristic of that lower realm 'Enneads VI 9 3 'This wonder, this One, to which in verity no name may be given' 2bid VI 9 5

'Our way then takes us beyond knowing, there may be no wandering from unity, knowing and knowable must all be left aside Every object of thought, even the highest, we must pass by, for all that is good is later than this. No doubt we should not speak of seeing, but we cannot help talking in dualities, seen and seer, instead of boldly, the achievement of unity In this seeing, we neither hold an object nor trace distinction, there is no two The man is changed, no longer himself nor self belonging, he is merged with the supreme, sunker into it, one with it Only in separation is there duality That is why the vision baffles telling We cannot detach the supreme to state it, if we have seen something thus detached, we have failed of the supreme ' Enneads

To say that the nature of Brahman cannot be defined does not mean that it has no essential nature of its own We cannot define it by its accidental features, for they do not belong to its essence There is nothing outside it. As no inquiry into its nature can be instituted without some description, its svar upa or essential nature is said to be sat or being, cit or consciousness and ananda or bliss 2 These are different phrases for the same being Self-being, self-consciousness and self-delight are one. It is absolute being in which there is no nothingness. It is absolute consciousness in which there is no non-consciousness It is absolute bliss in which there is no suffering or negation of bliss. All suffering is due to a second, an obstacle, all delight arises from the realisation of something withheld, by the overcoming of obstacles, by the surpassing of the limit It is this delight that overflows into creation. The self-expression of the Absolute, the creation of numberless universes is also traced to Brahman All things that exist are what they are, because of the nature of Brahman as sat, cit and ananda All things are forms of one immutable being, variable expressions of the invariable reality To describe Brahman as the cause of the world is to give its tatastha or accidental feature i The defining characteristics are in both cases due to our logical needs 2 When the Absolute is regarded as the basis and explanation of the world, he is conceived as the lord of all, the knower of all, the inner controller of all 3 God has moved out everywhere sa paryagāt The Svetāśvatara Upanisad speaks of the one God, beside whom there is no second, who creates all the worlds and rules with His powers, and at the end of time rolls them up again 4 He lives in all things and yet transcends them The Universal Self is like the sun who is the eye of the whole universe and is untouched by the defects of our vision 6 He is said to fill the whole world and yet remain beyond its confines 'Verily motionless like a lone tree does the God stand in the heaven, and yet by Him is this whole world filled '?

The distinction between Brahman in itself and Brahman in the universe, the transcendent beyond manifestation and the transcendent in manifestation, the indeterminate and the determinate, nurguno gunī, is not exclusive ⁸ The two are like two sides of one reality. sonal is said to be superior to the superpersonal. purusan na param kiñcit, there is nothing beyond the person. It is doubtful whether the author of the Brahma Sūtra accepted the distinction of saguna and nirguna in regard to Brahman. Even the nirguna Brahman is not without determinations. The Sūtrakāra makes a distinction between the super-personal (apurusa-vidha) and the personal (purusa-vidha), i.e. between Brahman and Iśvara The latter is not a human fancy or a concession to the weak in mind The nirākāra (formless), and the sākāra (with form), are different aspects of the same Reality. The seeker can choose either in his spiritual practices In III. 3 we find that the author maintains that the aksara texts which describe Brahman negatively as 'not this, not this' are 'not useful for meditation '2 He holds that Brahman is unaffected by the different states, of waking, dream, sleep. The view that Brahman undergoes changes is refuted on the ground that they relate to the effects due to the self-concealment of Brahman Bādarāyana denies reality to a second principle.

Hiranya-garbha, the World-soul is the divine creator, the supreme lord Iśvara at work in this universe. A definite possibility of the Absolute is being realised in this world. In the Upanisads the distinction between Isvara and Hiranya-garbha, between God and the World-soul is not sharply drawn. If the World-soul is ungrounded in Iśvara, if he is exclusively temporal, then we cannot be certain of the end of the cosmic process When the Upanisads assert that the individual ego is rooted in the universal self or atman, it would be preposterous to imagine that the World-soul is unrelated to Isvara or Brahman.3

Hiranya-garbha who has in him the whole development in germ acts on the waters As we have seen, the image of waters is an ancient one by which human thought attempts to explain the development of the universe. The waters are initially at rest and so free from waves or forms The first movement, the first disturbance, creates forms and is the seed of the universe The play of the two is the life of the universe When the development is complete, when what is in germ is manifest, we have the world-consummation Huanya-garbha creates the world according to the eternal Veda, which has within itself eternally the primary types of all classes of things, even as the God of the mediaeval scholastics creates according to the eternal archetype of Ideas which He as the eternal Word eternally possesses Brahman is the unity of all that is named i Hiranya-garbha or Brahmā is the World-soul2 and is subject to changes of the world He is kārya Brahmā or effect Brahman as distinct from Iśvara who is kārana Brahman or causal Brahman Hiranya-garbha arises at every world-beginning and is dissolved at every world-ending Iśvara is not subject to these changes For both Samkara and Rāmānuja, Hiranya-garbha has the place of a subordinate and created demi-urge Isvara is the eternal God who is not drawn into but directs the play of the worlds that rise and perish and is Himself existing transcendentally from all eternity The Vedic deities are subordinate to Iśvara and hold a similar position to Him in the formation and control of the world that the angelic powers and directors maintain in the heavenly hierarchy of scholasticism and of Dante

We have thus the four sides of one whole (i) the transcendental universal being anterior to any concrete reality, (ii) the causal principle of all differentiation, (iii) the innermost essence of the world, and (iv) the manifest world. They are co-existent and not alternating poises where we have either a quiescent Brahman or a creative Lord. These are simultaneous sides of the one Reality.

ULTIMATE REALITY ĀTMAN

The word 'atman' is derived from an 'to breathe.' It is the breath of life. Gradually its meaning is extended to cover life, soul, self or essential being of the individual. Samkara derives ātman from the root which means 'to obtain' 'to eat or enjoy or pervade all.'2 Atman is the principle of man's life, the soul that pervades his being, his breath, prana, his intellect, prajna, and transcends them. Atman is what remains when everything that is not the self is eliminated. The Rg Veda speaks of the unborn part, ato bhagah.3 There is an unborn and so immortal element in man,4 which is not to be confused with body, life, mind and intellect. These are not the self but its forms, its external expressions. Our true self is a pure existence, self-aware, unconditioned by the forms of mind and intellect. When we cast the self free from all outward events, there arises from the inward depths an experience, secret and wonderful, strange and great. It is the miracle of self-knowledge, ātma-jāāna.5 Just as, in relation to the universe, the real is Brahman, while name and form are only a play of manifestation, so also the individual egos are the varied expressions of the One Universal Self. As Brahman is the eternal quiet underneath the drive and activity of the universe, so Ātman is the foundational reality underlying the conscious powers of the individual, the inward ground of the human soul There is an ultimate depth to our life below the plane of thinking and striving The Ātman is the superreality of the $j\bar{v}va$, the individual ego

The Chandogya Upanisad gives us a story, where gods and demons both anxious to learn the true nature of the Self approach Prajā-pati who maintains that the ultimate self is free from sin, free from old age, free from death and grief, free from hunger and thirst, which desires nothing and imagines nothing It is the persisting spirit, that which remains constant in all the vicissitudes of waking, dream and sleep, death, rebirth and deliverance. The whole account assumes that there is consciousness even in the apparently unconscious states. when we sleep, when we are drugged or stunned The gods sent Indra and the demons Virocana as their representatives to learn the truth The first suggestion is that the self is the image that we see in the eve, in water or in a mirror The conception of the self as the physical body is inadequate. To indicate that what we see in another's eye, a pail of water or a mirror is not the true self. Praja-pati asked them to put on their best clothes and look again Indra saw the difficulty and said to Praja-pati that as this self (the shadow in the water) is well adorned when the body is well adorned, well dressed when the body is well dressed, well cleaned when the body is well cleaned, so that self will also be blind if the body is blind, lame if the body is lame, crippled if the body is crippled, and will perish in fact as soon as the body perishes Such a view cannot be accepted If the self is not the body, may it be the dreaming self? The second suggestion is that the true self is "he who moves about happy in dreams' Again a difficulty was felt. Indra says that, though it is true that this dreaming self is not affected by the changes of the body, yet in dreams we feel that we are struck or chased, we experience pain and shed tears. We rage in dreams, storm with indignation, do things perverted, mean and malicious Indra feels that the self is not the same as dream-consciousness. The self is not the composite of mental states, however independent they may be of the accidents of the body. Dream states are not self-existent Indra again approaches

Praja-pati who gives him another suggestion that the self is the consciousness in deep sleep Indra feels that, in that state, there is consciousness neither of the self nor of the objective world Indra feels that he does not know himself nor does he know anything that exists He is gone to utter annihilation. But the self exists even in deep sleep. Even when the object is not present, the subject is there. The final reality is the active universal consciousness, which is not to be confused with either the bodily, or the dreaming consciousness or the consciousness in deep sleep. In the state of deep, dreamless sleep, the self wrapped round by the intellect has no consciousness of objects, but is not unconscious The true self is the absolute self, which is not an abstract metaphysical category but the authentic spiritual self The other forms belong to objectified being. Self is life, not an object It is an experience, in which the self is the knowing subject and is at the same time the known object. Self is open only to self. The life of the self is not set over against knowledge of it as an objective thing Self is not the objective reality, nor something purely subjective. The subject-object relationship has meaning only in the world of objects, in the sphere of discursive knowledge The Self is the light of lights, and through it alone is there any light in the universe. It is perpetual, abiding light. It is that which neither lives nor dies, which has neither movement nor change and which endures when all else passes away It is that which sees and not the object seen Whatever is an object belongs to the not-self. The self is the constant witness-consciousness =

The four states stand on the subjective side for the four kinds of soul, Vaiśvānara, the experiencer of gross things, Taijasa, the experiencer of the subtle, Prājňa, the experiencer of the unmanifested objectivity, and the Turīya, the Supreme Self. The Māndūkya Upanisad, by an analysis of the four modes of consciousness, waking, dream, deep sleep and illumined consciousness, makes out that the last is the basis of the other three.

On the objective side we have the cosmos, Viraj, the World-soul Hiranya-garbha, the Supreme God, Isvara, and the Absolute, Brahman By looking upon Isvara as prajna, it is suggested that the supreme intelligence who dwells in the sleeping state holds all things in an unmanifested condition. The divine wisdom sees all things, not as human reason does in parts and relations, but in the original reason of their existence, their primal truth and reality. It is what the Stoics call spermatikos or the seed Logos which is manifested in conscious beings as a number of seed logoi

In treatises on Yoga, the potential all-consciousness of the state of sleep is represented in the form of a radiant serpent called Kundalini or Vāg-devī We come across this representation in earlier treatises also In the Rg Veda, Vāc is said to be the serpent queen, sarpa-rājāī The process of Yoga consists in rousing the radiant serpent and lifting it up from the lowest sphere to the heart, where in union with prāna or life-breath its universal nature is realised and from it to the top of the skull It goes out through an opening called brahma-randhra to which corresponds in the cosmic organism the opening formed by the sun on the top of the vault of the sky

BRAHMAN AS ĀTMAN

In the early prose Upanisads, ātman is the principle of the individual consciousness and Brahman the superpersonal ground of the cosmos Soon the distinction diminishes and the two are identified God is not merely the transcendent numinous other, but is also the universal spirit which is the basis of human personality and its ever-renewing vitalising power Brahman, the first principle of the universe, is known through ātman, the inner self of man In the Satapatha Brāhmana¹ and the Chāndogya Upanisad² it is said 'Verily this whole world is Brahman,' and also 'This soul of mine within the heart, this is Brahman' 'That person who is seen in the eye, He is ātman, that is Brahman' God is both the wholly other, transcendent and utterly beyond the world and man, and yet he enters into man and lives in him and becomes the inmost content of his very existence 4

Nārāyana is the God in man who lives in constant association with nara, the human being. He is the immortal dwelling in the mortals 5 The human individual is more than the universe. He lives independently in his own inexpressible infinity as well as in the cosmic harmonies. We can be one with all cosmic existence by entering into the cosmic consciousness. We become superior

³ B U I 4 10 Cp Keith 'It is impossible to deny that the Atman-Brahman doctrine has a long previous history in the Brahmanas and is a logical development of the idea of unity of the Rg Veda' The Religion and Philosophy of the Veda and the Upanisads, p 494 Herachtus says I searched myself' The Logos is to be sought within, for man's nature is a microcosm and represents the nature of the whole

Cp Plotinus 'One that seeks to penetrate the nature of the Divine Mind must see deeply into the nature of his own soul, into the Divinest point of himself. He must first make abstraction of the body, then of the lower soul which built up that body, then of all the faculties of sense, of all desires and emotions and every such triviality, of all that leans towards the mortal. What is left after this abstraction is the part which we describe as the image of the Divine Mind, an emanation preserving some of that Divine Light 'Enneads V 3 9 to all cosmic existence by entering into the world-transcending consciousness. Answering to the four grades of consciousness, waking, dream, deep sleep, spiritual consciousness, we have the four states of the individual, sthūla (gross), sūkṣma (subtle), kārana (causal) and the pure self As Īśvara is the cause of the world, so the causal self is the source of the development of the subtle and the gross bodies ¹

THE STATUS OF THE WORLD MĀYĀ AND AVIDYĀ

The ecstasy of divine union, the bliss of realisation tempts one to disregard the world with its imperfections and look upon it as a troubled and unhappy dream. The actual fabric of the world, with its loves and hates, with its wars and battles, with its jealousies and competitions as well as its unasked helpfulness, sustained intellectual effort, intense moral struggle seems to be no more than an unsubstantive dream, a phantasmagoria dancing on the fabric of pure being Throughout the course of human history, men have taken refuge from the world of stresses, vexations and indignities in the apprehension of a spirit beyond The prayer to 'lead us from unreality to reality, from darkness to light, from death to immortality' assumes the distinction between reality, light and immortality and unreality, darkness and death. The Katha Upanisad warns us not to find reality and certainty in the unrealities and uncertainties of this world 2 The Chandogya Upanisad tells us that a covering of untruth hides from us the ultimate truth even as the surface of the earth hides from us the golden treasure hidden under it 3 The truth is covered by untruth, anrta The Brhad-aranyaka and the Isa Upanisads speak to us of the veiling of truth by a disc of gold and invoke the grace

The first tativa is the root of manifestation, called mahat or the great principle. In ahamkāra we find individual consciousness which proceeds from the intellectual principle by an individualising determination. Sometimes, citta is said to be the first product of prakti, with its triple character of buddh or discrimination, ahamkāra or self-sense and manas or mind.

of God for removing the veil and letting us see the truth.¹ According to the Svetāsvatara Upaniṣad, we can achieve the cessation of the great world-illusion, visva-māyā-nivṛttih by the worship of God.² If this aspect of spiritual experience were all, the world we live in, that of ignorance, darkness and death would be quite different from the world of underlying reality, the world of truth, light and life The distinction would become one of utter opposition between God and the world. The latter would be reduced to an evil dream from which we must wake up as soon as possible ³

Indifference to the world is not, however, the main feature of spiritual consciousness Brahman, the completely transcendent, the pure silence has another side. Brahman is apprehended in two ways. Samkara says, dvirūpam hi brahmāvagamyate, nāma-rūpa-vikāra-bhedopādhi-visistam, tad viparītam sarvopadhi-varjitam Both the Absolute and the Personal God are real, only the former is the logical prius of the latter. The soul when it rises to full attention knows itself to be related to the single universal consciousness, but when it turns outward it sees the objective universe as a manifestation of this single consciousness. The withdrawal from the world is not the conclusive end of the spiritual quest. There is a return to the world accompanied by a persistent refusal to take the world as it confronts us as final. The world has to be redeemed and it can be redeemed because it has its source in God and final tefuge in God.

There are many passages where the world of duality is suggested to be only seeming.⁴ The existence of duality is not admitted to be absolutely real. In the passage of the Chāndogya Upaniṣad regarding the modifications of the three fundamental constituents of being, fire, water and food, it is said that just as all that is made of clay, copper or iron is only a modification, a verbal expression, a simple name, the reality being clay, copper or iron, even so all things can be reduced to three primary forms of reality. It is suggested that all things are reducible to reality, being mere modifications. All this is to be understood as meaning that the Absolute stands above becoming and passing away which it transcends

In the Maitrī Upanisad, the Absolute is compared to a spark. which, made to revolve, creates apparently a fiery circle, an idea expanded by Gaudapāda in his Kārikā on the Māndūkya Upanisad This may suggest that the world is a mere appearance Even here the intention may well be to contrast the reality of the Absolute with empirical reality without making the latter an illusion

The assertion that with the knowledge of the Self all is known¹ does not exclude the reality of what is derived from the Self When the Astarcya Upanisad asserts that the universe is founded in consciousness and guided by it, it assumes the reality of the universe and not merely its apparent existence To seek the one is not to deny the many. The world of name and form has its roots in Brahman, though it does not constitute the nature of Brahman 2 The world is neither one with Brahman nor wholly other than Brahman The world of fact cannot be apart from the world of being From one being no other being is born. It exists only in another form, samsthananfarcna 3

Māyā in this view states the fact that Brahman without losing his integrity is the basis of the world. Though devoid of all specifications, Brahman is the root cause of the universe 4 'If a thing cannot subsist apart from something else, the latter is the essence of that thing. The cause is logically prior to the effect 5 Questions of temporal beginning and growth are subordinate to this relation of ground and consequent. The world does not carry its own meaning. To regard it as final and ultimate is an act of ignorance. So long as the erroneous view of the independence of the world does not disappear, our highest good will not be realised

The world is the creation of God, the active Lord. The finite is the self-limitation of the infinite. No finite can exist in and by itself. It exists by the infinite. If we seek the dynamic aspect we are inclined to repudiate the experience of pure consciousness. It is not a question of either pure consciousness or dynamic consciousness. These are the different statuses of the one Reality. They are present simultaneously in the universal awareness.

The dependence of the world on God is explained in different ways. In the Chāndogya Upanisad, Brahman is defined as tajjalān as that (tat) which gives rise to (ja), absorbs (lī) and sustains (an) the world. The Brhad-āranyaka Upanisad argues that satyam consists of three syllables, sa, ti, yam, the first and the last being real and the second unreal, madhyato anitam. The fleeting is enclosed on both sides by an eternity which is real. The world comes from Brahman and returns to Brahman. Whatever exists owes its being to Brahman. The different metaphors are used to indicate how the universe rises from its central root, how the emanation takes place while the Brahman remains ever-complete, undiminished 4 'As a spider sends forth and draws in (its thread), as herbs grow on the earth, as the hair (grows) on the head and the body of a living person, so from the Imperishable arises here the universe's Again, 'As from a

It is not a making of something out of nothing. It is not making so much as becoming It is the self-projection of the Supreme Everything exists in the secret abode of the Supreme 2 The primary reality contains within itself the source of its own motion and change

The Svetāsvatara Upamsad mentions the different views of creation held at the time of its composition, that it is due to time, to nature, to necessity, to chance, to the elements, to the Person or the combination of these It repudiates all these views and traces the world to the power of the Supreme 3

The Svetāśvatara Upanisad describes God as māyin, the wonder-working powerful Being, who creates the world by His

² In the Rg Veda there are suggestions that the Imperishable is the basis of the world and that a personal Lord Brahmanas-pair (X 72 2), Visva-karman (literally the All-maker), Purusa (X 90), Hiranya-garbha (X 121 1) produces the world The Upanisads refer to the early cosmological speculations, but these are not their real interest

3 Gaudapāda mentions different theories of creation Some look upon creation as the manifestation of the superhuman power of God, vibhūti, others look upon it as of the same nature as dream and illusion, svapna-māyā-svarūpā, others trace it to the will of God icchā-mātram prabhoh srstih Still others look upon kāla or time as the source, some look upon creation as intended for the enjoyment of God (bhoga), still others attribute it to mere sport (krīdā), but Gaudapāda's own view is that creation is the expression of the nature of the Supreme, 'for what desire is possible for Him whose desire is always fulfilled?'

devasyasa svabhāvo'yam āpta-kumasya kā sprhā Kārikā I 6-9

The world is the revelation of God's nature. To the question, why does perfect being instead of remaining eternally concentrated in itself suffer the accident of manifesting this world, the answer is that manifesting is of the very nature of God. We need not seek a cause or a motive or a purpose for that which is, in its nature, eternally self-existent and free. The sole object of the dance of Siva is the dance itself.

powers. Here māyā is used in the sense in which the Rg Veda employs it, the divine art or power by which the divinity makes a likeness of the eternal prototypes or ideas inherent in his nature Indra is declared to have assumed many shapes by his māyā,2 Māyā is the power of Iśvara from which the world arises. He has made this world, 'formed man out of the dust of the ground and breathed into him a living soul.' All the works of the world are wrought by Him. Every existence contained in time is ontologically present in creative eternity. The Supreme is both transcendent and immanent. It is the one, breathing breathless, tad ekam, anid avatam. It is the manifest and the unmanifest, vyaktāvyaktāh, the silent and the articulate, śabdāśabdāh. It is the real and the unreal, sad-asat,3

While the world is treated as an appearance in regard to pure being, which is indivisible and immutable, it is the creation of Iśvara who has the power of manifestation. Māyā is that which 🗸 measures out, moulds forms in the formless. God has control of māyā, he is not subject to it If God were subject to māyā he would not be infinite supreme existence. Any being compelled to manifest itself is not free Īśvara has in him the power of manifestation, non-manifestation and other-manifestation, kartum, a-kartum, anyathā-kartum Brahman is logically prior to Īśvara who has the power of manifestation, and takes him over into His transcendental being when He is not manifesting. His nature

This dual nature of the Supreme provides the basis for the reality of personality in God and man, and so for authentic religious experience. This world, far from being unreal, is intimately connected with the Divine Reality. This complex evolving universe is a progressive manifestation of the powers of the Supreme Spirit from matter to spiritual freedom, from anna to annaa. The purpose of the cosmic evolution is to reveal the spirit underlying it. God lives, feels and suffers in every one of us, and in course of time His attributes, knowledge, beauty and love will be revealed in each of us.

When the Katha Upanisad says that the Supreme Lord experiences the results of deeds, it suggests that we are the images and likenesses of God, and when we experience the results of our deeds, He does also There is an intimate connection between God and the world of souls 2

Deussen holds that the idealistic monism of Yājñavalkya is the main teaching of the Upanisads and the other doctrines of theism, and cosmogonism are deviations from it caused by the inability of man to remain on the heights of pure speculative thought. The view which regards the universe as actually real, the Ātman as the universe which we know, and the theistic developments are said to be departures from the exalted idealism of Yājñavalkya. It is not necessary to look upon the theism emphasised in the Katha and the Svetāśvatara Upanisads as a declension from the pure monistic idealism. It is in the direct line of development of Upanisad thought

The Absolute is not a metaphysical abstraction or a void of silence. It is the absolute of this relative world of manifestation. What is subject to change and growth in the world of becoming reaches its fulfilment in the world of the Absolute. The Beyond is not an annulling or a cancellation of the world of becoming, but its transfiguration. The Absolute is the life of this life, the truth of this truth

If the world were altogether unreal, we cannot progress from the unreal to the Real If a passage is possible from the empirical to the Real, the Real is to be found in the empirical also. The ignorance of the mind and the senses and the apparent futilities Ψ of human life are the material for the self-expression of that Being, for its unfolding. Brahman accepts world existence The Ultimate Reality sustains the play of the world and dwells in it That is why we are able to measure the distance of the things of the world from the Absolute and evaluate their grades of being I There is nothing in this world which is not lit up by God Even the material objects which lack the intelligence to discover the nature of the divine ground of their being are the emanations of the creative energy of God and they are able to reveal to the discerning eye the divine within their material frames What is not possible for manimate and non-rational beings is open to the rational human being. He can attain to a knowledge of the divine ground of his being He is not coerced into it, but has to attain it by the exercise of his choice. The unchangeableness of the Supreme does not mean that the universe is a perfectly articulated mechanism in which everything is given from the beginning. The world is real as based on Brahman; it is unreal by itself

Cosmic existence partakes of the character of the real and the

unreal It is aspiring to become completely real ¹ The Chāndogya Upanisad rejects the view that the world was originally a-sat or non-being, and from it all existence was produced ² It affirms 'In the beginning this world was just being, one only without a second '3

The Supreme is described as a kavi, a poet, an artist, a maker or creator, not a mere imitator Even as art reveals man's wealth of life, so does the world reveal the immensity of God's life. The Brahma Sūtra refers to the creation of the world as an act of līlā, play, the joy of the poet, eternally young

If immutability is the criterion of reality, then the world of manifestation has no claim to reality Change is the pervading feature of the world Changing things imply non-existence at the beginning and non-existence at the end 4 They are not constantly present Mortality is imprinted on all beings who are subject to birth, decay, dissolution and death This very planet will decline and dissolve While change is the mark of the relative world, this changing world reaches its fulfilment in the Absolute What is incomplete in the relative world of becoming is completed in the absolute world of being

Māyā is also used for prakri, the objective principle which the personal God uses for creation All nature, even in the lowest, is in ceaseless movement, aspiring to the next higher stage, of which it is itself an image or lower manifestation Prakri, not-self, matter all but cast out from the sphere of being, is tending feebly to get back to the self, receives form and is thus linked up with Absolute Being Even matter is Brahman 5 Prakri by itself is more a demand of thought than a fact of existence Even the lowest existence has received the impress of the Creative Self. lute non-being is non-existent. It is impossible in a world which flows freely from the bounty of being Prakṛti is called non-being It is not strictly correct. This description indicates its distance from being. It is the ultimate possibility on the side of descent from the Divine, almost non-being, but not utter non-being.

While prakrh is said to be the maya of God, its forms seem to us individual souls to be external to us. It is the source of our ignorance of its real nature.

While the world is created by the power of māyā of Īśvara, the individual soul is bound down by māyā in the sense of avidyā or ignorance The manifestation of Primordial Being is also a concealment of His original nature. The self-luminous moves about clothed in the splendours of the cosmic light which are not His real nature. We must tear the cosmic veil and get behind the golden brightness which Savity has diffused. The Upanisad says 'Two birds, inseparable friends cling to the same tree. One of them eats the sweet fruit, the other looks on without eating. On the same tree man sits, grieving, immersed, bewildered by his own impotence (an-īśa) But when he sees the other lord (īśa), contented and knows his glory, then his grief passes away 'z We mistake the multiplicity for ultimate reality. If we overlook the unity, we are lost in ignorance

When we get to the concept of prakrti we are in the realm of Hiranya-garbha. The similes employed by the Upanisads, salt and water, fire and sparks, spider and thread, flute and sound assume the existence of an element different from being Into the original stillness of prakrti, Hiranya-garbha or Brahmā sends sound, nāda-brahma By his ecstatic dance the world evolves. This is the meaning of the symbol of Nata-rāja. His dance is not an illusion It is a timeless fact of the Divine Reality The forms are manifestations of the Real, not arbitrary inventions out of nothing. Form, rūpa, is the revelation of the formless a-rūpa. Nāma, name, is not the word by which we describe the object, but it is the power or the character of reality which the form of a thing embodies The Infinite is nameless for it includes all names The emphasis right through is on the dependence of the world on Brahman The relative rests in the Absolute There can be no echo without a noise The world is not self-explanatory, it is not the cause of itself. It is an effect. The Isa Upanisad indicates that the basic reality is the One, and the derivative and dependent reality is the many. When the Kena Upanisad says that Brahman is the mind of mind, the life of life, it does not assert the unreality of mind and life, but affirms the inferiority, the incompleteness of our present existence. All that we find in the world is an imperfect representation, a divided expression of what is eternally in the Absolute Being

The world depends on Brahman, and not Brahman on the world 'God is the dwelling-place of the universe, but the universe is not the dwelling-place of God' is a well-known Rabbinic dictum. The world of experience with its three states of waking, dream and deep sleep is based on the subject-object relation. This duality is the principle of all manifestation. The objects are perceived in both dream and waking and the distinction of seer and seen is present in both. The world of manifestation is dependent on the Absolute. The Absolute Spirit which transcends the distinction between the subject and the object is logically prior to the manifested world 2. The world is a process of becoming, it is not being

The Upanisads make it clear that the waking state and the dream state are quite distinct. The objects of the dream state are illusory, not so those of waking experience 'There are no chariots in that state (of dreaming), no horses, no roads. He himself creates chariots, horses, roads '3 Imaginary objects exist only during the time we imagine them, kalpana-kāla, but factual objects exist not only when we perceive them but also when we do not perceive them, bāhyāś ca dvaya-kālāh 4 The spatio-temporal order is a fact, not a state of mind or a phase of consciousness

Avidyā is mentioned in the Upanisads as the source of delusion. The Katha Upanisad speaks of people living in ignorance and thinking themselves wise, who move about wandering in search of reality, like blind men following the blind If they had lodged themselves in vidyā, wisdom, instead of avidyā, ignorance, they would easily have seen the truth 1 The Chandogya Upanisad distinguishes between vidya or knowledge which is power and avidyā or ignorance which is impotence 2 While māyā is more cosmic in significance, avidyā is more subjective. We are subject to avidyā when we look upon the multiplicity of objects and egos as final and fundamental Such a view falsifies the truth It is the illusion of ignorance. The world of multiplicity is out there, and has its place, but if we look upon it as a self-existing cosmos, we are making an error,3 While the world process reveals certain possibilities of the Real, it also conceals the full nature of the Real Avidyā breeds selfishness and becomes a knot in the heart which we should untie before we can get possession of the Self in the recesses of our heart 4 The Prasna Upanisad tells us that we cannot reach the world of Brahman unless we have shaken off the crookedness in us, the falsehood (anriam) in us, the illusion (māyā) in us 5

The world has the tendency to delude us into thinking that it is all, that it is self-dependent, and this delusive character of the world is also designated māyā in the sense of avidyā. When we are asked to overcome māyā, it is an injunction to avoid worldliness. Let us not put our trust in the things of this world. Māyā is concerned not with the existence of the world but with its meaning, not with the factuality of the world but with the way in which we look upon it

There are passages in the Upanişads which make out that the world is an appearance, vācārambhaṇaṁ vikāro nāmadheyam, while Reality is pure being. There are others which grant reality to the world, though they maintain that it has no reality apart from Brahman Samkara tells us that the former is the true teaching of the Upanişads, while the latter view is put forward only tentatively as a first step in the teaching to be later

⁴ M.U. II. 1, 10

withdrawn The reality conceded to the world is not ultimate It is only empirical

If we keep in mind the fourfold character of the Supreme, we shall avoid confusion in regard to the status of the world. If we concentrate attention on Brahman, the Absolute, we feel that the world is not independent of Brahman but rests in Brahman. The relationship between the two cannot be logically articulated. If we turn to the personal Iśwara, we know that the world is the creation of Brahman and not its organic expression. The power of creation is called māyā. If we turn to the world process which is a perpetual becoming, it is a mixture of being and non-being, sat and asat, the divine principle and praktin Hiranya-garbha and his world are both subject to time, and should be distinguished from the eternal. But the temporal becoming is by no means false

As to why the Supreme has this fourfold character, why it is what it is, we can only accept it as the given reality. It is the ultimate irrationality in the sense that no logical derivation of the given is possible. It is apprehended by us in spiritual consciousness, and accounts for the nature of experience in all its aspects. It is the only philosophical explanation that is possible or necessary.

THE INDIVIDUAL SELF

 $J\bar{\imath}va$ is literally, 'that which breathes,' from $\jmath\bar{\imath}v$ 'to breathe' It referred originally to the biological aspect of man's nature which goes on throughout life, in waking, dream and sleep. It is called purusa in the sense of puri-saya or 'that which dwells in the citadel of the heart'. This means that the biological serves the ends of another, the soul or psyche. It is this soul which reaps the fruits of deeds and survives the death of the physical body. It is the bhoktr, the enjoyer, kartr, the doer \imath It is the vijūāna-maya ātmā. The $\jmath\bar{\imath}va$ consists of a material body, the principle of breath (prāna), regulating the unconscious activities of the individual, and the principle of conscious activities (manas) which uses the five sensory organs (indrivas) of sight, hearing, touch, smell and taste and the five organs of action, viz speech, hands, feet, excretory and generative organs. All these are organised by vijñāna or buddhi. The basis of the individuality of the ego is vijñāna or intelligence which draws round itself mind, life and body, The ego belongs to the relative world, is a stream of experience, a fluent mass of life, a centre round which our experiences of sense and mind gather. At the back of this whole structure is the Universal Consciousness, Atman, which is our true being.

The human individual is a complex of five elements, anna, prāna, manas, vijnāna and ānanda. The Highest Spirit which is the ground of all being, with which man's whole being should get united at the end of his journey, does not contribute to his self-sense. Life and matter are organised into the gross physical body, sthūla-śarīra, mind and life into the subtle body, sūksma-śarīra, intelligence into the causal body, kāraņa-śarīra and Atman, the Universal Self is the supreme being sustaining the others The ego is the manifestation of the Universal Self using memory and moral being which are changing formations. Purusa is sometimes used for the Atman which is higher than buddh Buddh belongs to the objective hierarchy of being Purusa is the subjective light of consciousness that is reflected m all beings

The natural sciences, physics and chemistry, anatomy and physiology, psychology and sociology treat man as an object of inquiry. They show that man is a link in the chain of living beings, one among many He has a body and a mind which belong to him, but his self is not derived from any of these, though it is at the root of them all All empirical causalities and biological processes of development apply to his outer being, but not to his self. The physical, the biological, the psychological and the logical aspects are aspects of his nature, his kośas, as the Taiturīya Upanisad calls them. There are great possibilities of empirical investigation, but man is more than what he knows about himself.

The ego is a unity of body, life, mind and intelligence. It is not a mere flux, as some early Buddhists and Hindus thought. Intelligence which is the unifying principle gives us the egoconsciousness Memory is one factor which helps to preserve the continuity of the ego which is also influenced by a number of factors which are not present to our memory and are hardly grasped by our surface consciousness. The sub-conscious plays a great part in it. The nature of the ego depends on the principle of organisation and the experience to be organised. As we have an enormous variety of experiences with which we can identify ourselves, an infinite number of objects which we can pursue. fame, career, possessions or power, we have an infinite number of individuals marked out by their past and present experiences, their education and environment. What we are depends on what we have been The ego is a changing formation on the background of the Eternal Being, the centre round which our mental and vital activities are organised. The ego is perpetually changing, moving up and down, up towards union with the divine godhead or down to the fiendish extremes of selfishness, stupidity and sensuality The self-transcending capacity of the viva is the proof that it is not the limited entity it takes itself to be

The hierarchies of existence and value correspond. The order of phenomena which has the lowest degree of reality in the existential scale has the lowest degree of value in the ethical or spiritual scale. The human individual is higher than the animal, plant or mineral

What is the relation of the Universal Self to the individual selves? Different views are held on the matter Samkara believes that the Universal Self is identical with the individual self. The individual self is eternally one with and also different from the Universal Self, says Rāmānuja. The individual self is eternally different from the Universal Self according to Madhva.1 When the soul is said to be an anisa or fragment of the Divine mind, it is to indicate that it is subsequent to the Divine mind, as a recipient of the Divine idea. The souls therefore serve as matter for the Divine Forms. This is the truth indicated in the Samkhya theory of the multiplicity of selves Though the self is one in all, in the manifested world, there is an amsa, fragment. part or ray of the self which presides over the movements of our personal lives through the ages. This persistent divine form is the real individuality which governs the mutations of our being This is not the limited ego, but the Infinite Spirit reflecting itself in our personal experience. We are not a mere flux of body. life and mind thrown on the screen of a Pure Spirit which does not affect us in any way. Behind this flux there is the stable power of our being through which the Infinite Spirit manifests itself. The Divine has many modes of manifestation, and at many levels, and the fulfilment of the purposes of these modes constitutes the supreme scope of the eternal kingdom In the world of manifestation the ground of created being is God's idea of it, which, because it is divine, is more real than the creature itself. The soul, therefore, represents an idea of the divine mind, and the different souls are the members of the Supreme. The soul draws its idea of perfection from the Divine Creator who has given it existence. The soul's substantial existence derives from the Divine mind, and its perfection consists in the vision of the Divine mind, in its effectuating the divine pattern for it in its consciousness and character.

There does not seem to be any suggestion that the individual egos are unreal They all exist only through the Self and have no reality apart from It. The insistence on the unity of the Supreme Self as the constitutive reality of the world and of the individual souls does not negate the empirical reality of the i Commenting on the sūtra, amso nānā-vyapadesād anyathā cāpī (the individual spirit is a part of the Lord masmuch as it is not taught that they are different and also the contrary), S. indicates that 'the individual and the Lord, are related as sparks to fire, jīva īšvarasyāmšo bhavitum arhati, yathāgner visphulingāh, in which the heat is the same (notwithstanding that the sparks are distinguishable from fire)' and concludes that 'from these two doctrines of difference and non-difference the meaning of participation, amsatva, follows.' S.B II. 3 43

latter The plurality of individual souls is admitted by the Upanişads. The individuals do not resolve themselves in the Universal Absolute so long as the world of manifestation is functioning. The released individuals know themselves as the Self and not as the psycho-physical vehicles which are animated by the Self and so are incarnations of the Self. These vehicles are causally determined and are subject to change.

The individual is, in a sense, created by God after His own image and in His own likeness, but he has his creaturely form. We do not know our own possibilities. The individual ego is subject to avidyā or ignorance when it believes itself to be separate and different from all other egos. The result of this separatist ego-sense, ahamkāra, is failure to enter into harmony and unity with the universe. This failure expresses itself in physical suffering and mental discord. Selfish desire is the badge of subjection or bondage. When the individual shakes off this avidyā, he becomes free from all selfishness, possesses all and enjoys all i

The unity of the Self does not make the distinctions of the individual souls irrelevant. There is no mixing up of the fruits of action, as the different individual selves are kept distinct by their association with buddhi. Our lives become meaningful in so far as they partake of the divine logos. The logos is seen in close connection with the logical or rational element in us. The Divine Reason is immanent in our reason. The ego's possession of intelligence gives it the capacity for moral choice. It may either turn to the Indwelling Spirit or pursue the separate interests of the ego. It may open itself to the Self or shut itself away from It. One leads to light and life, the other to darkness and death. We have the seeds of both in us. We may live a life controlled by flesh and blood and earth-born intellect or we may lay ourselves open to God and let Him work in us. As we choose the one or the other, we are led to death or immortality. When we forget our true nature and lose ourselves in the things of the world, we have evil and suffering

Alienation from our true nature is hell, and union with it is heaven There is a perpetual strain in human life, an effort to reach from the arbitrary into an ideal state of existence. When we divinise our nature, our body, mind and spirit work flawlessly together and attain a rhythm which is rare in life

Without the individual there is neither bondage nor liberation. The Eternal in His transcendent form as Brahman or cosmic being as Iśvara does not arrive at immortality. It is the individual who is subject to ignorance and who rises to self-knowledge. The self-expression of the Supreme through the individuals will continue until it is completed. The Divine possesses always its unity, and Its aim in the cosmic process is to possess it in an infinite experience through many conscious selves. So long as we are subject to ignorance, we stand away from God and are immersed in our limited egos. When we rise to self-knowledge, we are taken up into the Divine Being and become aware of the Infinite, Universal Consciousness in which we live.

INTUITION AND INTELLECT. VIDYA (KNOWLEDGE) AND AVIDYA (IGNORANCE)

If buddh, vyjāāna, intelligence, has its being turned towards the Universal Self it develops intuition or true knowledge, Wisdom. But ordinarily, intelligence is engaged in discursive reasoning and reaches a knowledge which is, at best, imperfect, through the processes of doubt, logic and skilful demonstration. It reflects on the data supplied by manas or the sense-mind with its knowledge rooted in sensations and appetites. At the intellectual level we grope with an external vision of things, where objects are extrinsically opposed to one another. We are besieged by error and incapacity. Integral knowledge possesses its object truly and securely. Nothing is external to it. Nothing is other than itself. Nothing is divided or in conflict within its established. By the pursuit of delusion we reach death, by the pursuit of truth we attain immortality.

all-comprehensive self-awareness. It is the means of knowledge and knowledge itself

Intuitive knowing is immediate as distinct from the discursive and mediate knowledge. It is more immediate than sensory intuition, for it overcomes the distinction between the knower and the known which subsists in sense-intuition. It is the perfect knowledge, while all other knowledge is incomplete and imperfect in so far as it does not bring about an identification between subject and object. All other knowledge is indirect and has only symbolic or representative value. The only generally effective knowledge is that which penetrates into the very nature of things But in lower forms of knowledge this penetration of the subject into the object is limited and partial Scientific understanding assumes that an object can be known only if it is broken up into its simpler constituents. If anything organic is handled in this manner, its significance is lost. By employing intuitive consciousness we know the object with less distortion and more actuality. We get close to perceiving the thing as it is / Knowledge presupposes unity or oneness of thought and being, a unity that transcends the differentiation of subject and object. Such knowledge is revealed in man's very existence. It is unveiled rather than acquired. Knowledge is concealed in ignorance and when the latter is removed the former manifests itself. What we are, that we behold, and what we behold, that we are Our thought, our life and our being are uplifted in simplicity and we are made one with truth. Though we cannot understand or describe, we taste and we possess. We become new 2. When the beatific vision of Absolute Being has

The report which the mind and the senses give, so long as they are unenlightened by the spirit in us, is a misleading report. Yet that report is the basis from which we have to proceed. What the world and the individual seem to be are a distortion of what they really are, and yet through that distortion we arrive at the reality. Even as the conclusions of common sense are corrected by those of scientific understanding, the conclusions of the latter require to be corrected by the light of the spirit in us The abstractions of the intellect require to be converted into the actuality of spiritual experience and the concrete vision of the soul.

If the real is misconceived as an object of knowledge, it cannot be known. Empirical objects may be known by outer observation or inner introspection But the self cannot divide itself into the knower and the known. Logical reasoning is incapable of comprehending the living unity of God and man, the absolute and the relative. Logical incapacity is not evidence of actual impossibility. Reality unites what discursive reason is incapable of holding together. Every atom of life is a witness to the oneness and duality of God and the world. Being can never be objectified or externalised. It is co-inherent and co-existent in man. It is unknowable because we identify existence with objectivity This is true, to a limited extent, of purely external things like tables and chairs. They are not to be reduced to sensations or concepts arising in the knowing mind But spiritual reality is not revealed in the way in which objects of the natural world or principles of logic are apprehended Yājāavalkya tells us that the self is its own light when the sun has set, when the moon has set, when the fire is put out, àtmasvāsya jyotir bhavati i It is our deepest being behind the vestures of body, life, mind and intellect. Objectivity is not the criterion of reality, but the criterion is reality itself revealed in our very being. We ask for a criterion of knowledge on the assumption of a duality between the knowing subject and the known object. If the object appears alien and impenetrable, then the question of knowing it becomes a problem. But no object can be set in opposition to the spirit and so the question of criterion does not arise. True knowledge is an integral creative activity of the spirit which does not know anything external at all. For it everything is its own life. Here there is identity, possession, absorption of the object at the deepest level. Truth in spiritual life is neither the reflection nor the expression of any other reality. It is reality itself. Those who know the truth become the truth brahma-vid brahmaiva bhavati. It is not a question of having an idea or a perception of the real. It is just the revelation of the real. It is the illumination of being and of life itself. It is satyam, yāānam. Knowledge and being are the same thing, inseparable aspects of a single reality, being no longer even distinguishable in that sphere where all is without duality.

Where there is duality, there one sees another, hears another We have objective knowledge ¹ While vijāāna deals with the world of duality, ānanda implies the fundamental identity of subject and object, non-duality Objectification is estrangement. The objective world is the 'fallen' world, disintegrated and enslaved, in which the subject is alienated from the object of knowledge. It is the world of disruption, disunion, alienation. In the 'fallen' condition, man's mind is never free from the compulsion exercised by objective realities. We struggle to overcome disunion, estrangement, to become superior to the objective world with its laws and determinations.

We cannot, however, become aware of the true life in its unity and multiplicity, in its absoluteness and relativity, if we do not free ourselves from the world of divided and isolated objects. In the objective world where estrangement and limitations prevail, there are impenetrable entities, but in the knowledge where we have fullness and boundlessness of life nothing is external, but all is known from within Intellect moves from object to object. Unable to comprehend them all it retains their multiplicity. Intellectual knowledge is a scattered, broken movement of the one undivided infinite life which is all-possessing and ever satisfied. Intuitive knowing is un-imprisoned by the divisions of space, successions of time or sequences of cause and effect. Our intellectual picture is a shadow cast by the integral knowledge which possesses the object truly and securely

Reality is a fact, and facts are apprehended by intuition, whether perceptual or non-perceptual The divine primordial reality is not a fact of the empirical world, and yet as the central spiritual fact we must have a direct apprehension of it Our logical knowledge can give us indirect approximation to it but not a direct grasp of it. The seers of the Upanisads not only have deep vision but are able to translate their visions into intelligible and persuasive speech. They can do so only through hints and images, suggestions and symbols, for they are not susceptible of adequate expression.

The Upanisads distinguish between a-parā vidyā, lower knowledge and parā vidyā or higher wisdom. While the former gives us knowledge of the Vedas and the sciences, the latter helps us to gain the knowledge of the Imperishable 2 The first principle disguises itself.3 In the Brhad-aranyaka Upanisad, the self is seen as the reality of reality 4 The reality of the world is the empirical; the true reality is the atman, the self which the empirical reality conceals A distinction is made between the knower of texts and the knower of the self in the Chandogya Upamsad 5 Svetaketu cannot understand the question of rebirth, despite much Vedic learning. The Taitirīya Upaniṣad reduces the knowledge of the Vedas to an inferior position by assigning it to mano-maya (mind-made) self which has to be surmounted before final truth is attained. The self is perceived, according to the Katha Upanisad, not by logical reason but by spiritual contemplation, adhyātma-yoga. The real is not attained by force of intellect or by much learning but is revealed to the aspirant whose will is at rest in Him. We realise God by the clarity of illumination. Thana-prasādena.

The Brhad-āranyaka Upamṣad teaches that, while those who put their trust in the intellect cannot attain to a knowledge of Brahman, yet there is an apprehension of His being by those who are childlike. Bālya includes humility, receptivity or teachableness and an earnest search The writer asks us to give up the pride of learning, pānditya. A self-denial which includes our intellectual pride and power is demanded Purity of intellect is different from congestion of it. To attain purity of vision, we require a childlike nature which we can get by tranquillising the senses, simplifying the heart and cleaning the mind.

It is through quietening the strivings of the will and the empirical intellect that the conditions are realised for the revelation of the Supreme in the individual soul 'Therefore having become calm, subdued, quiet, patiently enduring and collected, one sees the Self just in the self '6

Even as we have an intellectual discipline for the theoretical understanding of the world, we have a moral and spiritual discipline for the direct apprehension of truth. Even as we cannot understand the art of swimming by talking about it and can learn it only by getting into the water and practising swimming, so also no amount of theoretical knowledge can serve as a substitute for the practice of the life of spirit. We can know God only by becoming godlike. To become godlike is to become aware of the light in us, by returning consciously to the divine centre within us, where we have always been without our knowing it. Detachment (vairāgya) is the essential means for the attainment of wisdom (iñāna). Only the pure in . heart can see God.

We must cultivate a religious disposition. God is revealed only to those who believe that He is 2 When in doubt, later tradition asks us to give the benefit of the doubt to the theist. For if there is no God, there is no harm in believing in Him: if there is, the atheist would suffer,3 Faith, as trust in the universe, in its rehability, in its essential soundness and decency, is the starting-point of spiritual development.

Spiritual inclination is essential for the pursuit of spiritual life. In the Brhad-āranyaka Upanişad, Yājñavalkya offers to divide all his earthly possessions between his two wives, Kātyāyanī and Maitreyī. The latter asks whether the whole world filled with wealth can give her life eternal. Yājñavalkya says: 'No, your life will be just like that of people who have plenty of things, but there is no hope of life eternal through wealth,' Maitreyi spurns the riches of the world remarking, 'What shall I do with that which will not make me immortal?' Yājñavalkya recogniscs the spiritual fitness of his wife and teaches her the highest wisdom

Ethical preparation is insisted on. If we do not abstain from wrong-doing, if we are not composed in our minds, we cannot attain to spiritual wisdom.4 Our moral being must be purged of all evil The Svetāšvatara Upanisad tells us that we should cleanse our natures to reach the goal, since even a mirror can reflect an image properly only if it is cleansed of its impurities.5 We must renounce selfish desire, surrender material possessions, become bereft of egotism. The path is 'sharp as the edge of a razor and hard to cross, difficult to tread."6

A teacher who has attained the goal may help the aspiring soul? Truth has not only to be demonstrated but also communicated. It is relatively easy to demonstrate a truth, but it can be communicated only by one who has thought, willed and

The individual should develop the habit of introversion, of abstracting from the outside world and looking within himself By a process of abstraction we get behind knowing, feeling and willing to the essential Self, the God within. We must silence our speech, mind and will. We cannot hear the voice of the still spirit in us, so long as we are lost in vain talk, mental rambling and empty desires. The mind must strip away its outer sheaths in complete detachment, return to its inward quiet and fix its attention on the essential Self which is the ground and reality of the whole universe. The Mundaka Upanişad brings out the need for concentrated attention and undistracted effort. An ordered, disciplined training of all our powers, a change of mind, heart and will is demanded.

Several forms of meditation are advised Symbols (pratīka) are used as supports for meditation. We are free to use the symbols which are most in conformity with our personal tendencies. Meditation on the pranava is suggested in the Māndūkya Upanisad.

It is said that the Self cannot be realised except by those whom the Self chooses 3 Self-realisation is possible through the grace of the Divine God-vision is the fruit of strenuous effort and Divine grace 4 Only the Spirit in us can raise us to the spiritual status. The Real, which is the basis of this manifold world of things and minds, can be apprehended directly and immediately only by those who fulfil certain conditions and submit to the leadings of the spirit. We do not so much hold the idea of the Real as the idea holds us. We are possessed by it

Vidyā and andyā are two ways of apprehending Reality

^{*} CU VI 14 2 * III 1 8 3 Katha I 2 23 MU III 2 3 4 Cp St Bernard 'Grace is necessary to salvation, free will equally so, but grace in order to give salvation, free will in order to receive it Therefore we should not attribute part of the good work to grace and part to free will, it is performed in its entirety by the common and inseparable action of both, entirely by grace, entirely by free will, but springing from the first in the second'

Both are forms of relative knowledge and belong to the manifested universe Knowledge formulated logically is not equivalent to a direct and immediate apprehension of the Real, Whatever words we use, whatever concepts we employ, fall short of reality 1 The anubhava is beyond all manifestation and is complete in itself Vidyā stresses the harmony and interconnections of elements which make up the world: avidyā the separateness, mutual independence and strife. Vidyā helps us to appreciate intellectually the intelligible ideas about the nature of the Divine ground and the nature of the direct experience of it in relation to other experiences. It indicates the means by which we can attain Brahman. Such a system of theological doctrine points out that there is nothing intrinsically self-contradictory about the postulate of religion, viz the divine reality, and that it is also empirically verifiable if only we are willing to submit to a discipline. The theological knowledge or vidyā is different from the experience or anubhava of it The experience is recorded as a pure and direct intellectual intuition in sruts. When we reflect on the experiences or their records and reduce them to a rational order we have smrti. While the first is the domain of metaphysical principles, the second applies these principles to individual and social conduct Vidyā is nearer the truth than avidyā

But vidyā is also understood as jñāna which is of the essential nature of the Divine Reality. It is then eternal wisdom which is not the knowledge possessed by any individual. It is the wisdom hidden beneath the sheaths of ignorance It is one with the Supreme Self, which is self-evident and needs no proof, svalah-stddha, self-valid certainty

Though intuitive wisdom is different from knowledge of the senses or anything we can achieve by logical reflection, it is not to be confused with occultism, obscurantism, or extravagant emotion It is not magical insight or heavenly vision, or special revelation obtained through supernatural powers. What we

It is the possession of the soul or it is the soul that penetrates into its own ground and depth and becomes essential being. It springs from it of necessity when it meditates on itself. This wisdom is eternal, universal and necessary for Samkara. It cannot be destroyed though it may be obscured

All the same, the tradition of thought has been strong in the Upanisads We lead up to experience through intellectual knowledge For those who are incapable of integral insight, perception and inference are the only available means I Even men of experience do not contradict rational thought, though they go beyond it.

ETHICS

The Upanisads insist on the importance of ethical life 2 They repudiate the doctrine of the self-sufficiency of the ego and emphasise the practice of moral virtues. Man is responsible for his acts. Evil is the free act of the individual who uses his freedom for his own exaltation. It is fundamentally the choice which affirms the finite, independent self, its lordship and acquisitiveness against the universal will Evil is the result of our alienation from the Real If we do not break with evil, we cannot attain freedom 3

Man is of the divine race, but he has in him the element of non-being, which exposes him to evil As a spiritual being he can burst the revolving circle of nature and become a citizen of another world in unity with Absolute Being who is his creative source. Man is the mediator between God and nature and has to complete the work of creation by the incamation of wisdom. He must illumine what is dark and strengthen what is weak in him. His entire being should labour to become one with the Divine Our fallen nature, sunk in sin, is felt as contrary to the Real and yet as existent. The self feels itself to be in contradiction to all that is supremely real. There is the pain of discord between the existent and the Real. In moral life the self feels itself divided against itself. And vet the struggle itself is impossible unless we look upon the desire for the divine and the consciousness of rebellion as belonging to the same self The felt contradiction is possible only through the reality which is above the discord. The antithesis between what we wish to be and what we are is implicitly their unity. The divine consciousness and will must become our consciousness and will This means that our actual self must cease to be a private self; we must give up our particular will, die to our ego, by surrendering its whole nature, its consciousness and character to the Divine.1

The freedom of the human individual is assumed, though the limitations of karma are mentioned 'He fetters himself by himself, as a bird by its nest.' The freedom of the individual increases to the extent to which he identifies himself with the Absolute in him, the antar-yāmin. If we leave the world after having known the true self, then our life in all worlds is the life of freedom

Some theistic Upanişads say that the inner power, the Divine, caused the man whom He will lead on high from these worlds to do good works and He causes the man whom He will lead downwards to do evil works 3 In theism the stress is on Divine providence In the Svetāśvatara Upamsad, the Self is the overseer of all actions, who apportions to each person his qualities, who executes justice, who restrains the evil, allots good fortune and brings to maturity the actions of the individual souls 1

The general impression that the Upanişads require worlddenial is not quite correct. They insist on a spirit of detachment, varragya, which is not indifference to the world. It is not abandonment of objects but non-attachment to them We do not raise ourselves above the world by contempt for the world It is the spirit of equanimity which is insisted on To be tranqui is to envy no man, to have no possessions that another can take from us, to fear none When the Hindu thinkers ask us to adopt samnyāsa or relinquishment of home and possessions, to accept the three great renunciations, consecrated in the three vows, evangelical counsels of poverty, obedience and chastity, they point to self-denial as the root of spiritual life

Spirit of renunciation does not mean neglect of social duties Samnyāsa does not mean that we owe no duties to the world, we free ourselves only from ritualistic duties. Rare fruits c spirit ripen on the soil of detachment 2 There is a popular verse which makes out that one should give up attachment, but I one is not capable of it, let him cultivate attachment, only it should be attachment to all 3

We should release ourselves from selfish likes and dislikes The Divine cannot use our mind and body so long as we wish to use them for our own ends 4

Detachment is opposed to attachment, not to enjoyment

VI 11, 12, 4, V 5ff
When Ernest Renan described St Francis as 'the one perfect Christian' it was felt to be an exaggeration Hardly anyone else in the Christian world comes so close to the ideal set forth in the Gospels 'He that renounceth not everything that he hath, he cannot be my disciple ' We feel that these demands are excessive and even fantastic We excuse ourselves by saying that Jesus did not mean all that he is reported to have said or that his words were not of general application. We make compromises, while St Francis did not allow any compromises

4 Cp St John of the Cross 'The soul that is attached to anything, however much good there may be in it, will not arrive at the liberty of divine union For whether it be a strong wire rope or a slender and delicate thread that holds the bird, it matters not, if it really holds it fast, for until the cord be broken the bird cannot fly So the soul, held by the bonds of human affections, however slight they may be, cannot, while they last, make its way to God '

Enjoy through renunciation is the advice of the Isa Upanisad. Good and evil do not depend on the acts one does or does not, but on the frame of mind one has. The good man is he who concurs with the divine purpose, and the bad man is he who resists it. If one's mind is good, one's acts will be good. Our attempt should be not so much external conformity as inward cleansing From goodness of being good will and good works flow 2 When the soul is at peace, the greatest sorrows are borne lightly. Life becomes more natural and confident Changes in outer conditions do not disturb. We let our life flow of itself as the sea heaves or the flower blooms

Work by itself does not give us liberation. It cleanses the mind, purifies the heart and produces the illumination which is the immediate condition of salvation. Samkara argues that the knowledge of Brahman, as it relates to an existent being, cannot be contingent on what a person does or does not 3

Contemplation is the way to cleanse one's mind and heart. It means rest, suspension of mental activity, withdrawal into the interior solitude in which the soul is absorbed in the fruitful silence of God We cannot stop there; we must overflow with a love that communicates what it knows to others Saints with abundant power and tireless energy work for the transfiguring of men and the changing of the course of secular history. Different methods are suited for different temperaments, and they are all permitted.4

Cp St Thomas Aquinas 'A thing may belong to the contemplative hie in two ways essentially or as a predisposition. The moral virtues

The ethical virtues we are called upon to adopt are mentioned in several passages. Life is compared to a sacrifice where the fee shall be asceticism, liberality, integrity, non-injury to life and truthfulness: The Taithriva Upanisad gives a list of students' duties He should not be negligent of truth, virtue, welfare, prosperity, study and teaching. He should perform only those acts which are irreproachable. In case of doubt concerning any act of conduct, the student should follow the practice of those Brāhmanas who are competent to judge, apt, devoted, not harsh lovers of virtue. In one passage all the virtues are brought together under the three da's which are heard in the voice of the thunder, namely, dama, or selfrestraint, dana or self-sacrifice, and daya or compassion Praia-pati conveys it to the three classes of his creation, gods (deva), men (manusya) and demons (asura),2 Samkara makes out that gods have desires (kāma), men suffer from greed belong to the contemplative life as a predisposition. For the act of contemplation, in which the contemplative life essentially consists, is hindcred both by the impetuosity of the passions and by the outward disturbances Now the moral virtues curb the impetuosity of the passions and quell the disturbance of outward occupations. Hence moral virtues belong to the contemplative life as a predisposition 'St Thomas taught there were three vocations, that to the active life, that to the con-templative and a third to the combination of both and the last is superior to the other two. There are statements to the effect that the contemplative life in itself by its very nature is superior to the active Vita cortemplatua, he remarks, simplicator est melior quam activa for the contemplative life directly and immediately occupies itself with the love of God than which there is no act more perfect or more mentonous The contemplative life establishes man in the very heart of all op ritual fecundity. When St. Thomas admits that the active life can be more perfect in certain circumstances, he qualifies it a great deal (1) Action will only be more perfect than the joy and rest of contemplation, if it is undertaken as the result of an overflow of love for God in order to fulfil His will (ii) It is not to be continuous but only an answer to a temporary emergency (iii) It is purely for God's glory, it does not dirperer or from contemplation. It is an added obligation and we but return as roon as we can to the fruitful silence of recollection that diesers our souls to the Divine Union (lobha) and demons from anger (krodha). By the practice of the three injunctions we free ourselves from the sway of craving, greed and anger. When the Buddha asks us to put out in our hearts the monstrous fires of infatuation, greed and resentment, he is emphasising the three virtues enjoined by the Upanisads.

Dama is self-control. We should reduce our wants and be prepared to suffer in the interests of truth. Austerity, chastity, solitude and silence are the ways to attain self-control

Tapas is severe self-discipline undertaken for spiritual ends. It is exercised with reference to the natural desires of the body and the distractions of the outer world. It consists of exercises of an inward kind, prayers offered in the heart, self-analysis and outer acts like fasting, self-mortification, sexual abstinence or voluntary poverty. Strength is developed by a resisting force. The power gained by resisting one temptation helps us in overcoming the next. To evade discipline is to empty life of its significance. Nothing is more tranquil than to be unshaken by the troublous motions of the flesh. Renunciation, myāsa, is superior to tapas or austerity or asceticism. The latter is a means to the former. It is not to be made into an end in itself. Ethical Brahmacarya is not sex-destruction. There is no gulf between flesh and spirit, but only between the fallen and the transfigured flesh. Ancient Indian thinkers were of the opinion that the seed within man and woman is intended for the purpose of creating a body by which another soul may come into physical embodiment. When thus controlled, brahmacarya helps creative work of every description. When the seed is wasted in sex excesses, the body becomes weak and crippled, the face lined, the eyes dull, hearing impaired and the brain inactive. If brahmacarya is practised, the physical body remains youthful and beautiful, the brain keen and alert, the whole physical expression becomes the image and likeness of the Divine.

Mauna or silence is advised as leading the soul forward to contemplation. By the discipline of silence we curb the excesses which flow from the tongue, heresy, backbiting, flattery. We cannot listen to the voice of God when our minds are dissipated, given to restless activity and are filled externally and internally with noise. Progress in silence is progress to the realisation of spirit. When silence descends on the soul, its activities are joined to the silent creative power of God.

Dāna enjoins gifts. It is negatively freedom from greed and positively assistance to those in need 'There is no hope of immortality by wealth' Possessiveness is condemned The

'Cp Isaiah 'The tillage of righteousness is silence 'In silence and in hope shall be your strength.'

i 'While all things were in quiet silence and the night was in the midst of her course the Word leapt down from heaven'

He shouted from the window, 'Who goes there?' The guards, filled with confusion, bowed their heads, saying, 'It is we going the rounds in search' He said, 'What seek ye? 'They said 'Our camels' He said, 'Whoever searched for camels on a housetop?' They said, 'We follow thy example, Who seekest union with God, while sitting on a throne'

Taittiviya Upanisad regulates the art of giving. One should give with faith, one should not give without faith, one should give liberally, with modesty, with fear, with sympathy.

Dayā is karunā, compassion. We should try to be at peace with all, abhor all cruelty and ill-will.² Enmity means misunderstanding. A forgiving attitude frees the individual. We should grudge none, forgive all. So long as we remember an injustice, we have not forgiven either the person or the action. If only we know that there is more suffering than wickedness in the world, we would be kindly. It is by compassion, which shrinks from no sacrifice, that we can overcome the ravages of selfishness. We must be patient God himself is unimaginably patient.³ Tolerance, long suffering, patience are the fruits of spirit.

The ethical individual is required to become like a child. The perfect man is a divine child, accepting the divine play, without fear or reserve, care or grief, in utter purity. A child is not entangled with things that seem important to grown-ups, whose occupations are mainly paltry and whose professions petrified. A child's wise incomprehension is linked with living and is more than defensiveness or disdain. We cannot return to childhood. We have to gain the state which is unconstricted by temporal purpose, but purposeful, a state in which time and eternity coincide.

When it is said that the Upanisads adopt a spiritual view of life, it does not mean that they despise body, life and mind. The latter are the conditions or instruments for the life of spirit in man They are not ends in themselves, but are means

The ritualistic practices are reinterpreted They are to prepare the mind for spiritual realisation, to spur it on to pierce the veil of the finite and to seek deliverance in identification with the Supreme Reality If rites are performed without the knowledge of their meaning, they are not only useless but dangerous The presumptuous performer may have his head cut off 2 He who knows a particular rate and he who knows it not both perform a rite, but when performed with knowledge the act becomes more effective 3 Meditation on the meaning of the sacrifice sometimes took the place of the actual sacrifice 'Suppose,' Janaka asks Yājñavalkya, 'you had no milk or rice or barley to perform the fire-sacrifice, agmihoira, with what would you sacrifice?' 'With the fruits of trees and whatever herbs there were ''If there were none?' 'Then with water' 'If there were no water?' 'Then, indeed, there would be nothing here, yet, this would be offered, the truth in faith '4 When the heart is fully persuaded, there is little sense of sacrifice Sacrificial life becomes a natural manifestation of the new spirit Self-conscious sacrifice, with its burden of self-righteousness and expectation of reward, is not of much use 5

The caste divisions are mentioned in some of the Upanisads 6 They did not, however, harden into a rigid social system In the Chandogya Upanisad five learned Brahmanas who approach Uddālaka Āruni for instruction in regard to Vaisvānara Ātman are taken by him to King Asyapati Kaikeva, who gives them instruction after first demonstrating the imperfections of their views Ajātaśatru of Kāśi teaches Gārgya Bālāki the nature of Brahman, after pointing out the defects of the twelve views

Among the students of the Upanisads is Satyakāma, of unknown origin, whose mother Jabālā could not tell who his father was.2

The four asramas or stages of life are recognised. While the usual rule is that one has to pass through successive stages of life, exceptions are permitted. Jābāla Upanisad asks us to renounce whenever we feel a call to it. Besides, even in a householder's stage one can attain spiritual freedom.3

3 John McKenzie Two Religions (1950), p 112 Some Western philosophers and early Christian theologians accept the principle of rebirth

Belief in rebirth has persisted, at any rate, from the time of the Upanisads It is a natural development from the views of the Vedas and the Brāhmaṇas and receives articulate expression in the Upaniṣads. After mentioning the dispersal of the members of the human body at death—the eye of man goes to the sun, the breath to the wind, speech to fire, the mind to the moon, the ear to the quarters of heaven, the body to the earth, the soul to the ether, the hair to the plants and trees, the blood and seed to the waters—Yājñavalkya is asked as to what remains of the individual. He takes the questioner apart, discusses with him in secret about the nature of work. In truth, // a man becomes good by good works and evil by evil works. Our lives incarnate our characters

The future of the soul is not finally determined by what it has felt, thought and done in this one earthly life. The soul has chances of acquiring merit and advancing to life eternal. Until the union with the timeless Reality is attained, there will be some form of life or other, which will give scope to the individual soul to acquire enlightenment and attain life eternal. Even as non-being is only an abstract lower limit of the existential order, absolute evil is also such a lower limit. Non-being, if it existed in itself diametrically opposed to being, would be completely destroyed. Such non-being is non-existent. Therefore as every existent thing has the form of the Divine, it has also the promise of good.

The Upanisads give us detailed descriptions of the manner in which a man dies and is born again. The transition is illustrated by certain examples. As a grass-hopper, when it has come to the end of a blade of grass, finds another place of support, and then draws itself towards it, similarly this self, after reaching the end of this body, finds another place of support and then draws himself towards it. As a goldsmith, after taking a piece of gold, gives it another, newer and more beautiful shape, similarly does this self, after having thrown off this body, and dispelled ignorance, take another, newer and more beautiful form, whether it be of the manes, or demigods or gods or of Prajā-pati or Brahmā or of any other beings.¹ These passages bring out several aspects of the theory of rebirth The soul finds out its future body before it leaves the present one The soul is creative in the sense that it creates a body. At every change of body, the soul takes a newer form The state of each existence of the soul is conditioned and determined by its knowledge (widyā), its conduct (karma)² in the previous existence From the Brhad-āranyaka Upanisad it appears that all the organs accompany the departing soul, which enters into the samyāāna and becomes possessed of knowledge and consciousness3, vijāāna The results of learning and conduct cling to the soul 4

The ignorant, the unenlightened go after death to sunless demoniac regions 5 The good are said to go up to regions which are sorrowless, through the air, sun, and moon 6 The Chāndogya Upanisad speaks of two ways open to mortals, the bright and the dark, the way of the gods? and the way of the fathers 8 Those who practise penance and faith enter the path of light, and they never return to the cycle of human existence. Those who are only ethical, performing works of public utility, travel by the path of smoke, dwell in the world of the fathers till the time comes for them to fall down, then they are born again according to their deserts? The descriptions may be fictitious, but the principle of the ascent and the descent of the soul is what the Upanisads insist on Beautiful characters attain covetable births and ugly ones miserable births 10 Heaven and hell belong to the world of time

It is sometimes suggested that the soul before undergoing rebuth experiences reward or punishment for its deeds in appropriate places. The original Vedic belief of reward in heaven or punishment gets mixed up with the doctrine of rebuth.

The soul is said to be a very minute entity residing in the cavity of the heart and resembling in every respect, except size, the visible man.

LIFE ETERNAL

The fact that the individual consciousness has for its essential reality the Universal Self implies the possibility that every human being can rend the veil of separateness and gain recognition of his true nature and oneness with all beings. The Upanisads develop this character of life eternal.

In the Rg Veda, what is aimed at is length of days on earth and life in the world of heaven in the company of gods. In the Brāhmanas, the performers of various rites are promised the reward of community of being, companionship and fellowship with the gods. When the Absolute Brahman was recognised, the gods became intermediaries through whose influence the end of unity with the Absolute is obtained. When Brahman and Atman are identified, the highest goal is declared to be unity with the Self Deliverance is different from existence in svarga or paradise. The latter is a part of the manifested world. The soul may live there for ages and yet return to earth, a heir to its deeds. Deliverance, on the other hand, is a state of permanent union with the Highest Self. Life in paradise is a prolongation of self-centred life, while life eternal is liberation from it While the former is time extended, the latter is time transcended

Enlightenment does not mean a departure in space to a new abode Arrival and departure have no meaning in the context of liberation The passages where the soul is said to go by the veins to the rays of the sun and to the sun; or from the moon through the worlds of fire, wind, Varuna, Indra and Praja-pati, to Brahman: speak of the soul on the pathway to perfection The Chandogya Upanisad states that the soul of the emancipated. at death, goes out by the hundred and first vein through the crown of the head, fire, wind and sun to Brahman 3

He who knows Brahman becomes Brahman 4 Perfection is a state of mind, not contingent on change of time or place. It is an experience of the present, not a prophecy of the future Temporal distinctions do not apply to it, but if any temporal terms are to be used, they will be words like 'now,' 'presently,' When all desires that dwell in the human heart are cast away, then a mortal becomes immortal and (even) here he attaineth to Brahman.'5 Freedom is not a future state on whose coming we wait in expectation It is life in the spirit, in God who is the foundation and power of life.6

Is moksa or liberation life with the Supreme Person whom we love and worship in this life? Is it personal immortality with absolute likeness to God in the world of Brahmã?2 Is it an impersonal absorption in the Divine Transcendent?3 All these views are to be found in the Upanisads There are four aspects of release distinguished as sāmīpya or intimacy with the divine, sārūbya or sādharmya, similarity of nature with the divine, reflecting his glory, sālokya or conscious coexistence with the divine in the same world and sayunya or communion with the divine bordering on identity

There are certain general characteristics of the state of moksa or freedom. It is conceived as freedom from subjection to time 4 As birth and death are the symbols of time, life eternal or moksa is liberation from births and deaths. It is the fourth state of consciousness beyond the three worlds, what the Bhagavad-gītā calls paramam brahma or brahma-nırvāna 5 It 1s freedom from subjection to the law of karma The deeds, good or bad, of the released cease to have any effect on him 6 Even as a horse shakes its mane, the liberated soul shakes off his sm, even as the moon comes out entire after having suffered an eclipse from Rāhu, so does the liberated individual free himself from mortal bondage. His works consume themselves like a reed stalk in the fire 2 As water does not stop on the lotus leaf, works do not cling to him 3 Works have a meaning only for a self-centred individual Liberation is the destruction of bondage, which is the product of ignorance. Ignorance is destroyed by knowledge and not by works 5 Freedom is not a created entity; it is the result of recognition

Knowledge takes us to the place where desire is at rest, a-kāma, where all desires are fulfilled, āpta-kāma, where the self is the only desire, ātma-kāma ⁶ He who knows himself to be all can have no desire When the Supreme is seen, the knots of the heart are cut asunder, the doubts of the intellect are dispelled and the effects of our actions are destroyed ⁷ There can be no sorrow or pain or fear when there is no other. The freed soul is like a blind man who has gained his sight, a sick man made whole He cannot have any doubt for he is full and abiding knowledge He attains the highest bliss for which a feeble analogy is married happiness. It breaks its bonds and finds its own way to a development of its own which could never have been charted in advance. The liberated spirit conforms spontaneously to the ethical rules. 'To one who has knowledge of the self, non-hatred and other virtues come off naturally without any effort'.³ Every religion sets before us the goal of liberation, which has a sense of exaltation, a sense of freedom and victory over the world, over evil and death.

When we are delivered in life, our condition is that of the jivan-mukta, who is freed from the bonds of conditioned existence 4 His appearance continues without much outer change. His embodied state does not affect the being whom it clothes, as he has complete control over the bodily frame and knows its externality. Though tossed in the welter he retains his vision. While jivan-mukti is deliverance during life, videha-mukti is

As the anonymous French mystic who wrote The Mirror of Simple Souls puts it "Virtues, I take leave of you Henceforth I shall be more free and more at peace Once I was your servant, now I am delivered from your thraldom!"... What he means is that in the higher stage morality has become autonomous and spontaneous.

In Mayhima-Nikāya (II. 22 ff) it is said that arrival (patipanna) involves a destruction without residue of good and bad conduct (kusala and akusala sīla) It is an eradication of all ethical values. In the parable of the raft (Mayhima I. 135, 260 and Sutta Nipāta 21) the distinction of right and wrong, the exercise of the discriminatory consciousness are of no more use to one who has crossed to the other shore than a boat would be to one who has reached shore. These values are for crossing over, not for possession, nitharanathāya, na gahanathāya. St. Augustine points out that one should 'no longer use the law as means of arrival when one has arrived 'De Soir et Lat 76.

deliverance after death, when out of bodily form. In either case the soul is freed from conditioned existence

There is the suggestion about krama-mukti or gradual release When the release is only partial and temporary, the individual soul descends again into the egoistic life and the higher consciousness is withdrawn from him. The memory of that experience, however, will work its way, until the impurities are removed.

The different emphases we find in the Upanisads, in regard to the state of freedom, can be understood if we bear in mind the integral or fourfold character of Brahman In some passages oneness with Brahman is stressed, in others communion with the Supreme Person and in still others devotion to the Cosmic Spirit and participation in the work of the world Union with God may take many forms When the outer self is hushed, the deeper layers of consciousness are released into activity, the self may enter into the silence of the Absolute Brahman or into communion with the Eternal Person or be transported into the beatific embrace of the Cosmic Spirit The soul may pass through various realms of spirit, bathing in their light and feeding on their bliss

Yājñavalkya centres his attention on oneness with the Absolute Brahman, a state where there is no desire, there is no passion, not even any consciousness, pretya samjñā nāsti ¹. When honey is prepared by the collection of various juices, the latter cannot discriminate from which trees they were drawn, even so when the souls are merged in the Real, they cannot discriminate from which bodies they come ². The self rises above the distinction of subject and object which characterises all empirical consciousness. It is altogether time-transcending. This is impersonal immortality where the soul achieves absoluteness, unconditioned being ³. It is illumined consciousness.

and not oblivion of consciousness. It is not a void of immobile peace where all is lost and everything is extinct. This is only one aspect of deliverance

There is also the account where the self becomes one with the Supreme Person. He who knows 'I am Brahman,' becomes the universe Even the gods cannot prevent him from becoming the universe for he is its soul ¹ Man has potential universality which he actualises in the state of liberation. We are one with the indeterminate pure silence in essence and with the personal Lord in the liberty of cosmic manifestation. Out of the peace and poise of Brahman arises the free activity of the liberated individual Essential unity with God is unity with one another through God. In the sense of heightened awareness we do not forget the world, which seems strangely of one piece. We are lifted out of provincialism into perspective, as we become aware of something vaster, profounder, more ultimate than the world ²

There are passages4 which suggest that the released self retains its own form freed from the imperfections of the empirical ego and untouched by worldly pleasure and pain 5 Yet other passages affirm the presence of such qualities. Even as we have the fourfold nature of the Supreme, the liberated individual has different aspects of utter peace, pure energy, devotion to the Cosmic Spirit and participation in the world He looks at the world and is lost in it, as it is a perpetual striving to raise itself above itself 3 self takes possession of us We continue to live and act in the world, though with a different outlook. The world also continues, though it is no more alien to us. To live permanently in this new consciousness is to live in eternity.

When we refer to Absolute Brahman, we emphasise the illumined quiescence, the non-objective consciousness in which there is a total extinction of sorrow and evil, the pure bliss infinitely surpassing all human joys, far exceeding the power of man to conceive This very insight makes the self one with the Supreme and all existences. Only we are no more bound to them in a false relation In our transfigured consciousness where our egoistic individuality is absent, we are not divided from others but feel one with them. Our real self is no more the individual, mental being, but is one with the Self behind the mental forms of all other selves Our body, life, mind are no more binding, but become the transparent vehicle of our divine consciousness. When that end is reached we are a true becoming of the Divine, a free movement of the Universal Spirit. Our body, life and mind, we feel, are one with the cosmic body, life and mind 4 Our spirit fills the whole world By knowing the eternal we understand the true nature of God, the world and the individual.

Possessing the immortality of non-birth, the redeemed self still assumes, by free volution an individual form in the manifested world. Birth is a becoming of the Supreme in the cosmic being. This becoming is not inconsistent with Being. It becomes a means and not an obstacle to the enjoyment of life eternal. To be released from the chain of birth and death is not to flee from the world of becoming Bondage does not consist in the assumption of birth or individuality, but in the persistence of the ignorant sense of the separate, selfish ego. It is not the embodiment that creates the bondage but the frame of mind To the free spirit life has no terrors. He wishes to conquer life for God He uses the world as the mould and condition for the manufestation of his spiritual freedom. He may assume birth for the purpose of helping the world 1 There will be individualisation without an ego-sense. The play of the individual consciousness can take many forms, assume many aspects and poises All through, however, he lives in the truth of the cosmic play with no delusion, released from ego, in full control of the manifested being

The individual soul is eternal It endures throughout the cosmic process. It commences at birth as the inheritor of the previous person and survives physical death in an altered form. For the self that has realised perfection the body ceases to be a burden. He lives in the flesh but not after the flesh.

The individual is an aspect of the Transcendent in the universe and when liberated from all limitations, he acts with his centre in the Supreme The inner peace is manifested in the loyous freedom of outer activity. He will be at work in the world though he cannot wish to do any evil. He can do any action, for he does it disinterestedly 3 The desires of those whose thoughts are fixed on the Supreme do not bind 4 The freed soul does not aim at the improvement of humanity, but his life itself is a service. His renunciation has become the natural consequence of his wisdom. The Chāndogya Upanisad distinguishes desires that bind from the desires that liberate, and speaks of the Supreme Self as desiring and purposing truth.

Samkara argues that the co-existence of karma or work, involving, as it does, the distinction of doer and the thing done, with the knowledge of the identity of the individual self with the Supreme, which negatives all such distinctions, is inconceivable 2 It is only self-centred action that becomes impossible. The liberated individual becomes active in God. God is born in us, 1 e becomes active in us, when all powers of the soul, which hitherto have been bound and imprisoned, become liberated and set free 'For we are his offspring.'3 God becomes the centre of the free man's life so that love is radiated and good works spring forth spontaneously. He is as unconscious of the power of his life as life itself, which springs, blossoms and puts forth its life's work in a free outpouring with no reflection on the why or the wherefore He lives out of his own depths, and life wells up out of itself. In a sense, he is not the doer. He has become one with the Universal Self, possessed by the Transcendent, he is udasīna or unattached The Universal Self has taken sovereign possession of the individual soul When the individual soul ascends into the silence it becomes vast, tranquil. actionless It observes the actions of prakris without taking part in them There is no personal factor, and therefore there is no bondage in the world, to all appearance, like ordinary mortals They wear no special signs. Only their activities are centred in the highest being and are completely under their control, which is not so for those who live in the world of samsara. They are tolerant. sympathetic and respectful to the unliberated who are struggling with unsatisfied minds to diminish the evil and imperfection in the world. These are helped by the seers who accept the conventions with the idea of refining them. They live and suffer and rejoice and die as other mortals do, but they have no doubt in their minds, no fear in their hearts. For the liberated soul, samsāra and moksa or nirvāna as the Buddhists call it. time and eternity, the phenomenal and the real, are one. Though the liberated soul lives in the world of becoming, he lives with his consciousness centred in the Divine ground of all being As a matter of fact, his consciousness, because it is centred in God, is intensified, and so his life in the world is more vital Holy calm, supreme self-mastery and righteous action characterise the lives of saints They become a light, a power of the Truth to which they have struggled and attained, and help the development of others 2 They will be engaged in the work of the world,2 sustained by their rare vision, until the struggle with evil and imperfection is altogether overcome and the world is restored to spirit.

Whether after liberation one takes an active interest in the world or renounces it is a matter of temperament. Yājāavalkya chooses to retire to the forest, while Janaka rules a state. Whatever they do, they help those like us who are lost in the world of sorrow and suffering Though embodiment or disembodiment makes no difference to the liberated souls, as they are filled with compassion, they take up the burden of the world. order to help them also to make the crossing 'z Until all people are redeemed, the liberated work in the world assuming individual forms which are the vestures of spiritual life Spirit and material existence, ānanda and anna, are the highest and lowest rungs of a continuous series. There is a link between the two Even as the eternal Divine is able to hold the whole universe within itself while remaining pure spirit, the soul that is one with the Eternal possesses the same poise, with reference to the individual setting. It is no more ignorantly immersed in the mutable creation. It exists consciously in its true being while using the psycho-physical apparatus, which it does not any more mistake for its true being. While the liberated retain the consciousness of the transcending, self-existent, timeless, they identify their being with the Infinite God in whom all existences dwell.

Again and again, the Upanisads stress that we should see all existences in the Self and the Self in all existences. Even as the Supreme is all these existences, we also should acquire the right relation to the world. Perfect fulfilment of our individuality means the perfect fulfilment of our relations with the world and the other individuals. We are called upon to overcome not only our separate egoistic existence but also our life in a paradise of self-absorbed bliss. The perfected soul cannot look with indifference on the sufferings of the imperfect, for they are also his own self. He would work to lift them into freedom. It is not now a function of altruism but is the life divine, the integral way. He will work until all beings in the manifested world are fulfilled. The liberated individuals are released from their individuality at the close of creation.

Brahma-loka is the widest possible integration of cosmic experience, the farthest limit of manifested being Brahmā is the soul that ensouls this great dwelling. He is the true life of every being. He endures during the whole period of the cosmos Beyond it there is nothing in the manifested world. It is not the eternal beyond the empirical It is the farthest limit of manifestation When the world receives its consummation. when it is delivered from time to eternity, then there is the flight of the alone to the Alone The plan of God for the world, which was before creation is carried out, for He is the beginning and the end of the world I The Cosmic Lord has his exteriorised existence and his interior life. When he turns outward the cosmos is evolved, when he turns his attention inward, the cosmos retreats into latency and the manifested world terminates When the world is redeemed, the Supreme Lord becomes the Absolute One, alone, and knows nothing else

In the Brahma-loka the liberated individuals present to each other as one They are manifold in the cosmic process Their consciousness of the Supreme which is lodged in the buddhi is one and not divided among the bodily forms. This identical consciousness is associated with different bodies. This manifoldness does not take away from the unity of the divine being Until the final return of the whole universe into the Absolute, until the purpose of God before the creation is carried out, the individuals, freed from bondage to matter, will retain their distinctiveness without being sundered by boundaries When the two poles of being are reconciled, when all individuals rise above the plane of quality, with its ego sense, struggling aspiration and imperfect love, the world lapses into the Absolute 2

RELIGION

The Upanisads use the inherited forms of religious worship as means for the realisation of the Supreme The Vedic mantras are addressed to various powers, symbolic of important aspects, of the Supreme Reality They teach the religion of śraddhā, the Omega, the first and the last, for what was first comes at last and the last is the first '

in another place I have said that the universe is not an illusion utterly devoid of reality but the working out of a possibility of the Divine which is infinite possibility. This world of ours is not the only Possibility and other possibilities will unfold themselves when this is worked out An Idealist View of Life, Fourth Impression, 1951, p. 343.

faith and upāsana, worship The Brāhmanas deal with rites, and by their performance we are said to gain our ends Both these methods are taken up by the Upanisads and reinterpreted

While the Upanisads recognise that deliverance is the supreme end of life, they are aware that many are not ready for the supreme sacrifice, the dying to their ego. They need some preparation for it. They ask for emotional satisfactions, and for their sake devotional and ritualistic practices are tolerated. They are not useless, for they lead us on by the upward path by directing our minds and hearts to the reality of the Eternal Being and gradually take us out of ourselves into the true religion of the spirit. Till the goal is reached, the law of Karma works, and we get the rewards for our worship and piety according to the intensity of our faith and devotion.

The different forms of śraddhā or faith, upāsana or worship, and practices of yoga are treated as means to the supreme end of self-knowledge or ātma-darśana, which is at once a union with the one transcendent Being beyond all the worlds and a union with all beings in the world

Again and again the Upanisads speak of the God who is hidden, miniam guhāyām God is not easily comprehended. There is a certain element of reserve in God as distinct from His revelation. The reserve is there because man has to put forth effort to know the Divine. God does not wish to relieve us of our responsibility. As His purpose is the development of free human personalities, He does not disclose himself to us easily and openly. He remains shrouded in mystery, and yields only when our total self yearns for God.

Three stages are mentioned as preparatory to God-vision (brahma-sāksātkāra), śravana or hearing, manana or reflection, and mdidhyāsana or contemplation. The first step is to learn what has been thought and said about the subject from teachers We should listen to them with śraddhā or faith Faith is an act of will, a yearning of the heart rather than an intellectual disposition It is faith in the existence of the beyond, āstrkya-buddh as Samkara calls it 2 We should have faith in the integrity of the seers whose selflessness has enabled them to know the nature of Ultimate Reality by direct acquaintance. The propositions they have formulated from out of their personal experience give us knowledge by description, as we do not yet have direct vision of the truth. Yet the knowledge we acquire by hearsay or report is not unverifiable. The truth of the Vedic propositions can be verified by us, if we are prepared to fulfil the necessary conditions

In the second stage of manana or reflection we attempt to form clear ideas by the logical processes of inference, analogy, etc So long as faith is firm, the need for philosophy is not felt. With the decline of faith, the spirit of inquiry increases. Unquestioning belief in the inherent power of knowledge underlies the whole intellectual fabric of the Upanişads. The truth of the Vedic propositions can, however, be inferred by us by logical processes Hearing of the scriptures is not devoid of intellectual content. He who hears understands up to a point. But when he reflects on what he hears, he adds to faith a knowledge which increases faith There is great insistence on the need for logical inquiry 3 Without it faith will degenerate into credulty. Without the material supplied by faith, logical reason may become mere speculation While the scriptures declare the truth by enunciation, philosophy establishes it by argument

Samkara says, 'When the two, scripture and reasoning, guru-vedānta-vākyesu visvāsah 2 S on Katha I 1 2 Wisdom cannot be attained by any means other than inquiry nothadyate vinā jāānam vicārenānyasādhanath S

demonstrate the unity of the self it is seen clearly as a bael fruit in the palm of one's hand 'I There are many for whom the Supreme is not an immediately experienced fact, nor are they willing to accept its validity on the authority of the scriptures For them logical arguments are necessary

The distinction between srute, what is heard, and smrte, what is remembered, between direct experience and traditional interpretation, is based on the distinction between sravana and manana The deposit of experience is not the same as the conclusions of theology The primary data are the sruti they are experiential, the formulated conclusions are secondary interpretations. The one represents the evidence, the other records a doctrine When there is a dispute between the two we get back to the evidence. It is always open to review the evidence afresh The doctrinal statements are conditioned by the historical situations in which they are produced We must be able to get behind the propositions to the events they describe, stand in the tension between the data and the interpretations, if we are to understand the significance of the doctrines The defect of all scholasticism, Indian or European, is that it tends to regard itself as a cold, bloodless logic which moves from one position to another with a remorseless rigour Life is the master of thought and not thought of life.

Logical knowledge acquired by a study of the scriptures and reflection on their teaching is only indirect knowledge. It is not a direct grasp of reality. Thought must pass into realisation. The ideas of the Upanisads should be imaginatively and inwardly apprehended. They should be allowed to sink deep and simmer before they are re-created in life. Nididhyāsana is the process by which intellectual consciousness is transformed into a vital one. We give up the pride of learning and concentrate on the truth 2. Faith becomes Nutrithyāsana or contemplation is different from upāsana or worship Worship is an aid to contemplation, though it is not itself contemplation. In worship there is the distinction between the worshipping self and the worshipped object, but in contemplation this distinction is held in suspense. There is a stillness, a calm, in which the soul lays itself open to the Divine Intellect, becomes like a calm sea without a ripple on its surface.

Meditation is not argument. It is just holding oneself steadily in front of the truth 2 The whole energy of the mind is centred on the object to the exclusion of all else. We let the full flavour of the idea meditated on expand in the mind Even upāsana is defined as the continued flow of an identical current of thought 3 It is also of the nature of meditation 4 We can practise meditation in any direction, place or time in which we can concentrate our mind 5 Here the process of abstraction, isolating the self from the objective, is employed. Concentration is the condition of prayer More than condition it is itself prayer In prayer we must dismiss all distracting ideas, disturbing influences and retire within oneself. We are asked to retire to a field or a forest where the world and its noise are out of sight and far away, where the sun and the sky, the earth and the water all speak the same language, reminding the seeker that he is here to develop like the things that grow all around him those who act in the right way are the ācāryas ¹ Samkarānanda distinguishes three kinds of disciples. He who understands what is taught along with the proof, when he hears only once, is the good pupil, he who understands it only after hearing many times and after giving himself and his teacher much trouble is the bad pupil. He who understands what the teacher says but cannot control his own mind, he is the middling. The last are to be led to firm conviction by various means ²

In the Vedas we have vivid belief in powerful gods who are not mere abstractions Adoration of personal gods, along with a sense of dependence on and trust in them, which is a marked tendency in the religion of the Veda, becomes prominent in the Katha and the Svetāśvatara Upanisads The Katha Upanisad makes out that saving knowledge is not a matter of learning but is revealed to the fortunate man by the highest Reality itself. Even the doctrine of predestination is suggested.

Unfortunately different aspects have been exclusively emphasised so as to give rise to the impression that the Upanisads do not give us any single coherent view. It is suggested that in the Upanişads the true doctrine is that the Real, the thing-initself, is empty of content and all positive views are deviations from it caused by the inability of man to remain at the high level of abstract thought, postulated by the distinction between the thing-in-itself and the appearance and the natural tendency to apply empirical categories to the thing-in-itself. The absolutistic and theistic views of the Upanişads are not exclusive of each other Sankara and Rāmānuja emphasise different aspects of the teaching of the Upanişads.

Upāsana or worship is the basis of the doctrine of bhakti or devotion As Brahman is not described in the early Upaniṣads in sufficiently personal terms, the later ones like the Katha and the Svetāśvatara look upon the Supreme as personal God who bestows grace Devotion to the personal God is recommended as a means for attaining spiritual enlightenment 4

4 SU VI 21 and 23 Images, pilgrimages, ceremonies are all accessones to devotion

The Upanisads give us different modes of devotional exercises, by which we are trained to fix our minds on a single object. Gradually we get prepared for the contemplation of absolute truth:

The prevalent theistic creeds were as imilated to the teaching of the Upanisads. The later sectional Upanisals identify the Supreme with Visua, Siva or Sakti, which are regarded as different phases of the One Reality. The Supreme is conceived as a person in relation to persons, and symbols taken from social life, loid, father, judge are employed. Sometimes dynamic symbols like the power of life, the spirit of truth, the glowing fire that penetrates and pervades are used.

Symbols belong to an order of reality different from that of the Reality which they symbolise. They are used to make the truth intelligible, to make the unhearable audible. They are meant to be used as tangible supports for contemplation. They help us to reach awareness of the symbolised reality. Some of these symbols employed by religious are common. Fire and light are usually adopted to signify the Ultimate Reality. It means that the minds of people are formed similarly and experiences of people do not differ much from one part of the world to another. Even conceptions about the origin and nature of the world often agree, though they arise quite independently. The images are all framed to mediate between the Supreme Absolute and the finite intelligence. The individual is free to select for worship any form of the Supreme. This freedom of choice ista-devatārādhana means that the different forms are all

included in the Supreme The acceptance of one form does not mean the rejection of others

The Supreme is to be comprehended only by a supreme effort of consciousness. This knowledge cannot be expressed at the level of thought except through symbols. The symbols are not entirely subjective. The relativity of the symbols does not destroy either our capacity to discover the truth or our faith in the existence of objective reality. It is true that different objects appear differently from different points of view, but the validity of the different points of view need not be denied. Statements about reality are definitions of the relationship between those making them and the reality which they are describing. Symbols have a meaning, and this meaning is objective and shared. The bearers of the meaning may be psychological states, separate existences, not even identical in their qualitative content, but meanings can be studied and understood.

The Upanisads do not speak to us of limited dogmas. The life of spirit is wider than any particular religious formulation Religion deals with man's seeking for the eternal, the sources of truth and joy, and particular formulations are but approximations to the Unutterable. Our minds are not detached from the circumstances of time and place. Full truth can be known only by a mind of transcendent rationality. The conception and expression by men of the reality which is universal, can only be partial according to the diversities of race and character. As the Upanisads lay stress on spiritual experience and psychological discipline, they do not insist on any one set of dogmas, rites or codes. They are also aware that we may touch different aspects of the spiritual experience when we attempt to define it. We may use any symbols and methods which help to bring about a change of consciousness, a new birth.

The one Supreme who dwells in us is conceived externally. The vulgar look for their gods in water, men of wider know-

tranquil transcendence and cosmic universality. The advocates of bhaktı look upon the worship of the personal God as the highest bliss,1 though those who regard the Absolute as superpersonal declare that it is somewhat lower than the highest. that those who do not get beyond the stage of the worship of the Personal God, enter, on death, into a heavenly state of existence This survival in the worlds of the blessed belongs to the process of time or samsara. It is not emancipation from time or timeless union with reality

Any form of worship which falls short of complete selfnaughting will not take us to the unitive life Faith, devotion, surrender are the means to it Each individual has to achieve insight by his own effort after long and persistent practice 2 When the veil of intellectual knowledge, of avidva, is swept aside, a flood of light breaks upon the awakened soul and a vision of the Universal Self is achieved. This self is present, real and concrete even as a physical object is present to the physical eye The Supreme is not so much an immanent God as an experienced God, felt as an inward principle of power and new being in life When we rise in contemplation, when there is the vision of the Supreme which is entirely beyond the power of the soul to prepare for or bring about, we feel that it is wholly the opera-

The seventeeth-century Platonist, Norris, writes 'The solitary and contemplative man sits as safe in his retirement as one of Homer's heroes in a cloud, and has this only trouble from the follies and extravagances of men, that he pities them I think it advisable for every man that has sense and thoughts enough to be his own companion (for certainly there is more required to qualify a man for his own company than for other men's), to be as frequent in his retirements as he can, and to communicate as little with the world as is consistent with the duty . of doing good, and the discharge of the common offices of humanity'

tion of God working on the soul by extraordinary grace In a sense all life is from God, all prayer is made by the help of God's grace, but the heights of contemplation which are scaled by few are attributed in a special degree to divine grace. After the vision the light may fade, darkness may afflict the soul, but the soul can never lose altogether what it has once seen Our effort thereafter shall be to renew the experience, make it the constant centre of all our activities until the completely real is completely known

There are references to visions and auditions which sometimes accompany the soul's ascent to God They are really an embarrassment to the aspiring soul They distract its attention and sometimes tempt it to remain on the wayside without pressing forward to the goal These visions and auditions are not an essential part of the religious intuition. These are symbols on the natural and historical plane of the mysteries of spintual life. All objects in the natural world are reflections of the happenings in the spiritual world. The events of the life of spirit are reflected symbolically in the world of space, time and matter.

The paradoxes of mystical language are resolved when they are taken over into vital consciousness. The mystery-filled figures of the Upanisads are abstractions to those who look upon them from outside. The Upanisads speak to us of different forms of genuine religious experience. Whether it is contemplation of the Absolute, or meditation on the Supreme Person or worship of the Cosmic Spirit, or absorption in the world of nature, they are all genuine forms, as they aim at the same ultimate conclusion of self-transcendence. Man must be surpassed. There are different regions in the realm of spirit in which the consciousness of man freed from the finitude of self and enlarged finds fulfilment.

In other religions, too, we have these varieties of mystic experience. There are some who wish to establish contact with God regarded strictly as a person, and live a life in ever complete accord with the divine will and at long last reach the most intimate union with God. There are others who wish to go beyond union to unity, a state of consciousness which is above subject-object relationship. Naturally the Upanişads do not adopt an attitude of dogmatism. This attitude of acceptance of all forms of worship has been a persistent character of India's religious life. The word of God is not bound by languages in which it is spoken. It is the one voice that is heard in all religions.

We are heirs of a richer heritage than most of us are aware of The life of the people of spirit, from the beginning until now, has a great deal to offer us. If we cut ourselves away from the rich treasury of wisdom about man's aspirations on this earth which is available to us from our own past, or if we are satisfied

^z St Paul's remarkable words that all nations 'seek the Lord if haply they might feel after him and find him, though he be not far from everyone of us' (Acts of the Apostles KVII 27) indicate the right attitude

BRHAD-ĀRANYAKA UPANISAD

The Brhad-āranyaka-Upanisad which is generally recognised to be the most important of the Upanisads forms part of the Salapatha Brāhmana. It consists of three Kāndas or sections, the Madhu Kānda which expounds the teaching of the basic identity of the individual and the Universal Self, the Yāṇāvalkya or the Muni Kānda which provides a philosophical justification of the teaching and the Khula Kānda, which deals with certain modes of worship and meditation, upāsana, answering roughly to the three stages of religious life, śravana, hearing the upadeša or the teaching, manana, logical reflection, upapatti and nididhyāsana or contemplative meditation. Of the two rescensions of the Satapatha Brāhmaṇa, the Kānva and the Mādhyandina, Śamkara follows the former, and the text adopted here is the same

THE WORLD AS A SACRIFICIAL HORSE

1 aum usā vā asvasya medhyasya su ah, sūryas caksuh, vātah prāņah, vyāttam agnir vaisvānarah, samvaisara ātmāśvasya medhyasya, dyauh prştham, antarıksam udaram, prthivī pājasyani, dišah pāršve, avāntaradišah pāršavah, rtavongāni, māsās cārdhamāsās ca parvām, ahorātrām pratisthāh, naksa--trāny asthīni, nabho mānisāni; ūvadhyam sikatāh, sindhavo gudāh, yakre ca klomānas ca parvatāh, osadhayas ca vanaspatayas ca lomanı udyan pürvardhah, nımlocan jaghanardhah, yad vijimbhate tad vidyotate, yad vidhūnute tat stanayati, yan mehati lad varsatı, väg eväsya väk

I Aum, the dawn, verily, is the head of the sacrificial horse, the sun the eye, the wind the breath, the open mouth the Vaiśvānara fire; the year is the body of the sacrificial horse, the sky is the back, the atmosphere is the belly, the earth the hoof, the quarters the sides, the intermediate quarters the ribs, the seasons the limbs, the months and the half-months the joints, days and nights the feet, the stars the bones, the clouds the flesh; the food in the stomach is the sand, the rivers are the blood-vessels, the liver and the lungs are the mountains, the herbs and the trees are the hair. The rising (sun) is the forepart, the setting (sun) the hind part, when he yawns then it lightens, when he shakes himself, it thunders, when he urmates then it rains; voice, indeed, is his voice.

The first chapter of the Upanisad is the third chapter of the Aranyaka

asvamedha In this sacrifice a horse is let loose and a guard of three hundred follows his track. If any one hinders the horses' progress, the guard will have to fight When the horse completes a victorious circuit of the earth and returns to the capital, he is offered as a sacrifice and the king who performs the sacrifice assumes the title of sovereign, emperor

The horse sacrifice described at length in Satapatha Brāhmana (XIII, 1-5) is given here a cosmic interpretation. It is used as a vehicle of religious truth

The idea of sacrifice as a means to account for creation goes back to the Purusa Sukta of the RV (X. 90 129), where from each of the members of the primeval person, Purusa, some part of the world is made

The night, verily, arose for the horse as the vessel called mahiman appeared behind (the horse). Its source is in the western sea. These two vessels, verily, arose on the two sides of the horse as the two sacrificial vessels. Becoming a steed he carried the gods, as a stallion the Gandharvas, as a runner the demons, as a horse men. The sea, indeed, is his relative, the sea is his source.

At the horse sacrifice, aśva-medha, two vessels are placed one in tront of and the other behind the horse, made of gold and silver, to hold the sacrificial libations. They are here interpreted cosmically as the eastern (Bay of Bengal) and the western (the Arabian sea) mahimā greatness, mahativam Š

The two vessels are made of gold and silver The gold vessel is the day because both are bright, dipti-sāmānyāt, the silver vessel is the night, both the words rāyata and rātri begin with the same syllable rā Silver and night may have a common nature if the night

6 He desired 'let me sacrifice again with a greater sacrifice' He rested himself, he practised austerity. While he was thus rested and heated, fame and vigour went forth. The vital breaths, verily, are fame and vigour. So when the vital breaths departed, his body began to swell, but the mind was set on the body.

bhityah again, punar apr S explains that Prajā-pah had performed a horse sacrifice in his previous life and those thoughts were in his mind now

sa tapo tapyata. He practised austerity tapas is literally 'burning' It is the glow caused by the concentration of mental energy. Through tapas is all creation effected. The ardour of mind, restrained and concentrated, has power over things (See R.V. X. 190.) Slowly it is extended to cover the practice of austerities. To make ourselves pure metal we have to pass through fierce fires. We cannot be made anew unless we first become ashes. God strips us of everything that we possess that we may draw near to him

7. He desired, let this (body) of mine be fit for sacrifice and let me have a self (body) through this. Thereupon it became a horse, because it swelled, it has become fit for sacrifice (he thought). Therefore the horse-sacrifice came to be known as asca-media. He who knows it thus, verily, knows the asva-media. Letting it remain free, he reflected; and at the end of a year he offered it to himself (sacrificed him for himself). He gave up the (other) animals to the divinities. Therefore (men, priests) offer to Praja-pati the sanctified (horse) dedicated to all the gods. Verily, that (sun) which gives forth heat is the horsesacrifice. His body is the year. This (earthly) fire is the arka and these worlds are his bodies. So these are two, the sacrificial fire (arka) and the horse-sacrifice. Yet again they are one divinity, even death. He (who knows this) overcomes repeated death, death cannot get hold of him, death becomes his body, and he becomes one with these divinities.

āimanvī: becomes embodied, āimavān, šarīravān. Š. ālabhata: offered, sacrificed it to himself, ālambham Priavān. broðsliam: sanctified, mantra-samsbriam. Ā.

He overcomes death, assumes the body of death. He becomes superior to time.

Cp Plato's Sophist, where a stranger from southern Italy who has studied the Eleatic logic of Parmenides likens the philosophy of his own and earlier times to the mythical battle of the gods and the giants 'What we shall see is something like a battle of gods and grants going on between them over their quarrel about reality One party is trying to drag everything down to earth, out of heaven and the unseen, literally grasping rocks and trees in their hands, for they lay hold upon every stock and stone and strenuously affirm that real existence belongs only to that which can be handled and offers resistance to the touch They define reality as the same thing as body, and as soon as one of the opposite party asserts that anything without a body is real, they are utterly contemptuous and will not listen to another word Accordingly their adversaries are very wary in defending their position somewhere in the heights of the unseen, maintaining with all their force that true reality consists in certain intelligible and bodiless forms. In the clash of argument they shatter and pulverise those bodies which their opponents wield, and what those others allege to be true reality they call, not real being, but a sort of moving process of becoming On this issue an interminable battle is always going on between the two camps' ET by F M Cornford See his Plato's Theory of Knowledge (1935). The demons knew, 'verily, by this chanter, they will overcome us' They rushed upon it and pierced it with evil. That evil which consists in thinking what is improper, that is that evil. Likewise they also affected these (other) divinities with evil, they pierced them with evil.

I In the beginning this (world) was only the self, in the shape of a person Looking around he saw nothing else than the self He first said, 'I am' Therefore arose the name of I Therefore, even to this day when one is addressed he says first 'This is I' and then speaks whatever other name he may have Because before all this, he burnt all evils, therefore he is a person He who knows this, verily, burns up him who wishes to be before him

aham derived from the root as 'to be' means the existence of I anuvīksya the person who sees and creates himself (systvā), in the very act of seeing enters into the creation (anuprāvišat), into all things, beings and selves

The original being, ātman or self looks around and sees nothing else but himself. When he realises his loneliness, he has two feelings, one of fear and the other of a desire for companionship. His fear is dispelled when he realises that there is nothing else of which he has to be afraid. His desire for companionship is satisfied by his dividing himself into two parts which are then called husband and wife

Compare this with Plato's myth of the androgynous man in

6 Then he rubbed back and forth and produced fire from its source, the mouth and the hands. Both these (mouth and the hands) are harless on the inside for the source is harless on the inside When they (the people) say 'sacrifice to him,' 'sacrifice to the other one,' all this is his creation indeed and he himself is all the gods And now whatever is moist, that he produced from semen, and that is Soma This whole (world) is just food and the eater of food Soma is food and fire is the eater of food This is the highest creation of Brahmā, namely, that he created the gods who are superior to him. He, although mortal himself, created the immortals. Therefore it is the highest creation. Verily, he who knows this becomes (a creator) in this highest creation.

nāma-rūpa name and shape which together make the individual. The nama is not the name but the idea, the archetype, the essential character, and the rūpa is the existential context, the visible embodiment of the idea. In every object there are these two elements. the principle which is grasped by the intellect and the envelope which is apprehended by the senses. While nama is the inner power. rupa is its sensible manifestation. If we take the world as a whole, we have the one nama or all-consciousness informing the one ruba, the concrete universe The different nama-rupas are the differentiated conditions of the one nama, the world consciousness While the world form is mūrta, its soul is a-mūrta. The former is shaped corporeal, sa-sarīram, the latter is incorporeal a-sarīram BU II 3, CU VIII 12 I In BU III 2 12, the part that does not leave the individual soul at death is nama, which is not accessible to the senses $Ak\bar{a}\dot{s}a$ is $n\bar{a}ma$, and in the human individual the space in the heart hrdy-ākāśa, is the domain of nāma, the principle of consciousness as a razor in a razorcase. II Verily, in the beginning this (world) was Brahman, one only That, being one, did not flourish. He created further an excellent form, the Ksatra power, even those who are Kṣatras (rulers) among the gods, Indra, Varuna, Soma (Moon), Rudra, Parjanya, Yama, Mrtyu (Death), Iṣāna Therefore there is nothing higher than Ksatra Therefore at the Rājasūya sacrifice the Brāhmana sits below the Kṣatriya On Kṣatrahood alone does he confer this honour But the Brāhmana is nevertheless the source of the Kṣatra Therefore, even if the king attains supremacy at the end of it, he resorts to the Brahmana as his source Therefore he who injures the Brāhmana strikes at his own source He becomes more evil as he injures one who is superior

ekam eva one only

13 He did not still flourish He created the Sudra order, as Püsan Verily, this (earth) is Püsan (the nourisher), for she nourishes everything that is

Society requires, in addition to wisdom, power, and wealth, service and work. Wisdom conceives the order, power sanctions and enforces it, wealth and production provide the means for carrying out the order, and work carries out. These are the different functions essential for a normal well-ordered society. These distinctions are found among both gods and men

- 14 Yet he did not flourish He created further an excellent form, justice This is the power of the Ksatriya class, viz justice Therefore there is nothing higher than justice So a weak man hopes (to defeat) a strong man by means of justice as one does through a king Verily, that which is justice is truth Therefore they say of a man who speaks the truth, he speaks justice or of a man who speaks justice that he speaks the truth Verily, both these are the same dharma law or justice is that which constrains the unruly wills and affections of people

Even kings are subordinate to dharma, to the rule of law Law or justice is not arbitrary. It is the embodiment of truth 'That which is known and that which is practised are justice' jnäyamänam anusthīyamānam ca tad dharma eva bhavati Shopes to defeat jetum āšamsate R

15 So these (four orders were created) the Brāhmana, the Ksatrıva, the Vaisva and the Sūdra Among the gods that Brahmā existed as Fire, among men as Brāhmana, as a Kṣatriya by means of the (divine) Kşatrıya, as a Vaisya by means of the (divine) Vaisya, as a Sūdra by means of the (divine) Sūdra Therefore people desire a place among the gods through fire only, and among men as the Brahmana, for by these two forms (pre-eminently) Brahmā existed If anyone, however, departs from this world without seeing (knowing) his own world, it being unknown, does not protect him, as the Vedas unrecited or as a deed not done do not (protect him) Even if one performs a great and holy work, but without knowing this, that work of his is exhausted in the end. One should meditate only on the Self as his (true) world. The work of him who meditates on the Self alone as his world is not exhausted for, out of that very Self he creates whatsoever he desires.

17 In the beginning this (world) was just the self, one only He desired, 'would that I had a wife, then I may have offspring Would that I had wealth, then I would perform rites' This much indeed is the (range of) desire. Even if one wishes, one cannot get more than this. Therefore, to this day, a man who is single desires, 'would that I had a wife, then I may have offspring. Would that I had wealth, then I would perform rites' So long as he does not obtain each one of these, he thinks himself to be incomplete. Now his completeness (is as follows), mind truly is his self, speech his wife, breath is his offspring, the eye is his human wealth, for he finds it with the eye, the ear his divine wealth, for he hears it with his ear. The body, indeed, is his work, for with his body he performs work. So this sacrifice is fivefold, fivefold is the animal, fivefold is the person, fivefold is all this world, whatever there is. He who knows this as such obtains all this

- I When the Father (of creation) produced by knowledge and austerity seven kinds of food, one of his (foods) was common to all beings, two he assigned to the gods, three he made for himself, one he gave to the animals. In it everything rests, whatsoever breathes and what does not. Why then do they not decline when they are being eaten all the time? He who knows this imperishableness, he eats food with his mouth. He goes to the gods, he lives on strength. Thus the verses.

2 'When the Father produced by knowledge and austerity seven kinds of food' means that the Father produced them by knowledge and austerity 'One of his foods was common to all beings' means that the food of his which is eaten is that which is common to all He who worships (eats) that (common food) is not freed from evil for, verily, that (food) is mixed 'Two he assigned to the gods' means they are the fire sacrifice (huta) and the offering Therefore one sacrifices and offers to the gods But they also say that they are the new-moon and the fullmoon sacrifices Therefore one should not offer sacrifice for material ends 'One who gave to the animals' 'that is milk' for, at first, men and animals live on milk alone. Therefore they make a newborn babe first lick clarified butter or put it to the breast, likewise they speak of a newborn calf as one that does not eat grass 'In it everything rests whatsoever breathes and what does not' means that on milk everything rests whatsoever breathes and what does not This is said that by making offerings with milk for a year one conquers further death. One should not think so For he who knows this conquers further death the very day he makes the offering, for he offers all his food to the gods 'Why then do they not decline when they are being eaten all the time,' means verily, the person is imperishable, for he produces this food again and again 'He who knows this imperishableness' means that the Person is imperishable, for he produces this food as his work by his continuous meditation. Should he not do this, his food would be exhausted. 'He eats food with his mouth.' The pratīka is the mouth, he eats it with his mouth.' He goes to the gods; he lives on strength; this is praise.

3 'Three he made for himself.' Mind, speech, breath, these he made for himself '(They say) my mind was elsewhere, I did not see it, my mind was elsewhere, I did not hear.' It is with the mind, truly, that one sees. It is with the mind that one hears. Desire, determination, doubt, faith, lack of faith, steadfastness, lack of steadfastness, shame, intellection, fear, all this is truly mind Therefore even if one is touched on his back, he discerns it with the mind. Whatever sound there is, it is just speech. Venly, it serves to determine an end (object), but is not itself (determined or revealed). The in-breath, the out-breath, the diffused breath, the up-breath, the middle-breath, all that breathes is breath only. Verily, the self consists of speech, mind and breath

See Mastrī VI. 30.

Mere presentation is not enough for perception. Mind must be attentive. We often say that we did not see it or hear it because we were absent-minded. 14 That Prajā-pati is the year and has sixteen parts. His nights, indeed, have fifteen parts, the fixed point his sixteenth part. He is increased and diminished by his nights alone. Having on the new-moon night entered with that sixteenth part into everything here that has breath, he is born thence in the (following) morning. Therefore on that night let no one cut off the breath of any breathing things, not even of a lizard, in honour of that divinity.

- 15 Verily, the person here who knows this is himself that Pragā-pati with the sixteen parts who is the year. His wealth is the fifteen parts, the sixteenth part is his self. In wealth alone is one increased and diminished. That which is the self is a hub, wealth a felly. Therefore even if one loses everything but he himself lives, people say that he has lost only his felly (which can be restored again).

Wealth is compared to the spokes of a wheel It is something external If one loses wealth he loses only his outer trappings. He can regain wealth It is the distinction between being and having, to use Gabriel Marcel's words

The superscription at Delphi, 'Know thyself' is, according to Plutarch, an injunction addressed by God to all who approach him Moraha 384 D f In Alcibiades I 130 E f Socrates says that he who orders 'Know thyself' bids us 'Know the soul,' and he who knows only what is of the body 'knows the things that are his but not himself'

17 Now therefore the transmission When a man thinks that he is about to depart, he says to his son, 'you are Brahman, you are the sacrifice and you are the world 'The son answers, I am Brahman, I am the sacrifice, I am the world 'Verily, whatever has been learnt, all that taken as one is knowledge (Brahman) Verily, whatever sacrifices have been made, all those, taken as one are the world All this is indeed, this much. Being thus the all, let him (the son) preserve me from (the ties of) this world, thus, (the father thinks). Therefore they call a son who is instructed 'world-procuring' and therefore they instruct him When one who knows this departs from this world he enters into his son together with his breaths. Whatever wrong has been done by him, his son frees him from it all, therefore he is called a son By his son a father stands firm in this world Then into him enter those divine immortal breaths.

Verily, that is the divine breath, whether moving or not moving, is not perturbed nor injured. He who knows this becomes the self of all beings. As is this divinity (Hiranya-garbha), so is he. As all beings regard that divinity, so do all beings regard him who knows this Whatever sufferings creatures may undergo, these remain with them. But only merit goes to him. No evil ever goes to the gods.

Individuals suffer because one causes suffering to another, but in the Universal Spirit where all individuals are one, the sufferings of the individuals do not affect the whole

21 Now next a consideration of the observances Praja-pati produced the active senses. They, when they were produced, quarrelled with one another. Speech resolved 'I will go on speaking' The eye 'I will go on seeing.' The ear 'I will go on hearing' And thus the other organs, each according to its function Death, having become weariness, laid hold of them. It took possession of them; having taken possession of them, death held them back from their work. Therefore speech becomes weary (gets tired), the eye becomes weary, the ear becomes weary But death did not take possession of him who was the middle breath They (the senses) sought to know him and said, 'This is, verily, the greatest among us, since (it) whether moving or not moving, is not perturbed, is not injured, let us all assume his form' of him indeed they became a form. Therefore they are called after him 'breath.' In whatever family there is a man who knows this they call that family after him And whoever strives with one who knows this shrivels away and after shrivelling dies in the end. 22 Now with reference to the gods Fire resolved 'I will go on burning' The sun 'I will go on warming' The moon 'I will go on shining' So said the other gods each according to his divine function As breath holds the central position among the vital breaths, so does air among these divinities, for other divinities have their decline but not air Air is the divinity that never sets (never goes to rest)

23 On this there is this verse 'From whom the sun rises and in whom it sets, in truth from breath it rises and in breath it sets. Him the divinities made the law, he only is today and he tomorrow also (Whatever the divinities observed then they observe till today.)' Verily, what those (functions) undertook of old, even that they accomplish today Therefore let a man perform one observance only. He should breathe in and breathe out wishing, 'Let not the evil of death get me' And when he performs it, let him try to complete it. Thereby he wins complete union with that divinity and residence in the same world with him.

See K U. IV

In this dialogue Drpta-bālāki, though a Brāhmana, represents the imperfect knowledge of Brahman, while Ajātaśatru, though a Ksatriya, represents advanced knowledge of Brahman While Drpta-bālāki worships Brahman as the sun, the moon, etc., as limited, Ajātaśatru knows Brahman as the self. drptah proud, garvitah Ś

The fact that a man recovers his consciousness after deep sleep means that it was present even in sleep, though we are not conscious of it. In deep sleep the self perceives nothing whatever and is of the nature of inactive consciousness.

Even as a great king, taking his people, moves about in his country as he pleases, so also here, this one, taking his breaths (senses), moves about in his own body as he pleases.

Round the heart are the veins 72,000 in number. These are of five colours uniting with the rays of the sun similarly coloured. The sun and the heart are said to be connected with each other. In deep sleep the soul glides into the veins and through them it becomes one with the heart. At death the soul is said to pass out by the veins and the rays of the sun which the wise find open to them while they are closed to the ignorant. See also IV 2 3, IV 3 20 C.U. VIII 6 1, M.U. I 2 II. There is another suggestion that only one vein leads to the sun out of 101, the vein in question leading to the head. This refers to the suture, the brahma-randhra (A.U. I. 3 12) through which in the process of creation Brahman is said to enter the body as spirit. The two versions of 72,000 and 101 are mixed up in later accounts.

I Verily, he who knows the new-born babe with his abode, his covering, his post and his rope keeps off his seven hostile kinsmen Verily, this babe is breath in the middle. His abode is this (body). His covering is this (head). His post is breath, His rope is food

The babe is the subtle body (lingātman) which has entered the body in five ways.

Seven hostile kinsmen are said to be the seven organs, the eyes, ears, nostrils and mouth They are said to be hostile, because they hinder the perception of the inner self. See Katha. IV. I. By these man becomes attached to the world

- 2. The seven imperishable ones stand near him (to serve). Thus, there are these red streaks in the eye and by them Rudra is united with him. Then there is the water in the eye, by it Parjanya (is united with him). There is the pupil of the eye, by it Aditya (the sun is united with him) By the black (of the eye), fire (is united with him), by the white (of the eye), Indra (is united with him), by the lower eyelash earth is united with him, by the upper eyelash the heaven (is united with him) He who knows this, his food does not diminish

The seven imperishable ones are so called because they produce imperishableness by supplying food for the subtle body.

Third Brāhmana

THE TWO FORMS OF REALITY

I dve vāva brahmano rūpe, mūrtam cavvāmūrtam ca, martyam cāmrtam ca, sthitam ca, yac ca, sac ca, tyac ca.

I Verily, there are two forms of Brahman, the formed and the formless, the mortal and the immortal, the unmoving and the moving, the actual (existent) and the true (being).

See Maitrī VI 3

- 2. tad etan mūrtam yad anyad vāyoś cāntarıkṣāc ca, etan martyam, etat sthitam, etat sat, tasyaitasya mūrtasya, etasya martyasya etasya sthitasya, etasya sata esa raso ya esa tapati, sato hy esa rasah
- 2. This is the formed Brahman, whatever is different from the air and the atmosphere. This is mortal. This is unmoving, this is actual. The essence of this formed, this mortal, this unmoving, this actual is the yonder sun which gives forth warmth, for that is the essence of the actual.
- 3. athāmūrtam vāyuś cāntarīksam ca, etad amrtam etad yat, etat tyat, tasyaitasyāmūrtasya, etasyāmrtasya, etasya yatah etasya tasyaisa raso ya esa etasmin mandale purusah, tasya hy esa rasah, ity-adhidaivatam
- 3 Now the formless is the air and the atmosphere This is immortal, this is the moving and this is the true. The essence of this unformed, this immortal, this moving, this true is this person who is in the region of the sun for he is the essence (of true) This, with reference to the divinities.
- 4 athādhyātmam ıdam eva mūrtam yad anyat prānāc ca yaś cāyam antarātmann ākāśah, etan martyam, etat sthitam, etat sat, tasyaitasya mūrtasya, etasya martyasya, etasya sthitasya, etasya sata esa raso yac caksuh, sato hy esa rasah.
- 4 Now with reference to the self; just this is the formed, what is different from the breath and from the space which is within the self. This is mortal, this is unmoving, this is actual (existent). The essence of this formed, this mortal, this unmoving, this actual is the eye, for it is the essence of the actual.
- 5 athāmūrtam prānaš ca yas cāyam antar-ātmann ākāśah; etad amrtam, etad yat, etat tyam, tasyartasyāmūrtasya, etasyāmrtasya, etasya yatah, etasya tyasyarsa raso yo'yam daksrņe'kṣan purusah, tyasya hy esa rasah
- 5 Now the formless is the breath and the space which is within the self This is immortal, this is moving, this is the true The essence of this unformed, immortal, moving, true is this person who is in the right eye, for he is the essence of the true
 - tasya haitasya purusasya rūpam yathā māhārajanam vāsah, yathā pāndv-āvīkam, yathendragopah, yathāgnyarcīh, yathā pundarīkam, yathā sakrd-vīdyuttam, sakrd-vīdyutteva ha vā asya śrīr bhavatī, ya evam veda athāta ādešah na iti na iti, na hy etasmād iti, na ity anyat param astī, atha nāma-dheyam satyasya

satyam iti prānā vai satyam, tesām esa satyam

6 The form of this person is like a saffron-coloured robe, like white wool, like the Indragopa insect, like a flame of fire, like a white lotus, like a sudden flash of lightning. He who knows it thus attains splendour like a sudden flash of lightning. Now therefore there is the teaching, not this, not this for there is nothing higher than this, that he is not this. Now the designation for him is the truth of truth. Verily, the vital breath is truth, and He is the truth of that

See also III 9 26, IV 2 4, IV 4 22, IV 5 15

like a sudden flash of lightning enlightenment is said to be instantaneous Truth flashes suddenly like lightning

Mātrceta speaks of the Buddha thus 'Only you yourself can thought, beyond comparison '

In the Republic, there is the impersonal form of the good and in the Timaeus there is the self-moving spirit fit to receive the name of God This section of the Upanisad suggests that the two cannot be left unreconciled but are to be treated as two forms of one Reality

The Fourth Gospel insists that God 'works' in the world, but he works through the Logos who is himself God though not the Godhead Plotinus though he believes in heaven as the rich intelligible or spiritual world in which our individuality is preserved, affirms that on certain rare occasions the human soul may transcend even the realm of spirit, and enter into communion with the one, 'beyond existence,' of whom nothing positive can be affirmed While there is a realm which consists in the duality of subject and object, which is perceived by the intelligence to be coextensive and reciprocally necessary, there is an absolute unity from which all dualities proceed, which is itself above duality. The pseudo-Dionysius called God 'The absolute No-thing which is above all existence' and declares that 'no monad or triad can express the all-transcending hiddenness of the all-transcending superessentially superexisting superdeity' Scotus Erigena says 'God because of his excellence may rightly be called Nothing' Hooker says wisely 'Dangerous it were for the feeble brain of man to wade far into the doings of the Most High, whom although to know be life and joy to make mention of his name, yet our soundest knowledge is to know that we know him not as indeed he is—our safest eloquence concerning him is our silence. Many systems of thought distinguish between the absolutely transcendent Godhead who dwelleth in the light which no man can approach unto and the Creator God. In this famous passage, the Upanisad speaks to us of the Absolute transcendent non-empirical Godhead. This is S's view.

Rāmānuja, however, thinks that since there can be no object without qualities, this passage negates only some attributes and not all of them For Rāmānuja, knowledge is possible only of a determined or qualified object. He argues that the passage does not mean that Brahman has no qualities at all, but only that there are no evil qualities

All objects of the world, earthly possessions, romantic delights, provide opportunities for the realisation of the Self the Self should be seen, heard of, reflected on and meditated upon:

śrotavyah śridi-vākyebhyah, mantavyaś copapattibliih matvā ca satatani dhyeya, ete darśana-hetavah Vivaraņaprameya-samgraha

The Sruti, the text, is the basis for intellectual development, manana It is a means subordinate and necessary to true knowledge; mdidhyāsana is the opposite of thoughtless diffusion. It prepares for integral purity.

Contemplation is not mere philosophic thought It is a higher stage of spiritual consciousness. It secures the direct conviction of the reality. While a teacher can help, personal effort alone can take us to the goal of realisation.

The Jaina and the Buddhist systems also recognise the three stages of religious development. The three jewels of the Jainas, ratna-traya, are right belief, right knowledge and right conduct

Mātrceta says in Salapañcāšalka (90)

āgamasyartha-cıntāya bhāvanopāsanasya ca kāla-traya-vıbhāgo'stı nānyatra tava sāsanāt

Nowhere except in your teaching is there the threefold division of time into hearing the Scriptures, reflection on their meaning and the practise of meditation

The confusion is due to the seeming contradiction that the Self is pure intelligence, and, again, when one has departed there is no more knowledge. The same fire cannot be both hot and cold S points out that Brahman, the pure intelligence, remains unchanged, that it does not pass out with the destruction of the elements, but the individual existence due to avidyā is overcome. katham vijāāna-ghana eva, katham vā na pretya samjāāstīti, na hy usnaś šītaś cāgnir evaiko bhavati. . sa ātmā sarvasya jagatah paramārthato bhūta-nāśān na vināšī, vināšī tv avidyā-kṛta-khilyabhāvah Ś

SACRIFICIAL WORSHIP AND ITS REWARDS

I. janako ha vardeho bahu-daksınena yazñeneje. tatra ha kurupāñcālānām brāhmanā abhisametā babhūvuh tasya ha janakasya vardehasya vızızñāsā babhūva kah svrd esām brāhmanānām anīcānatama rtr. sa ha gavām sahasram avarurodha: daśa daśa pādā ekarkasyāh śrngayor ābaddhā babhūvuh.

I Janaka (King) of Videha performed a sacrifice at which many presents (were offered to the priests) Brahmanas of the Kurus and the Pāñcālas were gathered together there. In this Janaka of Videha arose a desire to know which of these Brahmanas was the most learned in scripture. He enclosed (in a pen) a thousand cows. To the horns (of each cow) were fastened ten coins (of gold).

Though this states the same doctrine as the previous madhuvidyā, S makes out that while the previous section depended on scripture, agama-pradhānam, the present one is based on reasoning, upapatti-pradhānam. When the two, scripture and reasoning, demonstrate the unity of the Self, it is seen clearly as a bael fruit in the palm of one's hand agamopapatii hy ātmaikatva-prakāšanāya pravrtie šaknutah kara-tala-gata-bilvam iva daršayitum. S

- 2. He said to them 'Venerable Brahmaṇas, let him of you who is the wisest Brahmana among you, take away these cows' Those Brahmaṇas did not dare (to take the cows). Then Yājña-valkya said to his pupil 'Sāmaśravas, my dear, drive them away' He drove them away The Brahmanas were enraged (and said) 'How can he declare himself to be the wisest Brahmana among us?' Now, there was Aśvala, the hotr priest of Janaka of Videha He asked him, 'Yājñavalkya, are you, indeed, the wisest Brahmana among us?' He replied, 'We bow to the wisest Brahmana but we just wish to have these cows' Therefore, Asvala, the hote priest, decided to question him.

 $Y\bar{a}j\bar{n}avalkya$ is a teacher of the $Yajur\ Veda$ but his pupil chants the $S\bar{a}man$ which is the $Rg\ Veda$ set to music, and the $Atharva\ Veda$ is subsidiary to the other three. So $Y\bar{a}j\bar{n}avalkya$ is learned in all the four vedas

(Yājñavalkya said) 'By the hotr priest, by fire, by speech. Verily, speech is the hotr of sacrifice. That which is this speech is this fire. This (fire) is hotr This is freedom, this is complete freedom'

'By the adhvaryu priest, by the eye, by the sun Verily, the eye is the adhvaryu of the sacrifice. That which is his eye is the yonder sun. This is the adhvaryu This is freedom. 'By the udgātṛ priest, by the air, by the breath. Verily, the breath is the udgātṛ priest of the sacrifice. That which is this breath is the air. This is the udgātṛ priest. This is freedom. This is complete freedom.'

sage) dies, do the vital breaths move up from him or do they not?' 'No,' replied Yājñavalkya. 'They are gathered together in him. He (the body) swells up, he is inflated and thus inflated the dead man (body) lies'

12 'Yājñavalkya,' said he, 'when such a person dies, what is it that does not leave him?' 'The name The name is infinite and infinite are the Viśve-devās. Thereby he (who knows this) wins an infinite world'

What remains is name, nāma It is the name which does not perish at death Cp with this the Buddhist doctrine that the element which is reborn is nāma-rūpa, nāma and shape Cp Rūmī 'Every shape you see has its archetype in the placeless world and if the shape perished, no matter, since its original is everlasting' Shams-i-Tabriz: XII, Nicholson's E.T

13 'Yājñavalkya,' said he, 'when the speech (voice) of this dead person enters into fire, the breath into air, the eye into the sun, the mind into the moon, hearing into the quarters, the self into the ether, the hairs of the body into the herbs, the hairs on the head into the trees and the blood and the semen are deposited in water, what then becomes of this person?' 'Ārtabhāga, my dear, take my hand We two alone shall know of this, this is not for us two (to speak of) in public 'The two went away and deliberated What they said was karman and what they praised was karman Verily one becomes good by good action, bad by bad action. Therefore, Ārtabhāga of the line of Jaratkāru kept silent.

ātman self, ether in the heart, hrdayākāšam Ś lohitam blood, lohito rohito raktaļi, Amara-koša I 5 15

What then becomes of this person? What is the support by which he again takes birth? The results of action, Karma, produce rebirth

This view finds a parallel in the Buddhist doctrine, that while, at death, the different parts of the individual are scattered to their different sources, karma remains to cause a new existence. See also R V X 16 3

THE RESORT OF THE PERFORMERS OF THE HORSE-SACRIFICE

- r Then Bhujyu Lähyāyani asked him 'Yājñavalkya,' said he, 'we were travelling around as wanderers among the Madra tribe and came to the house of Patañcala Kāpya. He had a daughter who was possessed by a gandharva We asked him "Who are you?" He said, "I am Sudhanvan, a descendant of Angiras" When we were asking him about the ends of the earth, we said to him, "What has become of the Pārikṣitas? What has become of the Pārikṣitas?" And I ask you, Yājñavalkya, what has become of the Pārikṣitas?"

The questioner who obtained the knowledge of the limits of the earth from a gandharva asks Yājñavalkya about the descendants of Parīksit The writer believes in the fact of possession Patañcala's daughter was possessed by a gandharva, an aerial spirit, and so served as a medium She was asked about the actual extent of the world and the place where the sons of Parīksit were

Modern para-psychology is investigating phenomena of possession and mediumship, as these cannot be explained on principles of psychology which are generally recognised

2 Yajñavalkya said, 'He (the gandharva) evidently told (you) that they went where those who perform horse-sacrifices go' And where do the performers of the horse sacrifices go?' Thirty-two times the space covered by the sun's chariot in a day makes this world Around it covering twice the area is the earth Around it covering twice the area is the ocean Now there is just that much interspace as large as the edge of a razor or the wing of a mosquito Indra, having become a bird, delivered them to the air Air, placing them in itself led them to the place where the performers of the horse sacrifice were. Thus did he (the gandharva) praise the air Therefore, air is the separate individuals and air is the totality of all individuals. He who knows it as such, conquers further death' After that Bhujya Lāhvāvani kept silent.

'It is that which transcends hunger and thirst, sorrow and delusion, old age and death The Brahmanas, having known that self, having overcome the desire for sons, the desire for wealth, the desire for worlds, live the life of mendicants That which is the desire for sons is the desire for wealth; that which is the desire for wealth is the desire for the worlds for both these are but desires Therefore let a Brāhmana, after he has done with learning, desire to live as a child When he has done (both) with the state of childhood and with learning, then he becomes silent meditator Having done with (both) the non-meditative and the meditative states, then he becomes a Brāhmana (a knower of Brahman).' It is not a question of remaining as children, but becoming as children It involves the sacrifice of intellectual conceit, a 'sacrificium intellectus'. We must be able to acquire naiveté. It is what Lao Tzu calls 'returning to the root'. St. Paul says 'Thou art beside thyself, much learning doth make thee mad'. Acts xxvi. 24 Cp. 'St. Francis once said that a great scholar when he joined the Order, ought in some sort to resign even his learning, in order that, having stripped himself of such a possession he might offer himself to the arms of the Crucified'. A. G. Little, Franciscan Papers. Lists and Documents (1943), p. 55

Certain things are hidden from the learned and revealed to the babes 'In this hour Jesus rejoiced, saying, I thank Thee, Heavenly Father because Thou hast hidden these things from the wise and prudent and revealed them unto babes' 'Except ye become like little children, ye shall not see the Kingdom of God' To become like little children is not easy It takes much effort to acquire the grace and meekness of the child-like, to measure our littleness against

bālya strength which is the total elimination of the perception of objects of self-knowledge jūāna-bala-bhāva. S This view is different from what is stated above

Mauna is abstinence from speech. It is regarded as helpful for meditation. We must turn away from the world of noise into the inward stillness, the interior silence to become aware of the reality which transcends time and space. Cp. Kierkegaard. 'The present condition of the world is diseased. If I were a doctor and was asked for my advice, I should answer, Create silence, bring men to silence—the world of God cannot be heard in the world today. And if it is blazoned forth with all the panoply of noise so that it can be heard even in the midst of all other noise, then it is no longer the world of God. Therefore, create silence.'

The true knower of Brahman devotes himself exclusively to the contemplation of the self and shuns all other thoughts as distractions.

I Then Uddālaka Ārum asked him, 'Yājñavalkya,' said he, 'we lived in the house of Patañcala Kāpya among the Madras, studying the scriptures on the sacrifices. He had a wife who was possessed by a gandharva. We asked him, "Who are you?" He said, "I am Kabandha Ātharvana." He said to Patañcala Kāpya and those who studied the scriptures on the sacrifices, "Do you know, O Kāpya, that thread by which this world, the other world and all beings are held together?" Patañcala Kāpya said. "I do not know it, Venerable Sir." He said to Patañcala Kāpya and those who studied the scriptures on the sacrifices. "Do you know, Kāpya, that inner controller from within who controls this world and the next and all things." Patañcala Kāpya said, "I do not know it, Venerable Sir." He said to Patañcala Kāpya and those who studied the scriptures on the sacrifices. "He who knows that thread, O Kāpya, and that inner controller, indeed knows Brahman, he knows the worlds, he knows the gods, he knows the Vedas, he knows beings, he knows the self, he knows everything." Thus he explained it to them I know it If you, Yājňavalkya, do not know that thread, that inner controller and still take away the cows that belong only to the knowers of Brahman, your head will fall off' 'I know, O Gautama, that thread and that inner controller' 'Anyone might say, "I know, I know" Tell us what you know'

Ś discusses the text in SB I z 18-20 Both the Kānva and the Mādhyandina recensions speak of the universal and the individual selves as different from each other, the former being the ruler and the latter the ruled The Kānva speaks of the embodied self as the understanding and the Mādhyandina speaks of it as the self: yo viŋñāne tisthan in kānvah, atra viŋñāna-śabdena śarīrah ucyate, ya ālman tisthan in mādhyandinah, atra ātma-śabdah śarīrasya vācakah

Vācaknavī is also Gārgī but she is not the Gārgī, who is the wife of Yājnavalkya brahmadya discussion about Brahman which often accompanied the sacrifices

It is a difficult question If Yājñavalkya does not explain it because he thinks it inexplicable, he lays himself open to the charge of non-comprehension, a-pratipatii, if, on the other hand, he attempts to explain what is inexplicable he would be guilty of contradiction, vi-pratipatii

Therefore the unconditioned Self, being beyond speech and mind, undifferentiated and one, is defined as 'not this,' 'not this', when it has the limiting adjuncts of the body and the organs, the products of ignorance, desire and work, it is called the individual ego, when the self has the limiting adjunct of eternal knowledge and power, it is called the inner controller, the Supreme Lord. By standing in this intermediate state one sees both those states, of being in this world and of being in the other world. Now whatever the way is to the state of being in the other world, having obtained that way one sees both the evils (of this world) and the joys (of the other world) When he goes to sleep he takes along the material of this all-embracing world, himself tears it apart, himself builds it up; he sleeps (dreams) by his own brightness, by his own light. While one is in the state of dream, the self makes the body to sleep but the self remains awake and notices the impressions of the deeds, that have been left upon the mind. By associating himself with the consciousness of the sense-organs, the self causes the body to awake the golden person the light that is pure intelligence, hiranya-maya wa caitanya-yyotis svabhāvah.

S. one should not wake the sleeping person suddenly: this has reference to the popular belief that the self leaves the body in the dream state. āyatam sleeping, gādha-suptam R

To disprove the theory of self-illumination it is said that the state of dream is the same as that of waking as we see in dreams what we see in the waking state This is wrong because in dreams the senses cease to function, so only the light inherent in the self is active in the dream state.

We get on earth to the Kingdom of heaven In sex intercourse when it is rightly conceived, we have an act of pure delight which is not mere physical satisfaction but a psycho-spiritual communion. The rich deep fulfilment of love between a man and a woman is a condition of earthly beatitude so simple, so natural and so real, that it is the happiest of all earthly conditions and many mystics employ this as the symbol of divine communion. The mystic union of the finite and the divine is compared in this passage to the self-oblivion of earthly lovers where each is the other. It is a fuller identity than the mere sympathetic understanding of two individuals

In Vaisnava literature the soul pining for union with God is said to be the bride and the divine love which sanctifies, purifies and elevates the soul to itself is said to be the bridegroom.

St Bernard speaks of the highest contemplation as spiritual marriage which impels the soul to go forth to bear spiritual offspring to the Lord Richard of St Victor, St Bernard's contemporary, dwells upon four phases of spiritual marriage—espousals, marriage, wedlocks, child-bearing John Ruysbroeck's chief work is called The Adornment of the Spiritual Marriage St John of the Cross says 'The end I have in view is the divine embracing, the union of the soul with the divine substance In this loving obscure knowledge God unites Himself with the soul eminently and divinely 'Ascent of Carmel II 24

I. When this self gets to weakness, gets to confusedness, as it were, then the breaths gather round him. He takes to himself those particles of light and descends into the heart. When the person in the eye turns away, then he becomes non-knowing of

forms

When his body grows weak and he becomes apparently unconscious, the dying man gathers his senses about him, completely withdraws their powers and descends into the heart

geis to weakness it is the body that becomes weak. Weakness is figuratively applied to the self, which, being formless, cannot become weak. yad dehasya daurbalyam, tad ātmana eva daurbalyam ity upacaryate: na hy asau svato mūrtatvād abala-bhāvam gacchati. Ś.

22 Verily, he is the great unborn Self who is this (person) consisting of knowledge among the senses In the space within the heart lies the controller of all, the lord of all, the ruler of all. He does not become greater by good works nor smaller by evil works. He is the bridge that serves as the boundary to keep the different worlds apart. Him the Brāhmanas seek to know by the study of the Veda, by sacrifices, by gifts, by penance, by fasting. On knowing Him, in truth, one becomes an ascetic. Desiring Him only as their worlds, monks wander forth Verily, because they know this, the ancient (sages) did not wish for offspring What shall we do with offspring (they said), we who have attained this Self, this world. They, having risen above the desire for sons, the desire for wealth, the desire for worlds, led the life of a mendicant. For the desire for sons is the desire for wealth and the desire for wealth is the desire for worlds; both these are, indeed, desires only. This Self is (that which has been described as) not this, not this. He is incomprehensible for He is never comprehended. He is indestructible for He cannot be destroyed. He is unattached for He does not attach himself He is unfettered. He does not suffer, He is not injured. Him (who knows this) these two (thoughts) do not overcome, for some reason he has done evil or for some reason he has done good. He overcomes both What he has done or what he has not done does not burn (affect) him.

This very (doctrine) has been expressed in the hymn This eternal greatness of the knower of Brahman is not increased by work nor diminished. One should know the nature of that alone. Having found that, one is not tainted by evil action. Therefore he who knows it as such, having become calm, self-controlled, withdrawn, patient and collected sees the Self in his own self, sees all in the Self. Evil does not overcome him, he overcomes all evil. Evil does not burn (affect) him, he burns (consumes) all evil. Free from evil, free from taint, free from doubt he becomes a knower of Brahmā. This is the world of Brahmā, Your Majesty, you have attained it, said Yājñavalkya. Janaka (King) of Videha said, 'Venerable Sir, I give you the (empire of) Videhas and myself also to serve you'

Fifth Brāhmana

THE SUPREME SELF AND THE SUPREME VALUE

I atha ha yājñavalkyasya dve bhārye babhūvatuḥ, maitreyī ca kātyāyanī ca. tayor ha maitreyī brahma-vādinī babhūva, strī-prajňasva tarhs kātyāyanī. atha yājñavalkyo'nyad-vṛttam upākarīsyan.

I. Now then, Yājñavalkya had two wives, Maitreyī and Kātyāyanī Of these (two) Maitreyī was a discourser on Brahmaknowledge, while Kātyāyanī possessed only such knowledge as women have. Now then, Yājñavalkya when he wished to get ready for another mode of life—

Second Brāhmaņa

THE THREE PRINCIPAL VIRTUES

I. trayāh prājāpatyāh prajāpatau pitari brahma-caryam ūsuh, devā manusyā asurāh, usitvā brahmacaryam devā ūcuh; bravītu no bhavān iti; tebhyo haitad aksaram uvāca; da iti, vyajñāsistā iti; vyajñāsisma iti hocuh, dāmyata, iti na āttheti, aum iti hovāca, vyajñāsisteti.

I The threefold offspring of Prajā-pati, gods, men and demons, lived with their father Prajā-pati as students of sacred knowledge Having completed their studentship the gods said, 'Please tell (instruct) us, sir.' To them then, he uttered the syllable da (and asked) 'Have you understood?' They (said) 'We have understood, you said to us "dāmyata," "control yourselves".' He said, 'Yes, you have understood.'

The gods are said to be naturally unruly and so are asked to practise self-control adāntā yūyam svabhāvatah ato dāntā bhavateti Śūşuh uṣitavantah. Raum yes, samyak Ś, anujñām eva vibhajate Ā, satyam R

2. atha haınam manuşyā ūcuh' bravītu no bhavān 1ti; tebhyo haitad evākṣaram uvāca; da 1ti; vyajñāsıştā iti, vyajñāsısma iti hocuh, datta 1tı na āttheti; aum iti hovāca vyajñāsıstetı

2 Then the men said to him, 'Please tell (instruct) us, sir.' To them he uttered the same syllable da (and asked) 'Have you understood?' They said, 'We have understood You said to us "give".' He said, 'Yes, you have understood'

Men are naturally avaricious and so they should distribute their wealth to the best of their ability svabhāvato lubdhā yūyam, ato yathāśaktyā samvibhajata Ś

- 3 atha hainam asurā ūcuh, bravītu no bhavān iti, tebhyo haitad evāksaram uvāca; da iti, vyajñāsistā iti, vyajñāsisma iti hocuh, dayadhvam iti na ättheti, aum iti hovāca vyajñāsisteti tad etad evaisā daivī vāg anuvadati stanayitnuh—da, da, da iti, damyata, datta, dayadhvam iti tad etat trayam sikṣet, damam, dānam, dayām iti.
- 3 Then the demons said to him, 'Please tell (instruct) us, sir.' To them he uttered the same syllable da and asked, 'Have you understood?' They said, 'We have understood, you said to us, "dayadhvam," "be compassionate" He said, 'Yes, you have understood' This very thing the heavenly voice of thunder repeats da, da, da, that is, control yourselves, give, be compassionate One should practise this same triad, self-control, giving and compassion

The demons are cruel, given to inflicting injury on others, they should have compassion and be kind to all krūrā yūyam kimsādi-

parāh, ato dayadhvam prāņisu dayām kuruteti S

It is suggested that there are no gods or demons other than men If they are lacking in self-control while endowed with other good qualities, they are gods, if they are particularly greedy they are men; if they are cruel and given to inflicting injury on others, they are demons, Men themselves are distinguished into these three classes according to their lack of self-control and the possession of other defects or according to the tendencies of the three gunas na devā asurā vā nye kecana vidyante manusyebhyah manusyānām evādāntā ye 'nyair utlamair gunais sampannāh, te devāh, lobha-pradhānā manusyāh, tathā himsāparāh krūrāh asurāh ta eva manusyā adāntatvādi-dosa-trayam apeksya devādi-śabda-bhājo bhavanti, itarāms

ahimsā satyam āsteyam śaucam ındriya-nıgrahah

dānam damo dayā šāntih sarvesām

Gautama the Buddha is described as the embodiment of compassion, karunā, and non-injury, ahimsā. Mātrceta in his Śata-pañcaśatka says

kam nu prathamato vande tvām mahā-karunām uta yayawam apı dosayñas tvam samsāre dhṛtas ciram

Which shall I first extol, you or the great compassion by which you are held so long in samsara, though knowing its faults so well? 59

viruddhesu api vätsalyam pravṛttih patstesvapi raudresv api kṛpālutvam kā nāmeyam tavāryatā

You have affection even for the hostile, benevolence even to the fallen, tenderness even to the cruel, wonderful is your greatness 105. akrostāro jitāh ksāntyā drugdhāh svastyayanena ca.

satyena capavaktāras trayā mātiryā jīghāmsavah

You overcame the revilers by forbearance, the malicious by blessing,

the slanderers by truth, the wicked by kindness. 122

The three injunctions require us to go about doing good even though we find ourselves in a world of evil Self-control is necessary for we must not be elated by success or deterred by failure. Dayā or compassion is more than sympathy or intellectual and emotional feeling. It is love in action, fellowship in suffering. It is feeling as one's own the circumstances and aspirations to self-perfection which we find in others. The practice of these virtues will preserve, promote and enhance the values of life.

yam is one syllable. The first and the last syllables are the truth; in the middle is untruth. This untruth is enclosed on both sides by truth, it partakes of the nature of truth itself. Him who knows this, untruth does not injure.

Water is the seed of the universe and in the beginning it is in an undifferentiated form: āpo bīja-bhūtā jagato vyākṛtātmanā 'vas-thitāh Ś

In commenting on Thales' choice of water as the first principle, Aristotle suggests that 'he got the notion perhaps from seeing that the nutriment of all things is moist, and that heat itself is generated by the moist and kept alive by it. and that the seed of all creatures has a moist nature, and water is the origin of the nature of moist things.' THE SACRED GAYATRI PRAYER

I bhūmır antarıksam dyauh ity asṭāv aksarānı; aṣṭāksaram ha vā ekam gāyatryaı padam, etad u haivāsyā etat, sa yāvad esu trıṣu lokeṣu, tāvaddha jayati, yo'syā etad evam padam veda.

I. The earth, the sky and heaven (make) eight syllables. Of eight syllables, verily, is one foot (line) of the Gāyatrī. This (one foot) of it is that He who knows the foot of the Gāyatrī to be such wins as far as the three worlds extend.

The Gāyatrī (or Sāwtrī) is a sacred verse of the R.V. It reads:—
tat sawtur varenyam, bhargo devasya dhīmahn, dhiyo yo nah pracodayāt 'We meditate on the adorable glory of the radiant sun; may he inspire our intelligence,' III 57. 10. There is a metre called Gāyatrī which has three feet of eight syllables each. The Gāyātrī verse is in this metre

2 rco yajūmsı samani, ity astav aksarani; astakşaran ha va ekam gayatrai padam. etad u havvasya etat. sa yavatiyam

2 Rcah (verses) Yayūmṣi (sacrificial formulas) Sāmāni (chants) (make) eight syllables. Of eight syllables, verily, is one foot of the Gāyatri This (one foot of it) is that (series). He who knows the foot of the Gāyatrī to be such wins as far as this threefold knowledge extends hawa śrwa, yaśasa tapati, yo'sya etad evam padam veda.

3 prāno pāno vyānah, ity aṣtāv aksarāṇi; asṭāksaram ha vā ekam gāyatrai padam etad u haivāsyā etat. sa yāvad idam prāṇi, tāvad ha jayati, yo'syā etad evam padam veda athāsya etad eva turīyam darsatam padam parorajā ya esa tapati; yad vai caturtham tat turīyam; darsatam padam iti, dadrsa iva hy eṣaḥ; parorajā iti, sarvam u hy evaisa raja upari upari tapati. evam

3 Prāna (un-breath), apāna (out-breath), vyāna (diffused breath) (make) eight syllables. Of eight syllables, verily, is one foot of the Gāyatrī This (one foot of it) is that series He who knows the foot of the Gāyatrī to be such wins as far as his breathing extends. Of this (the Gāyatrī) this, indeed, is the fourth, the visible foot, above the dark skies (the sun) who glows yonder This fourth is the same as the turīya. It is called the visible foot because it has come into sight as it were.

He is called above the dark skies, because he glows yonder far higher and higher than everything dark. He who knows that foot of it to be such, he glows with prosperity and fame

- 4 That Gāyatrī rests on that fourth, the visible foot, above the dark skies That again rests on truth Verily, truth is sight; for, verily, truth is sight Therefore, if now, the two persons come disputing, one saying, 'I saw,' and the other 'I heard,' we should trust the one who says, 'I saw' Verily, that truth rests on strength Life-breath, verily, is strength Truth rests on life-breath Therefore they say that strength is more powerful than truth Thus is that Gāyatrī based with regard to the self The Gāyatrī protects the gayās, the gayās are the life-breaths and it protects the life-breaths Now because it protects the life-breath, therefore it is called the Gāyatrī That Sāvitrī verse which (the teacher) teaches, it is just this And whomsoever he teaches, it protects his life-breaths metre (saying) that speech is anistubh and that we impart (teach) that speech to him. One should not do like that. One should teach the $S\bar{a}vitr\bar{\imath}$ which is the $G\bar{a}yatr\bar{\imath}$ Verily, if one who knows thus receive very much (as gifts) that is not at all equal to a single foot of the $G\bar{a}yatr\bar{\imath}$

- 4 O Agni (Fire), lead us, along the auspicious path to prosperity, O God, who knowest all our deeds Take away from us deceitful sin We shall offer many prayers unto thee.

See RV I 189 I who knowest all our deeds It is an expression of humility born of the sense that we are always in God's presence, that all our thoughts and actions are open to His sight. He is at all times present with us take away from us deceiful sin. It is an imploring or supplication concerning sins. God is a searcher not of words but of hearts.

THE SIX BODILY FUNCTIONS AND THE IMPORTANCE OF LIFE-BREATH

I. yo ha vai jyeştham ca śreştham ca veda, jyeşthaś ca śreşthaś ca svānām bhavati, prāno vai jyesthaś ca, śreşthaś ca, jyeşthaś ca śreşthaś ca svānām bhavatı; apı ca yesām bubhūşati, ya evam veda.

r. Verily, he who knows the oldest and the greatest becomes the oldest and the greatest of his own people. Life-breath is, indeed, the oldest and the greatest. He who knows this becomes the oldest and the greatest of his own people as well as of those of whom he wishes so to become.

See CU V. I, KU III 3, Prasna II. 3.

Oldest and greatest are the attributes of priority in age and excellence The oldest is not necessarily the greatest. The vital force is, however, the first in time as well as in importance.

- 2. yo ha vas vasısthām veda, vasışthah svānām bhavatı vāg vas vasışthā vasışthah svānām bhavatı. api ca yeşām bubhūsatı ya evan veda.
- 2. Verily, he who knows the most excellent becomes the most excellent of his own people. Speech is, indeed, the most excellent. He who knows this becomes the most excellent of his own people as well as of those of whom he wishes so to become.

3. yo ha vai pratisthām veda, pratitisthati same, pratitisthati durge, cakşur vai pratisthā, cakşusā hi same ca durge ca pratitisthati pratitisthati same, pratitisthati durge, ya evam veda

- 3. Verily, he who knows the firm basis has a firm basis on even ground, has a firm basis on uneven ground. The eye, indeed, is the firm basis for with the eye one has a firm basis on even and on uneven ground. He who knows this has a firm basis on even ground, has a firm basis on uneven ground.
- 4. yo ha vai sampadan veda, san hāsmai padyate, yan kāman kāmayate; śrotram vai sampat; śrotre hīme sarve vedā abhisam-pannāh. sam hāsmai padyate, yam kāman kāmayate, ya evan veda.

4 Verily, he who knows prosperity, for him, indeed is attained whatever desire he desires. The ear, indeed, is prosperity for in the ear are all these Vedas attained. For him who knows this, whatever desire he desires is attained.

Only he who has the organ of hearing can study the Vedas

5 yo ha vā āyatanam veda, āyatanam svānām bhavatı, āyatanam janānām mano vā āyatanam, āyatanam svānām

5 Verily, he who knows the abode becomes the abode of his own people as well as of (other) people The mind, indeed, is the abode He who knows this becomes the abode of his own people as well as of (other) people

6 yo ha vai prajātim veda, prajāyate ha prajayā paśubhih. reto vai prajātih, prajāyate ha prajayā paśubhih, ya evam veda

6 Verily, he who knows procreation procreates himself with offspring and cattle Semen, verily, is procreation. He who knows this, procreates himself with progeny and cattle

By semen is meant the organ of generation, relasa prajananendriyam upalaksyate $

7. These vital breaths, disputing among themselves about their self-superiority went to Brahmā and said, 'Which of us is the most excellent?' He then said, that one of you is the most excellent after whose departure this body is thought to be worse off.

These passages indicate the intimate connection between the Atharva Veda and the Upanisads Some practices in the latter are treated in the manner of the Atharva Veda They include even love charms to compel a woman to yield her love, charms to prevent conception or bring it about when desired Even here the knowledge motive is dominant

The sexual act is explained as a kind of ritual performance, the elements of which are identified with the parts of the woman's body. We are told that if a man practises sex intercourse with the knowledge of this, he gains a world as great as he who sacrifices with the Vājapeya rite and takes to himself the merit of the women, but if he practises it without this knowledge, women take to themselves his merit.

CHĀNDOGYA UPANIŞAD

The Chandogya Upanişad belongs to the Sama Veda Chandoga is the singer of the Saman. The Upanişad that belongs to the followers of the Sama Veda is the Chandogya Upanişad. It is a part of the Chandogya Brāhmana which has ten chapters. The first two chapters of the Brāhmana deal with sacrifices and other forms of worship. The other eight constitute the Chandogya Upanişad.

The first and the second chapters discuss the problems of liturgy and doctrine such as the genesis and significance of Aum and the meaning and names of Saman

CHAPTER I

Section 1

THE SYLLABLE AUM AS THE UDGITHA

I. aum ıty etad aksaram udgītham upāsīta, aum iti hrd

gāyati tasyopavyākhyānam.

I Aum One should meditate on this syllable, the udgitha, for one sings the loud chant beginning with aum. Of this (follows) the explanation.

The syllable aum, with which every recital of the Vedic chants begins, is here represented as the symbol of the Supreme and therefore the means of the meditation of the Supreme: arcadivat parasyālmanah pratīkam sampadyate, evam nāmatvena pratīkatvena ca paramātmopāsana-sādhanām šrestham iti sarva-vedāntēsv avagatam 🖇 🕹 Before we attain to the supreme vision of God, the contemplative realisation, we have to resort to prayer and meditation We may chant and sing with devout mind, with fervour of spirit, with an inmost longing for the things above, with a purity of soul We strive to keep the soul unembarrassed and at rest from all thoughts We direct our attention lovingly and continuously towards God

In meditation, the soul is furnished with a symbol on which we fix our gaze, on which we concentrate all our imagination and reasoning When meditation reaches its end, when there is no distraction or disquiet, when there is calm repose, sweet tranquillity, there is the vision Any name may raise us to perfect contemplation. We start with prayer, we pass on to meditation When the discursive acts cease, we have contemplation The Upanisad opens with this instruction to concentrate on the syllable aum, to draw our thoughts away from all other subjects, to develop ekägratā or one-pointedness. Symbol cannot be taken as final It has a number of aspects When it is transposed into the words of ordinary language it becomes dim and rigid We then tend to confine the meaning within narrow dogmatic frames Even though the syllable aum like all symbols covers the reality as by a veil, to those who know how to look, the veil becomes transparent.

2 The essence of these beings is the earth; the essence of the earth is water. The essence of water is plants; the essence of plants is a person. The essence of a person is speech. The essence of speech is the Rk (hymn). The essence of the Rk is

rasa essence, literally flavour

3 sa cşa rasanam rasatamah paramah parardhyo'şiamo yad udgithah

3 That is the quintessence of the essences, the Supreme, the highest, the eighth, namely the udgitha.

parārdhya highest, from para highest and ardha place

4 katamā katamā rk, katamat katamat sāma, katamah katama udgītha iti vimrstam bhavati

4 Which one is the Rk? Which one is the Saman? Which one is the udgitha? This is what is (now) considered

5 vãg eva rk, prâṇah sāmomity etad akṣaram udgīthah, tad vā etan mithunam yad vāk ca prānas ca rk ca sāma ca

5 Speech, indeed, is Rk; breath is $S\bar{a}man$, the syllable aum is the $udg\bar{\imath}tha$ Now, this is a pair, namely speech and breath, and also the Rk and the $S\bar{a}man$

6 tad etan mithunam aum ity etasminn akşare samsriyate, yadā vai mithunau samāgacchata, āpayato vai tāv anyo'nyasya kāmam

6 This pair is joined together in the syllable aum Verily, whenever a pair come together, they fulfil each other's desire

7 āpayıtā ha vas kāmānām bhavats ya etad evam vidvān akşaram udgītham upāste

7 He, who knowing this thus, meditates on the syllable as the udgītha, becomes, verily, a fulfiller of desires

8 tad vā etad anujūākṣaram, yaddhi kim cānujānāty aun ity eva tad āha, esā eva samrddhir yad anujūā, samardhayitā ha vai kāmānām bhavati ya etad evam vidvān aksaram udgītham upāste

8 Verily, this syllable is of assent, for whenever one assents to anything he says simply 'aum' What is assent is fulfilment. He, who knowing this thus, meditates on the syllable as the udgītha, becomes, verily, a fulfiller of desires

9 teneyam trayī vidyā vartata, aum ity āśrāvayati, aum iti śamsati, aum ity udgāyati, etasyaivākşarasyāpacityai mahimnā rasena

o By this does the threefold knowledge proceed Saying aum, one recites saying aum, one orders saying, aum, one sings aloud, in honour of that syllable, with its greatness and its essence

Threefold knowledge relates to the three orders of priests in the sacrificial rites S thinks that the reference is to the Soma sacrifice

10 tenobhau kuruto yaścartad evam veda yaś ca na veda: nānā tu vidyā cāvidyā ca; yad eva vidyayā karoti śraddhayopanısadā, tad eva vīryavattaram bhavatīti, khalv etasyaivāksarasyopavyākhyānam bhavatı.

10 He who knows this thus, and he who knows not, both perform with it. Knowledge and ignorance, however, are different What, indeed, one performs with knowledge, faith and meditation, that, indeed, becomes more powerful This, verily, is the explanation of this syllable.

Vidyā is right knowledge, śraddhā is faith and upanisad is meditative insight upanisadā yogena S.

We must perform the sacrifice with knowledge and not ignorantly We must understand what we are doing God is the inspector of our hearts as much as the judge of our acts Our acts must be accompanied by the devotion of our minds

'As the sun arises, he removes the darkness of night and the fears of living beings consequent on it. One who knows the sun with these qualities, becomes the destroyer of all fears of the self in the shape of birth, death, etc., and also of the cause of fear, darkness in the shape of ignorance' S amun codgītham upāsīta.

2 This (breath) in the mouth and that (sun) are alike This is warm. That is warm. This, they call sound and that, they call sound as the reflecting sound. Verily, one should meditate on this and on that as the udgitha

3 atha khalu vyānam evodgītham upāsīta; yadvai prāniti sa prāno, yad apāniti so'pānah, atha yah prānāpānayoh sandhih sa vyāno, yo vyānah sā vāk, tasmād aprānann anapānan vācam

3 But one should meditate on the diffused breath as the udgītha That which one breathes in, that is the in-breath; that which one breathes out, that is the out-breath The junction of the in-breath and the out-breath is the diffused breath The diffused breath is the speech. Therefore one utters speech, without in-breathing and without out-breathing

When we speak, we neither breathe in nor breathe out

4 yā vāk sā rk, tasmād aprāņan anapānan rcam abhīvyāharatī; yā rk tat sāma, tasmād aprānan anapānan sāma gāyatī; yat sāma

sa udgīthas tasmād aprānan anapānan udgāyati

4 Speech is Rk Therefore one utters the Rk without inbreathing and without out-breathing The Rk is the $S\bar{a}man$ Therefore one sings the $S\bar{a}man$, without in-breathing and without out-breathing The $S\bar{a}man$ is the $udg\bar{\imath}tha$ Therefore one chants the $udg\bar{\imath}tha$, without in-breathing and without out-breathing.

5 ato yāny anyām vīryavantı karmānı, yathāgner manthanam, ājeh saranam, drdhasya dhanusa āyamanam, aprānan anapānams tān karotı, etasya hetor vyānam evodgītham upāsīta.

5. Therefore, whatever other actions there are that require strength, such as the kindling of fire by friction, the running of a race, the bending of a strong bow, one performs (them) without in-breathing and without out-breathing Therefore one should meditate on the diffused breath as the udgītha.

Whenever we do an action which involves effort and attention we hold our breath

- 6. atha khalūdgīthāksarāny upāsītodgītha iii prāna evotprānena hy uttisthati, vāg gīr vāco ha gira ity ācaksate'nnam tham anne hīdam sarvam sthitam
- 6 Now one should meditate on the syllables of the udgītha, ut, gī, tha ut is breath, for through breath one rises gī is speech, for speeches are called giras, tha is food, for on food is all this established.
- 7 dyaur evot, antariksam gīh, pṛthivī tham, āditya evot, vāyur gīr, agnis tham; sāmaveda evot, yajurvedo gīr, rgvedas tham; dugdhe'smai vāg doham, yo vāco doho'nnavān annādo bhavati, ya clāny evam vidvān udgīthāksarāny upāsta, udgītha iti.
- 7. Heaven is ut, atmosphere is $g\bar{\imath}$ and the earth, tha. The sun is ut, the air, $g\bar{\imath}$ and the fire, tha The Sāmaveda is ut, the Yajurveda, $g\bar{\imath}$ and the Rg Veda, tha Speech yields milk and the milk is speech For him, he becomes rich in food, an eater of

8 atha khalv āśīh samrādhir upasaraņānīty upāsīta yena sāmnā stosyan syāt tat sāmopadhāvet

8 Now then, the fulfilment of wishes One should meditate on the places of refuge One should reflect on the Sāman with which one is about to sing a praise

- 12 Finally, one should enter into oneself and sing a praise, meditating carefully on one's desire Quickly will be fulfilled for him the desire, desiring which he may sing the praise, yea, desiring which he may sing the praise

abhyāśa quickly Be sure, depend on it that it will be fulfilled.

THE SUPERIORITY OF AUM

I aum ity etad aksaram udgītham upasītom iti hy udgāyati, tasyopavyākhyānam

- I. Aum. One should meditate on the udgītha as this syllable, for one sings the loud chant, beginning with aum. (Now follows) its explanation.
- 2 devā vai mrtyor bibhyatas trayīn vidyām pravisams te chandobhir acchādayan, yad ebhir acchādayams tac chandasām chandas tvam.
- 2. Verily, the gods, when they were afraid of death, took refuge in the threefold knowledge. They covered themselves with metres. Because they covered themselves with these, therefore the metres are called chandas.

trayīm vidyām threefold-knowledge, the three Vedas

3 tān u tatra mrtyur yathā matsyam udake paripasyct, evam paryapasyad rci sāmni yajusi, te nu viditvordhvā rcah sāmno yajusah, svaram eva pravisan

3 Death saw them there in the Rg, in the $S\bar{a}man$ and in the Yayus just as one might see a fish in water. When they found this out, they rose out of the Rg, out of the $S\bar{a}man$, out of the Yayus and took refuge in sound

svaram sound, the syllable aum

4. yadā vā rcam āpnoty aum ity evātisvaraty evam sāmaivam yajur eşa u svaro yad etad aksaram etad amṛtam abhayam tat pravisya devā amrtā abhayā abhavan.

4 Verily, when one learns the Rk, one sounds out aum. (It is) the same with $S\bar{a}man$, (it is) the same with Yajus This sound is that syllable, the immortal, the fearless Having entered this, the gods become immortal, fearless.

- 5 sa ya etad evam vidvān aksaram pranaity etad evāksaram svaram amrtam abhayam pravišati, tat pravišya yad amṛtā devās tad amrto bhavati
- 5. He, who knowing it thus, praises this syllable, takes refuge in that syllable, in the immortal, fearless sound, and having entered it, he becomes immortal, even as the gods become immortal

There is no difference of degree between the immortality of the gods and that of freed men S

I athādhyātmam vāg eva rk, prānah sāma, tad etad etasyām rey adhyūdham sāma, tasmād rey adhyūdham sāma gīyate, vāg eva sā prāno'mas tat sāma

I Now with reference to the body Speech is the Rk breath is the $S\bar{a}man$ This $S\bar{a}man$ rests upon that Rk. Therefore the $S\bar{a}man$ is sung as resting on that Rk Speech is $s\bar{a}$ and breath, ama and that makes $s\bar{a}man$

- caksur eva 1g ātmā sāma, tad etad etasyām rcy adhyūdham sāma, tasmād rcy adhyūdham sāma gīyate, cakşur eva sā'tmā'mas tat sāma
- 2. The eye is the Rk, the soul is the $S\bar{a}man$. This $S\bar{a}man$ rests on that Rk, therefore the $S\bar{a}man$ is sung as resting on the Rk The eye is $s\bar{a}$ and the soul ama and that makes $s\bar{a}man$
- 3 śrotram eva rn manah sāma, tad etad etasyām rcy adhyūdham sāma, tasmād rcy adhyūdham sāma gīyate, śrotram eva sā mano'mas tat sāma.
- 3 The ear is the Rk and the mind is the $S\bar{a}man$ This $S\bar{a}man$ rests on that Rk Therefore the $S\bar{a}man$ is sung as resting on the Rk The ear is $s\bar{a}$ and the mind ama and that makes $s\bar{a}man$
- 4 atha yad etad aksnah suklam bhāh saiva rk, atha yan nīlam parah krsnam tat sāma, tad etad etasyām rcy adhyūdham sāma, tasmāt rcy adhyūdham sāma gīyate, atha yad evaitad aksnah suklam bhāh saiva sā'tha yan nīlam parah krsnam tad amas tat sāma
 - 4 Now, the white light of the eye is Rh and the blue exceeding darkness is $S\bar{a}man$ This $S\bar{a}man$ rests on that Rh. Therefore the $S\bar{a}man$ is sung as resting on the Rh The white light of the eye is $s\bar{a}$ and the blue, exceeding darkness, ama and that makes $s\bar{a}man$.
 - 5 atha ya eso'ntar-aksını puruso drsyate saiva 1k, tat sama, tad uktham, tad yazıh, tad brahma, tasyaıtasya tad eva rūpam yad amusya rūpam, yav amusya gesnau tau gesnau, yan nama tan nama.
 - 5 Now, this person who is seen within the eye is the hymn (rk), the chant (the sāman), is the recitation (uktha), is the sacrificial formula (yayus), is the prayer (brahman) The form of this one is the same as the form of that (person seen in the sun) The songs of the former are the songs of this. The name of the one is the name of the other.
 - 6 sa eşa ye cartasmād arvānco lokās tesām ceşte manusyakāmānām cetr, tad ya rme vīnāyām gāyanty etam te gāyantr, tasmāt ic dhana-sanayah.
 - 6. He is the lord of the worlds which are under this one and also of men's desires. So those who sing on the $v\bar{v}n\bar{a}$ sing of him. Therefore they are winners of wealth

Vina is a musical instrument which has had a long history in India

- 7 atha ya etad evam vidvān sāma gāyaty ubhau sa gāyatı, so'munava sa esa ye cāmusmāt parāñco lokās tāms cāpnoti deva-kāmāms ca
- 7 Now, he, who knowing this, sings the Sāman, sings of both Through the former (person in the sun) he obtains the worlds which are beyond that (the sun) as also the desires of the gods

8 athānenawa ye cartasmād, arvānco lokās tāms cāpnots

8 And through this (person in the eye) he obtains the worlds which are under the latter and also the desires of men Therefore an udgātr priest, who knows this, should say (the following)

9 kam te kāmam āgāyānīty esa hy eva kāmāgānasyeste, ya evam

vidvān sāma gāyati, sāma gāyati.

9 What desire may I win for you by singing? 'He, truly, becomes capable of obtaining desires by singing, he, who knowing this sings the Sāman, yea, sings the Sāman'

- I There were three persons well-versed in the udgītha, Silaka the son of Sālāvat, the son of Cikitāna of the Dalbha clan, and Pravāhana, son of Jīvala They said 'We are, indeed, well-versed in the udgītha Well, let us have a discussion on the udgītha'
- 2 tatheti ha samupavıvısuh, sa ha pravāhano jawalır uvāca, bhagavantāv agre vadatām, brāhmanayor vadator vācam śrosyāmīti

2 'So be it' said they and sat down Then, Pravahana, son of Jivala, said 'You two, sirs, speak first. I will listen to the words of the two Brāhmanas discussing'

From this it appears that Pravāhana was a Ksatriya See C U V 3 5, where he is said to be rājanya-bandhuh Even though he is not a

Brāhmana, he happens to be the one who knows the true meaning of udgītha

The enormity of the error is suggested by the statement that your head will fall off if one utters a curse like that

See VII 12 I

Space is said to be the origin, support and end of all

The theory that space is the ultimate ground of the world is regarded as more satisfactory than the view which traces it to sound, breath, food, water, yonder world or this world

THE DIVINITIES CONNECTED WITH THE SACRIFICES

I. majacī hatesu kurusv ātikyā saha jāyayoşastir ha cākrāyaņa ibhya-grāme pradrānaka uvāsa

I Among the Kurus, when they (crops) were destroyed by hailstorms, there lived in the village of the possessor of elephants a very poor man, Uşastı Cākrāyana, with his young wife, Ātiki.

The story is intended to make the comprehension easier.

ibhya-grāme—in the village of the possessor of elephants or in the village belonging to Ibhya

2. sa hebhyam kulmāṣān khādantam bibhikse, taṁ hovāca, neto'nye vidyante yac ca ye ma ıma upanıhıtā ıtı

2. He begged (food) of the possessor of elephants, while he was eating beans. He (the possessor) said to him: 'I have no other than these which are set before me'

The rich man said that the beans were in the plate from which he was eating and therefore they were impure

- 3 eteşām me dehītı hovāca, tān asmaı pradadau, hantānupānam ıty, ucchıstham vai me pītam syād ıti hovāca.
- ¹ Professor S. K Chatter_l1 suggests the alternative explanation of malaci, locust, an old Dravidian loan word in Sanskrit. Cp. Kannada midice, Brahmi malakh.

- 3 He said 'Give me some of them' He gave them to him and said, 'Here is water (to drink).' He replied, 'That would be for me to drink something left by another (and hence impure)'
- 4 na svid ete þy ucchişthāh iti, na vā ajīvisyam imān akhādann iti hovāca, kāmo ma udaka-pānam iti.
- 4 Are not these (beans) also left over (and so impure)? 'Verily,' said he, 'I could not live if I did not eat these The drinking of water is at my will'

'One who is endowed with knowledge and fame and capable of helping himself and others, if such a one, falling into a state of distress should do such a thing (eat unclean food), no dement touches him A wrong action is faulty only when it is performed while other courses that are not wrong are open and would as easily saye one's life' S

- 6 Next morning, he arose and said, 'Oh, if I could get something to eat, I might make a little money. The king over there is having a sacrifice performed for himself. He might choose (select) me to perform all the priestly offices.'
- 7 tanı jäyoväca, hanla eta ıma eva kulmāsā iti. tān khādītvāmum yajñam vitatam eyāya
- 7 His wife said to him 'Here, my lord, are the beans' Having eaten them, he went over to the sacrifice that was being performed

In addition to personal religion, the Vedas advocated public worship by means of sacrifices. In the period of the Veda, there were no temples Public worship was needed in view of the social nature of man. In a crowd, emotions are more easily excited. In every religion, social worship of God is recognised, in which music, singing and ritual are employed to evoke religious feeling and actions Yajūas or sacrifices are solemn and stately social acts.

THE CHANT IS GOOD IN VARIOUS WAYS

I. avin samastasya khalu sāmna upāsanam sādhu, yat khalu sādhu tat sāmety ācaksate, yad asādhu tad a-sāmeti.

I. Aum, Meditation on the entire Sāman is good Whatever is good, people call Sāman and whatever is not good a-sāman

2. tad utāpy āhuh sāmnainam upāgād its sādhunainam upāgād ity eva tad āhuh asāmnainam upāgād ity asādhunainam upāgād ity eva tad āhuh.

2. So also people say, 'He approached with Sāman'; that is they say, 'he approached him in a kindly way.' They say, 'He approached him with no Sāman,' i e they say 'he approached him in no kindly way.'

Sāman is understood as the good, as the dharma.

3 athotāpy āhuḥ sāma no bateti yat sādhu bhavati sādhu batety eva tad āhuḥ, asāma no bateti yad asādhu bhavaty asādhu batety eva tad āhuh

3 And they say 'this, verily, is Sāman for us' Where they say 'this is good for us' when anything is good And they say 'this is a sāman for us,' where they say, 'this is not good' when anything is not good.

4. sa ya etad cvani vidvān sādhu sāmety upāste'bhyāso ha yad enam sādhavo dharmā ā ca gaccheyur upa ca nameyuh

4. He who, knowing this, meditates on the Sāman as good, all good qualities would quickly approach him and accrue to him.

SOME ANALOGIES TO THE FIVEFOLD CHANT IN THE WORLDS

1. lokeşu pañca-vidhah sāmopāsīta. pṛthivī him-kārah, agnih prastāvo'ntariksah udgīthah, ādityah pratihāro dyaur nidhanam ity ūrdhveṣu.

I. In the worlds, one should meditate on the Sāman as fivefold; the earth as the syllable him, fire as the prastāva, the atmosphere as the udgītha, the sun as the prathāra and the sky as the nidhana (conclusion) This, among the higher (ascending).

The sky is said to be mdhana, masmuch as those that depart from this world are deposited (mdhīyante) in the sky.

2 athāvrtiesu, dyaur him-kāra, ādityah prastāvo'ntariksam

udgītho'gnih pratihārah, prthivī nidhanam

2. Now in the reverse (descending order) the sky as the syllable him, the sun as the prastāva, the atmosphere as the udgītha, the fire as the pratthāra and the earth as the nidhana

The earth is the mdhana as the people that come back to the earth are deposited here.

3 kalpante hāsmar lokā ūrdhvās cāvṛttās ca ya etad evam vidvāml lokesu pañca-vidham sāmopāste.

3 The worlds, in the ascending and reverse orders, belong to him, who, knowing this thus, meditates on the fivefold Sāman in the worlds

In different ways the importance of the meditation is indicated

Section 3

IN THE RAINSTORM

- I. vrstau pańca-vidham samopasīta, puro-vato him-karo, megho Jāyate sa prastāvah, varsati sa udgīthah, vidyotate stanayati sa pratikārah
- I One should meditate on the fivefold Sāman in the rain. The preceding wind as the syllable him; the formation of the cloud is the prastāva What rains is the udgītha; the lightning and the thunder as the pratihāra
- 2 udgrhnāti tan nidhanam, varsati hāsmai varsayati ha ya clad evan vidvān vṛstau pañca-vidham sāmopāste.
- ² The cessation as the nidhana. It rains for him and he causes it to rain, he, who knowing this thus, meditates on the fivefold Sāman in rain.

I. One should meditate on the fivefold Sāman in all the waters When a cloud forms, that is the syllable him, when it rains, that is a prastāva; when (the waters) flow to the east, they are udgītha When they flow to the west they are pratshāra The ocean is the mdhana

2 na hāpsu praity apsumān bliavati ya etad evām vidvān sarvāsv apsu pañca-vidliam sāmopāste

2. He does not die in water, he becomes rich in water, he, who knowing this thus, meditates on the fivefold Sāman in all the waters

Section 5

IN THE SEASONS

I rtusu pañca-vidham sāmopāsīta vasanto him-kāro, grīsmah prastāvah, varsā udgīthah, šarat pratihārah, hemanto nidhanam

I One should meditate on the fivefold Sāman, among the seasons, the spring as the syllable him, the summer as the prastāva, the rainy season as the udgītha, the autumn as the pratihāra and the winter as the mdhana

2 kalpante häsmä rtava rtumän bhavatı ya etad evan vidvān rtusu pañca-vidham samopāste.

2 The seasons belong to him and he becomes rich in seasons, he, who knowing this thus, meditates on the fivefold Sāman in the seasons

Section 6

IN THE ANIMALS

I. paśusu pańca-vidhań samopasita, aja him-karo'vayah prastavah, gava udgitho' śvah pratiharah, puruso nidhanam

r One should meditate on the fivefold $S\bar{a}man$ among the animals, the goats as the syllable him, the sheep as the $prast\bar{a}va$, the cows as the $udg\bar{\imath}tha$, the horses as the $pratrh\bar{a}ra$ and the human being as the ndhana

The human being is the culmination of animal development

2. bhavantı hāsya paśavaḥ paśumān bhavatı ya etad evam

2 Animals belong to him and he becomes rich in animals, he, who knowing this thus, meditates on the fivefold Sāman among the animals.

Section 7

AMONG THE VITAL BREATHS

I. prānesu pañca-vidham paro-varīyah sāmopāsīta, prāno himkāro, vāk prastāvah, caksur udgīthah, śrotram pratihārah, mano

nidhanam paro-varīyāmsı vā etānı

I One should meditate on the most excellent fivefold Sāman among the vital breaths, breath as the syllable him, speech as the prastāva, the eye as the udgītha, the ear as the prathāra and the mind as the mdhana. These, verily, are the most excellent prana, breath It is used to include the senses also prāna is also explained as ghrāna, smell

That which is higher than the high is called paro (para u). He who is higher than this is paro-varam. He who is higher than this paro-varam is called paro-varyah. Madhya

2 paro-varīyo hāsya bhavatı paro-varīyaso ha lokān jayati ya etad evam vidvān prānesu pañca-vidham paro-varīyaḥ sāmopāsta, iti tu pañca-vidhasya

2 The most excellent belongs to him, he wins the most excellent worlds, he, who knowing this thus, meditates on the

SOME ANALOGIES TO THE SEVENFOLD CHANT SPEECH

- I atha sapta-vidhasya, vāci sapta-vidham sāmopāsīta, yat kim ca vāco hum iti sa himkāro, yat preti sa prastāvah, yad eti sa ādih
- I Now for the sevenfold One should meditate on the sevenfold Sāman in speech Whatsoever of speech is hum, that is the syllable him, whatsoever is pra, that is prastāva, and the syllable a as the first (or the beginning)
- 2 yad udıtı sa udgithah, yat pratiti sa pratihārah, yad upeti sa upadravah, yan niti tan nidhanam
- 2 Whatsoever is ut, that is an udgātha, whatsoever is prati, that is a pratihāra, whatsoever is upa, that is an upadrava (or approach to the end), whatsoever is m, that is nidhana (or conclusion)
- 3 dugdhe'smar vāg doham yo vāco doho'nnavān annādo bhavatr, sa etad evam vrdvān vācr sapta-vrdham sāmopāste
- 3 For him speech yields milk, which is the milk of speech and he becomes rich in food and eater of food, he, who knowing this thus, meditates on the sevenfold Sāman in speech

Section 9

THE SUN

- I atha khalv amum ādriyam sapta-vrdham sāmopāsīta, sarvadā samastena sāma, mām pratr mām pratīts sarvena samastena sāma.
- I One should meditate on the sevenfold Sāman in the sun He is Sāma because he is always the same. He is the same with everyone since people think 'He faces me' 'He faces me'
- 2 tasmınn ımānı sarvānı bhūtāny anvāyattānītı vidyāt tasya yat purodayāt sa him-kāras tadasya pasavo'nväyattās tasmāt te him kurvantı him-kāra-bhājino hy etasya sāmnah
- 2 One should know that all beings here depend on him What he is before rising is the syllable him. On this depend the animals. Therefore they utter the syllable him. Truly they are partakers in the syllable him of the Sāman.

3 atha yat prathamodite sa prastāvas tad asya manusyā anvāyattās, tasmāt te prastuti-kāmāh prastamsā-kāmāḥ prastāva-

bhājino hy etasya samnah.

3. Now when it is just after sunrise, that is a prastāva. On this men depend Therefore they are desirous of praise, desirous of laudation Truly they are partakers in the prastāva of that Sāman

Men are generally lovers of name and fame.

4. atha yat sangava-velāyām sa ādıh tad asya vayāmsy anvāyatlān, tasmāt tāny antarıkse'nārambanāny ādāyā'tmānam parıpaianty ādr-bhājīni hy etasya sāmnah.

4. Now when it is the sangava (cowgathering) time, that is ādi On this depend the birds. Therefore they hold themselves without support, in the atmosphere and fly about Truly, they are partakers in the ādi of the Sāman.

5. atha yat samprati madhyan-dine sa udgʻithah, tad asya devä anväyattäh, tasmāt te sattamāh prājāpatyānām udgʻitha-bhājino hy elasya sāmnah.

5 Now, when it is just midday, that is an udgītha. On this the gods depend Therefore they are the best of Prajāpati's offspring Truly they are partakers in the udgītha of that Sāman

6. atha yad ürdhvam madhyan-dınāt prāg aparāhnāt sa pratihāras, tad asya garbhā anvāyattās, tasmāt te pratihṛtā nāvapady-

ante, praishāra-bhājino hy etasya sāmnah

6 Now when it is past midday and before the afternoon—that is a prathāra On this all foetuses depend. Therefore they are held up and do not drop down. Truly, they are partakers in the prathāra of that Sāman

7 atha yad ūrdhvam aparāhnāt prāg astamayāt, sa upadravah, tad asyāranyā anvāyattāh, tasmāt te purusam drstvā kaksam śvabhram ity upadravanty upadrava-bhāzino hy etasya sāmnaḥ

- 7. Now when it is past afternoon and before sunset, that is an upadrava. On this the wild animals depend Therefore when they see a man, they run to a hiding-place as their hole. Truly they are partakers in the upadrava of that Sāman.
- 8. atha yat prathamāstamite tan nidhanam, tad asya pitaro' nvāyattāh, tasmāt tān nidadhati nidhana-bhājino hy etasya sāmnaḥ, evam khalv amum ādītyam sapta-vidham sāmopāste.

8. Now when it is just after sunset, that is the mdhana On this the fathers depend Therefore the people lay aside the fathers Truly they are partakers of the mdhana of that Sāman. Thus does one meditate on the sevenfold Sāman in the sun

Section 10

THE MYSTICAL MEANING OF THE NUMBER OF SYLLABLES IN THE CHANT

- I. atha khalv ātma-sammıtam atımriyu sapta-vıdham samo pāsīta, him-kāra iti try-aksaram prastāva iti try-aksaram tat samam
- I. Now, then, one should meditate on the sevenfold Sāman which is uniform in itself and leads beyond death. The syllable him has three letters, prastāva has three letters. That is the same.

Though in English they are syllables, in Sanskrit each English syllable is represented by one letter

- 2. ādir iti dvy-aksaram pratihāra iti catur-aksaram tata ihaikam, tat samam.
- 2. Adi has two letters Pratitara has four letters (If we take one) one from there here, that is the same
- 3 udgītha iti try-aksaram upadrava-iti catur-aksaram triblis triblih samam bhavati aksaram atisisyate, try-aksaram tat samam
- 3 Udgītha has three letters; upadrava has four letters Three and three, that is the same, one letter left over Having three letters, that is the same

What is left over is supposed to have three letters

- 4 nıdhanam iti try-aksaram, tat samam eva bhavati tāni ha vā etāni dvā-vimšatir aksarāni.
- 4 Nidhana has three letters That is the same too. These indeed, are the twenty-two letters.
- 5. eka-vinisaty ādityam āpnoti, eka-viniso vā ito'sāv ādityo, dvā-vinisena param ādityāj jāyati; tan nākam, tad visokam
- 5 With the twenty first, one obtains the sun Verily, the sun is the twenty-first from here With the twenty-second he conquers what is beyond the sun That is bliss. That is sorrow-

S quotes 'The twelve months, the five seasons (taking the whole of winter as one) and the three worlds (earth, atmosphere and sky) (make up twenty) and the sun is the twenty-first '

6 āpnoti hādityasya jayam, paro hāsyāditya-jayāj jayo bhavati, ya etad evam vidvan atma-sammıtam atı-mrtyu sapta-vidham

2 One who knows these verses of the Sakvarī chant as woven on the worlds becomes possessed of the worlds, reaches a full length of life, lives well, becomes great in offspring and cattle, great in fame One should not decry the worlds That is the rule

1 ajā him-kāro'vayah prastāvah, gāva udgītho'svāh pratihārah, puruso nidhanam, etā revatyah paśusu protāh.

I. The goats are the syllable him The sheep are the prastāva. The cows are the udgītha. The horses are the pratihāra. The human being is the nidhana. These are the verses of the Revatī chant woven on the animals

- 2. sa ya evam etä revatyah pasusu protä veda, pasumän bhavati, sarvam äyur eti, jyog jivati, mahän prajayā pasubhir bhavati mahān kīrtyā; pasūn na nindet, tad vratam
- 2. He who knows thus these verses of the Revatī chant as woven on the animals becomes the possessor of animals, reaches the full length of life, lives well, becomes great in offspring and cattle, great in fame. One should not decry animals. That is the rule.

YAJÑAYAJÑIYA CHANT

I. loma him-kārah, tvak prastāvah, māmsam udgītho sthi pratihārah, majjā nidhanam, etad yajñāyajñīyam angesu protam.

I Hair is the syllable him. Skin is the prastāva. Flesh is the adgītha. Bone is the prathāra. Marrow is mdhana. This is the Yajūāyajūīya chant woven on the members of the body.

2 sa ya evam etad yajñāyajñīyam angesu protam vedāngī bhavatı, nāngena vihūichati, sarvam āyur eti, jyog jīvati mahān prajayā pasubhir bhavati mahān kīrtyā, samvatsaram majjño

nāśnīyāt, tad vratam; mazjño nāśnīyāt iti vā.

2 He who thus knows this Yajñāyajñīya chant as woven on the members of the body becomes equipped with limbs; does not become defective in any limb, reaches the full length of life, lives well, great in offspring and cattle, great in fame One should not eat of marrow for a year. That is the rule. Rather, one should not eat of marrow at all.

The plural number majyño is used to include fish also. S.

RAJANA CHANT

- I. agnır hım-kārah, vāyuh prastāvah, ādıtya udgīthah, naksatrānı pratıhārah, candramā nıdhanam etad rājanan devatāsu protam
- I Fire is the syllable him; Air is the prastāva Sun is the udgītha Stars are the pratihāra and moon is the mdhana This is the Rājana chant woven on the divinities
- 2. sa ya evam etad rājanam devatāsu protam vedatāsām evi devatānām salokatām sārstitām sāyujyam gacchati, sarvam āyur eti, jyog jīvati, mahān prajayā pasubhir bhavati mahān kīrtyā, brāhmanān na nindet, tad vratam
- 2 He who knows thus this Rāgana chant as woven on the divinities goes to the same world, to equality and to complete union with these very divinities, reaches the full length of life, lives well, becomes great in offspring and cattle, great in fame. One should not decry the Brāhmanas. That is the rule.

He is lifted to the region of the deity whom he has loved and worshipped during life. Salvation does not consist in absorption with the Absolute or assimilation to God but in getting near His presence and participating in His glory.

Section 21

THE SAMAN REGARDING THE ALL

- I trayī vidyā him-kārah, traya ime lokāh sa prastavo'gnir vāyur ādityah sa udgīthah, naksatrāni vayāmsi mai īcayah sa pratihārah, sarpā gandharvāh pitai as tan nidhanam, etat sāma sarvasmin protam
- I The threefold knowledge is the syllable him. The three worlds here are the piastāva Fire, air and sun are the udgītha; stars, birds and the light rays are the pratihāra, serpents, gandharvas and the fathers are the nidhana. This is the chant as woven in all
- 2. sa ya evam etat sāma sarvasmin protam veda, sarvam ha bhavati.

tan sarvan evopaseveta, varunam tv eva varjayet.

- r Of the Sāman, I choose the high-sounding one as good for cattle, this is the song sacred to Fire The undefined one belongs to Prajā-patr, the defined one to Soma; the soft and the smooth to Vāyu, the smooth and strong to Indra; the heron-like to Brhaspati, the ill-sounding to Varuna. Let one practise all these but one should avoid that belonging to Varuna.
- 2 amriaivam devebhya ägäyänity ägäyet svadhäm pitrbhya äśäm manusyebhyas trnodakam paśubhyah svargam lokam yajamānāyānnam ätmana ägäyänity etäni manasā dhyäyann apramaitah stuvīta.
- 2. 'Let me secure immortality for the gods by singing' thus should one sing 'Let me secure offerings for the fathers by singing hope for men, grass and water for the cattle, the world of heaven for the sacrificer and food for myself' Thus reflecting in his mind on all these, one should sing the praises carefully.

All the consonants should be pronounced slowly, without merging them together (with the thought) 'May I withdraw myself from Death'

bhavantı, brahma-samstho'nırtatvanı eti

I There are three branches of duty, sacrifice, study and almsgiving—Austerity, indeed, is the first. The second is the pursuit of sacred wisdom, dwelling in the house of the teacher. Absolutely controlling his body in the house of the teacher, is the third. All these attain to the worlds of the virtuous. He who stands firm in Brahman attains life eternal.

tapah: austerity It is used sometimes to comprehend all forms of the pursuit of self-control

Brahman is also used for tapas or austerity Cp bhagavān kāšyapah śāśvate brahman vartate. Kalıdāsa: Śākuntalā Act I. The commentators interpret Brahman as tapas brahma-samstha. He who stands firm in Brahman.

Ś suggests that this refers to the parivrāt or the monk who alone obtains eternal life, while others who practise active virtues obtain the worlds of the virtuous. He, however, points out that there is another view held by the Vrttikāra, that anyone who stands firm in the eternal obtains the life eternal. He need not be a sarinyāsin. S argues that the true brahma-samstha is the samnyāsin who gives up all actions harma-niviti-laksanam parivrājyam brahma-samsthatvam. S.

THE SUN AS THE HONEY OF THE GODS: RG VEDA

I. aum. asau vā ādityo deva-madhu; tasya dyaur eva tıraścīna-vamso'ntariksam apūpah, marīcayah putrāh.

I. Verily, yonder sun is the honey of the gods. Of this the sky is the cross-beam, the atmosphere is the honeycomb; the particles of light are the brood.

The sun is treated as the object of meditation. The sky is the crossbeam from which the honeycomb hangs

- 2. tasya ye prāñco raśmayah tā evāsya prācyo madhunādyah rca eva madhukriah rgveda eva puşpam, tā amrtā āpah tā vā etā rcah
- 2. The eastern rays of that sun are its eastern honey cells. The Rks are the producers of honey The Rg Veda is the flower and those waters are the nectar and those very Rks indeed (are the bees)

'Just as the bees produce honey by extracting the juices of flowers, so do the rks make their honey by extracting the juices of actions prescribed in the Rg Veda 'S.

3 eiam rg vedam abhyatapams, tasyābhitaptasya yasas teja indriyam vīryam annādyam raso'jāyata.

- 3. These brooded on the Rg Veda; from it, thus brooded upon, issued forth as its essence, fame, splendour, (vigour of the) senses, virility, food and health.
- 4 tad vyaksarat, tad ādziyam abluto'srayat, tad vā eiad yad elad ādriyasya rohitam rūpam.
- 4. It flowed forth; it went towards the sun. Verily, that is what the red appearance of the sun is.

YAJUR VEDA

 aiha ye'sya daksinā raśmayas tā evāsya dakṣinā madhu-nādyo yajūmsy eva madhu-krto yajur veda eva puspam, tā amṛtā āpah.

- I Now its southern rays are its southern honey-cells. The Yazus formulae are the producers of honey. The flower is the Yazur Veda and these waters are the nectar
- 2 tānı vā etānı yajūmsy etam yajurvedam abhyatapams, tasyābhitaptasya yaśas, teja, ındrıyam, vīryam, annādyam, 1aso' jāyata
- 2 Verily, these yajus formulae brooded on the Yajur Veda; from it, thus brooded upon, issued forth as its essence, fame, splendour, (vigour of the) senses, virility, food and health
- 3 tad vyaksarat, tad ädrtyam abhrto'srayat, tad vä etad yad etad ädrtyasya suklam rübam
- 3 It flowed forth, it went towards the sun Verily, that is what the white appearance of the sun is

SAMA VEDA

- I atha ye'sya pratyañco raśmayas tā evāsya pratīcyo madhu-nādyah sāmāny eva madhu-krtah sāma veda eva puspam, tā amrtā āpah
- I Now, its western rays are its western honey-cells. The Sāman chants are the producers of honey. The flower is the Sāma Veda and these waters are the nectar.
- 2 tānı vā etānı sāmāny etam sāma vedam abhyatapams tasyābhitaptasya yaśas, teja, ındrıyam, vīryam, annādyam, raso'ıāyata
- 2 Verily, these Sāman chants brooded on the Sāma Veda; from it, thus brooded upon, issued forth, as its essence, fame, splendour, (vigour of the) senses, virility, food and health
- 3 tad vyaksarat, tad ādītyam abhīto's ayat, tad vā etad yad etad ādītyasya krsnam rūpam
- 3 It flowed forth It went towards the sun Verily, that is what the dark appearance of the sun is

ATHARVA VEDA

I atha ye'syodañco raśmayas tā evāsyodīcyo madhu-nādyo' tharvangırasa eva madhu-krtah, ıtıhasa-buranam buspam, ta

amrtā āpah

I Now its northern rays are its northern honey-cells (The hymn of the) Atharvans and the Angirasas are the honey producers The flower is legend and ancient lore These waters are the nectar

The stories from the Epics and the Puranas were repeated at some sacrifices They are mentioned in the Brahmanas, and later collected in the Mahābhārata and the Purānas

- 2. ie vā eie tharvāngīrasa eiad ītīhāsa-purāņam abhyatapams, tasyābhitaptasya yaśas, teja, indriyam, vīryam, annādyam, raso' jāyata
- 2 Verily, these (hymns) of the Athaivans and Angurasas brooded upon that legend and ancient lore. From them, thus brooded upon, issued forth, as their essence, fame, splendour, (vigour of the) senses, virility, food and health.
- 3 tad vyakşarat, tad ādıtyam abhıto'srayat, tad vä etad yad etad ādriyasya param krsnam rūpam.

3 It flowed forth. It went towards the sun Verily, that is what the extremely dark appearance of the sun is

Section 5

BRAHMAN

I atha ye'syordhvā raśmayas tā eväsyordhvā madhu-nādyo guhyā evā deśā madhu-krto, brahmarva puspam, tā amrtā āpah

I Now, its upward rays are its upper honey cells. The hidden teachings (the Upanisads) are the honey producers Brahman is the flower. These waters are the nectar

Brahman, according to S, here signifies the pranava, i e the syllable aum

2 te vā eie guhyā ādešā etad brahmābhyatapams tasyābhītaplasya yasas, teja, ındrıyam, vīryam, annādyam, raso'jāyata.

- 2 These hidden teachings brooded on Brahman, and from it thus brooded upon, issued forth, as its essence, fame, splendour, (vigour of the) senses, food and health
- 3 tad vyaksarat, tad ādityam abhito' śrayat, tad vā etad yad etad ādityasya madhye ksobhata iva.
- 3 It flowed forth It went towards the sun. Verily, that is what seems to be the trembling in the middle of the sun
- 4 te vā ete rasānām rasāh vedā hi rasāh, teṣām ete rasāh, tāni vā etāny amrtānām amrtāni, vedā hy amrtāh, tesām etāny amrtāni
- 4 Verily, these are the essences of the essences, for the Vedas are the essences and these are their essences Verily, these are the nectars of the nectars for the Vedas are the nectars and these are their nectars

According to S all these are meant to emphasise the importance of eulogised actions karma-stutir esah

Section 6

THE KNOWER OF THE COSMIC SIGNIFICANCE OF THE VEDAS REACHES THE WORLD OF THE VASUS

I tad yai prathamam amriam tàd vasava upajīvanty agnınā mukhena, na vai devā asnanti na pibanty etad evāmriam drsivā trpyanti

I That which is the first nectar, on that live the Vasus, through fire as their mouth. Verily the gods neither eat nor drink. They are satisfied merely with seeing that nectar.

2 ta etad eva rūpam abhisamvišanty etasmād rūpād udyanti.

2 They retire into this form (colour) and come forth from this form (colour)

3. sa ya etad evam amrtam veda, vasūnām evaiko bhūtvāgninaiva mukhenaitad evāmrtam drsivā trpyati, sa etad eva rūpam abhisamvišati, etasmād rūpād udeti

3 He who knows thus this nectar becomes one of the Vasus and through the fire as his mouth is satisfied merely with seeing the nectar. He retires into this form (colour) and comes forth from this form (colour)

4. sa yāvad ādriyah purastād udetā paścād astam etā, vasūnām

eva tāvad ādhipaiyam svārājyam paryetā

4 As long as the sun rises in the east and sets in the west, so long does he attain the worship and sovereignty of the Vasus.

Section 7

OF THE RUDRAS

I. atha yad dvitīyam amrtam, tad rudrā upajīvantīndrena mukhena, na vai devā asnanti, na pibanti, etad evāmrtam dṛstvā tṛpyanti.

I. Now that which is the second nectar, on that live the Rudras, through Indra as their mouth, Verily, the gods neither eat nor drink They are satisfied merely with seeing that nectar.

2 ia etad eva rūpam abhisamvisanti, etasmād rūpād udyanti.

2 They reture into this form (colour) and come forth from this form (colour).

3 sa ya etad evam amṛtam veda rudrānām evarko bhūtvendrenaiva mukhenartad evāmṛtam dṛstvā irpyatı, sa etad eva rūpam abhrsamvisati, etasmād rūpād udetr.

3 Who knows thus this nectar becomes one of the Rudras and with Indra as his mouth is satisfied merely with seeing the nectar. He retires into this form (colour) and comes forth from this form (colour).

4 sa yāvad-ādītyah purastād udetā, pascād astam etā, dvis tāvad daksinata udetottarato stam etā, rudrāņām eva tāvad ādhi-

paiyam svārājyam paryetā.

4 As long as the sun rises in the east and sets in the west, twice as long does it rise in the south and set in the north and just that long does he attain the lordship and sovereignty of the Rudras

OF THE ADITYAS

I atha yat trtīyam amṛtam, tad ādityā upajīvantı varuņena mukhena, na vai devā asnanti, na pibanti, etad evāmṛtam dṛṣṭvā trpyanti

- I Now, that which is the third nectar, on that live the Adityas through Varuna as their mouth Verily, the gods neither eat nor drink They are satisfied merely with seeing that nectar
 - 2. ta ciad eva rūpam ablisamvišanty ciasmād rūpād udyanti.
- 2. They retire into this form (colour) and come forth from this form (colour)
- 3 sa ya ciad evam amriani vedādityānām cvaiko bhūtvā varunenaiva mukhenaitad cvāmriam drstvā trpyati, sa ciad eva rūpam abhisamvišati, ctasmād i ūpād udeti
- 3 He who knows thus this nectar, becomes one of the Adityas and with Varuna as his mouth, is satisfied merely with seeing the nectar. He retires into this form (colour) and comes forth from this form (colour).
- 4 sa yāvad ādriyo daksmata udetottarato'stam otā, dvīs tāvat paścād udetā purastād astam etā, ādriyānām eva tāvad ādhīpatyam svārājyam paryetā
- 4 As long as the sun rises in the east and sets in the west twice as long does it rise in the west and set in the east and just that long does he attain the lordship and sovereignty of the Adityas.

OF THE MARUTS

I atha yac caturtham anrtam, tan manuta upajīvanti somena mukhena, na vai devā asnanti, na pibanti, etad evāmņtam drstvā trpyanti.

I Now that which is the fourth nectar, on that live the Maruts, through Soma as their mouth, Verily, the gods neither eat nor drink They are satisfied merely with seeing that nectar

- 2 ta etad eva rūpam abhisamvisanti, etasmād rūpād udyanti
- 2 They retire from this form (colour) and come forth from this form (colour)
- 3 sa 3a etad eram amriam veda, marutām eraiko bhūtvā somerana mukhenaitad evāmrtam drstvā trpyati, sa etad eva rūpam abhisamvišati etasmād rūpād udeti

- 3 He who knows thus this nectar, becomes one of the Maruts and through Soma as his mouth, is satisfied merely with seeing the nectar. He retires into this form (colour) and comes forth from this form (colour)
- 4. sa yāvad ādriyah paścād udetā, purastād astam etā, dvīs tāvad uttarata udetā, daksīnato'stam etā, marutām eva tāvad ādhīpatyam svārājyam paryetā.

OF THE SADHYAS

I atha yat pasicamam amrtam tat sādhyā upajīvantı brahmanā mukhena, na var devā asnantı, na pıbantı, etad evāmṛtam drstvā trbyantı.

- r Now, that which is the fifth nectar, on that live the Sādhyas, through Brahmā as their mouth Verily, the gods neither eat nor drink They are satisfied merely with seeing that nectar
 - 2. ta etad eva rūpam abhisamvisanti, etasmād rūpād udyanti

- 4 sa yāvad ādītya uttarata udetā, daksīnato'stam etā, dvīs tāvad ūrdhva udetārvān astam etā, sādhyānām eva tāvad ādhīpa tyam svārājyam paryetā
- 4. As long as the sun rises in the north and sets in the south, twice as long does it rise in the zenith and set in the nadir, just that long does he attain the lordship and sovereignty of the Sādhyas

THE WORLD OF BRAHMA

I atha tata ūrdhva udetya narvodetā nāstam etā, ekala eva madhye sthātā, tad esa ślokah

I Henceforth, after having risen in the zenith, he will no more rise nor set. He will stand alone in the middle On this, there is this verse

The movements of the sun are intended to help the creatures to experience the results of their actions, and when these experiences have ended the sun takes the creatures unto himself prāninām sva-karma-phala-bhoga-nimitam anugraham tat karma-phalopabhoga-ksaye tāni prāni-jātāny ātmani samhrtya Š.

The question is raised whether the sun in the regions of Brahma moves along nights and days. The reply is given in the next verse

- na vai tatra na nimloca nodiyāya kadācana, devās tenāham satyena mā virādhisi brahmanā iti.
- 2 It is not so there The sun has not set, nor has he ever risen. O ye gods, by this truth, may I not fall from Brahmā

He calls the gods to bear witness to the truth of his statement

- 3 na ha vā asmā udeti, na nimlocati, sakrd divā haivāsmai bhavati, ya etām evam brahmopanisadam veda
- 3 Verily, for him, who knows thus, this mystic doctrine of Brahmā, the sun neither rises nor sets. For him it is day for ever

'The knower becomes the eternal inborn Brahman, unconditioned by time marked by the rising and setting of the sun' vidvān uda-yāsta-maya-kālāparicchedyam miyam ajam brahma bhavati Ś

4 tadd hartad brahmā prajāpataya uvāca, prajāpatir manave, manuh prajābhyah, tadd hartad uddālakāyā'runaye jyesthāya putrāya priā brahma provāca

4 Brahma told this to Prajā-patr; Prajā-patr to Manu, Manu to his descendants To Uddālaka Ārum, the eldest son, his father declared this Brahma

5 ıdam väva taq yyeşthäya puträya pıtä brahma prabrüyät pranäyyäya vänteväsine

- 5 Verily, a father may teach this Brahma to his eldest on or to a worthy pupil
- 6 nānyasmai kasmai cana, yady apy asmā imām adbhih. 'arīgrhītām dhanasya pūrnām dadyād, etad eva tato bhūya ity etad eva tato bhūya iti
- 6 And to no one else. Even if one should offer him the whole of this (earth) encompassed by water and filled with treasure. He should say) "This, truly, is greater than that—yea, greater han that."

THE GÄYATRĪ

I gäyatrī vā ıdam sarvam bhūtam yad ıdam kım ca, vāg vai

gāyairī, vāg vā ıdam sarvam bhūiam gāyaiı ca irāyaie ca.

I. Verily, the Gāyatrī is all this that has come to be, whatsoever there is here Speech, verily, is Gāyatrī. Verily, the Gāyatrī sings of and protects everything here that has come to be.

As Brahman is incomprehensible by itself, these symbols are employed For Madhva Gāyatrī is not the metre of that name but Visnu

2. yā vai sā gāyatrīyam vāva sā yeyam prihivī, asyām hīdam sarvam bhūtam pratisthitam, etām eva nātišīyate.

- 2. Verily, what this Gāyatrī is, that, verily, is what this earth is, for on it everything here that has come to be is established. It does not go beyond it
- 3 yā vas sā pṛthrvīyam vāva sā yad idam asmin puruse śarīram, asmin hīme prānāh pratisthitāh, etad eva nātisīyante.
- 3. Verily, what this earth is, that, verily, is what the body in man here is for on it these vital breaths are established. They do not go beyond it.
- 4. yad vai tat puruse sarīram idam vāva tad yad idam asminn anlah puruse hrdayam, asmin hīme prānāh pratisthitāh, etad cva nātisīyante.

4 Verily, what the body in man is, that, verily, is what the heart within man here is: for on it these vital breaths are established. They do not go beyond it.

5 sarṣā catuspadā sadvidhā gāyatrī, tad etad rcā'bhyanūktam.

5 This Gāyatrī has four feet and is sixfold This is also declared by a Rk verse

The Gāyatrī is a metre with four feet, each foot having four syllables It is sixfold in the shape of speech, creatures, earth, body, heart and vital breath S

6 etāvān asya mahimā, tato jyāyāms ca pūrusah pādo'sya sarvā bhūtāni, tripād asyāmrtam divi

6 Its greatness is of such extent, yet Purusā is greater still All beings are one fourth of him. The three fourths, immortal, is in the sky

The Purusa is so called because it fills everything and lies in the body sarva-pūranāt puri sayanāc ca Ś

7 yad vai tad brahmetīdam vāva tadyo'yam bahirdhā purusād ākāšo yo vai sa bahirdhā purusād ākāšah

8 ayam vāva sa yo'yam antah purusa ākāśo yo var so'ntah purusa ākāśah

8 That is what the space within a person is Verily, what the space within a person is

9 ayam vāva sa yo'yam antar-hrdaya ākāśah, tad etat pūrnam apravartı, pūrnām apravartınīm śriyam labhate ya evam veda

9 That is the same as what the space here within the heart is. That is the full, the non-active He who knows thus, obtains full and non-active prosperity non-active unchanging

Section 13

THE FIVE DOORKEEPERS OF THE WORLD OF HEAVEN

I tasya ha vā etasya hrdayasya pañca deva-susayah, sa yo'sya prān susih sa prānah, tac caksuh, sa ādityah, tad etat tejo' nnādyam ity upāsīta, tejasvy annādo bhavati ya evam veda

I Verily, indeed, this heart here has five openings for the gods. Its eastern opening is the prana (up-breath). That is the eye, that is the sun. One should meditate on this as glow and as health. He who knows this becomes glowing and healthy.

- 2 atha yo'sya daksınah susıh sa vyānah, tac chrotram, sa candramāh, tad etac chrīś ca yaśaś cety upāsīta śrīmān yaśasvī bhavatı ya evam veda
- 2 Now its southern opening is vyāna (the diffused breath) That is the ear that is the moon One should meditate on this as prosperity and fame. He who knows this becomes prosperous and famous
- 3 atha yo'sya pratyan susih so'pānah, sā vāk so'gnih tad etad brahma-varcasam annādyam ity upāsīta brahma-varcasy annādo bhavati ya evam veda.
- 3 Now, its western opening is apāna (downward breath) That is speech, that is fire. One should meditate on it as the lustre of sacred wisdom and health. He who knows this becomes possessed of the lustre of sacred wisdom and health.
- 4 atha yoʻsyodan susih sa samānah, tan manah, sa parjanyah, tad etat kīrtis ca vyustis cety upāsīta, kīrtimān vyustimān bhavati ya evam veda
- 4 Now, this northern opening is samāna (equalised breath). That is mind, that is rain; one should meditate on it as fame and beauty. He who knows this becomes famous and beauteous kīrlih fame, celebrīty, due to the knowledge of the mind: manaso jūānasya kīrli-hetutvāt, ālma-parokṣam viśrutatvam kīrlih, yaśah sva-karana-samvedyam viśrutatvam.

- 5. Now, the upper opening is udāna (out-breath). That is air, that is space. One should meditate on it as strength and greatness. He who knows this becomes strong and great
- 6 te vā etc pañca brahma-purusāh svargasya lokasya dvāra-pāḥ, sa ya ctān evam pañca brahma-purusān svargasya lokasya dvāra-pān veda, asya kule vīro jāyate, pratipadyate svargam lokam, ya ctān evam pañca-brahma-purusān svargasya lokasya dvāra-pān veda

6. These, verily, are the five Brahma-persons, the doorkeepers of the world of heaven He who knows these five Brahma-persons, the doorkeepers of the world of heaven, in his family a hero is born. He who knows these five Brahmapersons, the doorkeepers of the world of heaven, himself reaches the world of heaven

By controlling the eye, ear, speech, mind and breath through meditation, by checking their outward activities, we are enabled to reach the Brahma in the heart

THE SUPREME EXISTS WITHIN ONESELF

7. atha yad atah paro divo yotir dipyate visvatah prsthesu, sarvatah prsthesv anuttamesüttamesu lokesu, idam väva tad vad ıdam asmının antah puruse jyotih

8 There is this seeing of it, as when, in this body, one perceives the warmth by touch There is this hearing of it, as when, on closing the ears, one hears as it were a sound, as it were a noise, as of a fire blazing. One should meditate on this that has been seen and heard One who knows this becomes one beautiful to see and heard of in renown, yea, one who knows

The writer here refers to visions and voices of which some mystic seers speak

THE INDIVIDUAL SOUL IS ONE WITH THE SUPREME BRAHMAN

I sarvam khalv idam brahma, tajjalān iti, šānta upāsīta; atha khalu kratumayah purusah, yatha-kratur asminl loke puruso

bhavatı tathetalı pretya bhavatı, sa kratum kurvita.

I Verily, this whole world is Brahman, from which he comes forth, without which he will be dissolved and in which he breathes Tranquil, one should meditate on it. Now verily, a person consists of purpose According to the purpose a person has in this world, so does he become on departing hence So let him frame for himself a purpose.

All this is Brahman Cp Maitrī IV 6 brahma khalv idam vāva sarvam Brahman is prior to all this and produces all this

The word tajjalan is explained by S as 'beginning, ja, ending, la. and continuing, an,' in it. tasmāt brahmano jātam—atas tajjam, tathā tenawa janana-kramena pratilomataya tasminn eva brahmani liyate, tad-ātmatayā ślisyata ıtı tallam; tathā tasmınn eva sthıtıkāle'niti praniti cestata iti

2 He who consists of mind, whose body is life, whose form is light, whose conception is truth, whose soul is space, containing all works, containing all desires, containing all odours, containing all tastes, encompassing this whole world, being without speech and without concern.

- 3 This is my self within the heart, smaller than a grain of rice, than a barley corn, than a mustard seed, than a grain of millet or than the kernel of a grain of a millet. This is myself within the heart, greater than the earth, greater than the atmosphere, greater than the sky, greater than these worlds

4 Containing all works, containing all desires, containing all odours, containing all tastes, encompassing this whole world, without speech, without concern, this is the self of mine within the heart, this is Brahman. Into him, I shall enter, on departing hence Verily, he who believes this, will have no more doubts. Thus used to say Sāndilya, yea Sāndilya

This is the famous Sāndilya vidyā which affirms the oneness of the individual soul and the Supreme Brahman For Sāndilya (1) the Absolute is that from which things are born, to which they repair and by which they live, (2) our next life depends on what we do in this life, (3) Ātman is both the transcendent and the immanent, and (4) the end of man is union with the Self

THE UNIVERSE AS A TREASURE CHEST

- I antarıksodaralı kośo bhūmı budhno na jīryati, diśo hy asya sraktayo dyaur asyottaram bilam, sa csa kośo vasu-dhānas tasmin viśvam idam śritam.
- I The chest, having the atmosphere for its inside, and the earth for its bottom does not decay. The quarters of space are its corners and its upper lid is the sky. This chest is one containing wealth and within it rests everything here
- 2 tasya prācī dig juhūr nāma, sahamānā nāma dakṣinā, rājūī nāma pratīcī, subhūtā nāmodīcī, tāsām vāyur vatsah, sa ya etam evam väyum disām vatsam veda, na putra-rodam roditi, so'ham etam evam vāyum disām vatsam veda, mā putra-rodam rudam.
- 2 The eastern quarter is named juhū, its southern quarter is named sahamāna, its western quarter is called rājū, its northern quarter is called subhūta. The child of these is air. He who knows this air thus as the child of the quarters of space weeps not for a son. I here know this air thus as the child of the quarters of space, let me not weep for a son.

juhu is the sacrificial ladle

sahamāna is 'the region of Yama in which people suffer the results of evil deeds' S

rājāi is so called 'because it is lorded over by the king (rājan) Varuna or because it is red (rāga) with the colours of evening.' S subhūta is 'the region presided over by Kubera, the god of wealth.' mā putra-rodam rudam May I not weep for the death of my son, may I have no occasion to weep for the death of my son putra-marana-mmittam putra-rodo mama mābhūt $

If the promise made in III 13-16, in his family a hero is born is to be fulfilled, this kośa-vijūāna or knowledge of the treasure chest is needed

- 3 arıstam kosam prapadye 'muna'muna'muna, pranam prapadye, 'muna'muna'muna; bhüh prapadye'muna'muna'muna; bhwah prapadye'muna'muna 'muna '
- 3 I take refuge in the imperishable chest with this one, with this one, with this one I take refuge in the breath, with this one, with this one, with this one, I take refuge in bhūh, with this one, with this one, with this one, I take refuge in bhwah, with this one, with this one

The son's name, S says, is to be uttered thrice, when praying to the different deities

4 sa yad avocam prānam prapadya iti prāno vā idam sarvam bhūtam yad idam kiñ ca, tam eva tat prāpatsi

4 When I said, 'I take refuge in breath,' breath, verily, is everything here that has come to be, whatsoever there is So it was in this I took refuge

5 atha yad avocam bhūh prapadya iti pṛthivīm prapadye' ntariksam prapadye, divam prapadya ity eva tad avocam

5 So when I said, 'I take refuge in bhūh,' what I said was 'I take refuge in atmosphere, I take refuge in sky '

6 atha yad avocam. bhuvah prapadya ity agnim prapadye, vayum prapadye, adityam prapadya ity eva tad avocam

6 So when I said, 'I take refuge in bhuvah,' what I said was, 'I take refuge in Fire, I take refuge in Air, I take refuge in Sun.'

7. atha yad avocam svah prapadya ity rg vedam prapadye, yajur vedam prapadye, sāma vedam prapadya ity eva tad avocam, tad avocam.

7 So when I said, 'I take refuge in svah,' What I said was, 'I take refuge in the Rg Veda, I take refuge in the Yajur Veda, I take refuge in the Sāma Veda That was what I said'

This section points out how symbols are used for worship and the objects prayed for are this-worldly

THE WHOLE LIFE IS SYMBOLICALLY A SACRIFICE

I puruso vāva yazhāh, tasya yām catur-vimsati varsām, tat prātah-savanam, catur-vimsaty-aksarā gāyatrī, gāyatram prātah-savavam, tad asya vasavo'nvāyattāh, prānā vāva vasavah, ete hīdam sarvam vāsayanti

I Verily, a person is a sacrifice. His (first) twenty-four years are the morning libation, for the Gāyatrī (metre) has twenty-four syllables and the morning libation is offered with a gāyatrī hymn With this (part of the sacrifice) the Vasus are connected Verily, the vital breaths are the Vasus, for they cause everything here to endure tam ced etasmın vayası kım cıd upatapet, sa brüyāt, prānā vasavah, ıdam me prātah-savanam mādhyan-dınam-savanam anu samtanutetı, māham prānānām vasūnām madhye yajño vılop-

2 If in this period of life any sickness should overtake him, let him say, 'O ye vital breaths, ye Vasus, let this morning libation of mine continue over to the midday libation. Let not me, the sacrifice, be broken off in the midst of the vital breaths, of the Vasus' He arises from it, he becomes free from sickness.

While the previous section dealt with the long life of the son, this deals with one's own long life

- 3 atha yānı catuścatvārımśad varşānı, tan mādhyan-dınamsavanam catuś-catvārımśad-akṣarā trısţup, trauştubham mādhyandınam-savanam, tad asya rudrā anvāyattāh, prānā vāva rudrāh, ete hīdam sarvam rodayantı.
- 3 Now the (next) forty-four years are the midday libation for the Tristubh (metre) has forty-four syllables and the midday libation is offered with a Tristubh hymn With this (part of the sacrifice) the Rudras are connected Verily, the vital breaths are the Rudras for (on departing) they cause everything here to weep.

4. tam ced etasmin vayasi kim cid upatapet sa brūyāt, prāṇā rudrāh idam me mādhyan-dinam-savanam trtīya-savanam anu samtanuteti, māham prāṇānām rudrānām madhye yajño vilop-

4. If, in this period of life, any sickness should overtake him, let him say, 'O ye vital breaths, ye Rudras, let this midday libation of mine continue over to the third libation. Let not me, the sacrifice, be broken off in the midst of the vital breaths, of the Rudras.' He arises from it; he becomes free from sickness.

5 atha yāny astā-catvārimsad varsāņi, tat tṛtīya-savanam, aṣṭā-catvārimsad-aksarā jagatī, jāgatam trtīya-savanam, tad asyā dītyā anvāyattāh, prānā vāvādityāh, ete hīdam sarvam ādadate.

- 5. Now the (next) forty-eight years are the third libation for the jagatī (metre) has forty-eight syllables and the third libation is offered with a jagatī hymn. With this (part of the sacrifice) the Ādityas are connected. Verily, the vital breaths are the Ādityas for (on departing) they take everything to themselves
- 6. tam ced etasmın vayası kım cid upatapet sa brüyät prānā adstyā idam me trtīya-savanam āyur anu samtanuteti, māham prānāmam adityānām madhye yayño vilopsīyety, udd havva tata ety agado havva bhavatı.
- 6. If, in this period of life, any sickness should overtake him, let him say, 'O ye vital breaths, ye Adityas, let this third libation of mine continue to a full length of life. Let not me, the sacrifice, be broken off in the midst of the vital breaths, the Adityas.' He arises from it; he becomes free from sickness.
- 7. etadd ha sma var tad vidvān āha mahidāsa aitareyaḥ; sa kim ma etad upatapasī, yo'ham anena na presyāmītī; sa ha sodašam varsa-satam ajīvat; pra ha sodašam varsa-satam jīvati, ya evam veda.
- 7. Verily, it was knowing this that Mahidāsa Aitareya used to say, 'Why do you afflict me with this sickness, me, who am not going to die by it?' He lived a hundred and sixteen years. He, too, who knows this lives to a hundred and sixteen years.

Mahidāsa Aitareya was a dāsa or a sudra by birth. According to Sāyana's Introduction to the Aitareya Brāhmaṇa, he was the son of a Brāhmana seer by Itarā, a low-caste woman As he was not given the same treatment as other sons, his mother prayed to Mahī or the goddess Earth, who granted her prayers The son was enabled to compose the Brāhmanas and the Āranyakas This story implies a protest against the injustice of the caste system

MAN'S LIFE A SACRIFICE

I sa yad aśiśisati yat pipāsati, yan na ramate, tā asya dīksāh

I When one hungers and thirsts and abstains from pleasures these constitute the initiatory rites

The writer gives an account of a sacrifice which can be performed

without any ceremonial and in spirit even by hermits

Privation is equated with initiation, enjoyments with the sacrificial sessions and chantings, the virtues with the offerings, generation with regeneration and death with the last ritual the final bath

2 atha yad asnāti, yat pibati, yad ramate, tad upasadair eti

2 And when one eats and drinks and enjoys pleasures, then he joins in the Upasada ceremonies

upasada a particular class of sacrificers who are happy because they take only milk upasadām ca payo-vratatva-nimitam sukham asti S

- 3 atha yadd hasatı yaj jaksatı, yan maithunam caratı, stutasastrair eva tad eti
- 3 And when one laughs and eats and indulges in sexual intercourse, then he joins in the chant and recitation.
- 4 atha yat tapo dānam ārjavam ahımsā satya-vacanam ıtı, tā asya daksınāh

4 And austerity, almsgiving, uprightness, non-violence, truthfulness, these are the gifts for the priests

- 5 tasmād āhuh sosyaty asosieti punar utpādanam evāsya, tan maranam evāvabhrthah
- 5 Therefore they say 'He will procreate' He has procreated—that is his new birth Death is the final bath (after the ceremony)
- 6 tadd hartad ghora angırasah krsnaya devaki-putrayoktvovaca, a-prpasa eva sa babhüva so'ntavelayam etat trayam prati-

padyet·aksıtam asi, acyutam ası, prāna-samsıtam asītı: tatraıte dve rcau bhavatah

6 When Ghora Angirasa, after having communicated this to Krsna, the son of Devakī, he also said, as he had become free from desire, 'In the final hour, one should take refuge in these three (thoughts) Thou art the indestructible, thou art the unshaken, thou art the very essence of life' On this point, there are these two Rg verses

Ś points out that the references are to the Yajus verses beginning with (i) aksitam asi, (ii) acyutam asi, and (iii) prāṇa-samsitam asi See Bhagavad-Gītā, p 28

- 7 ād it pratnasya retasah, ud vayam tamasas-pari jyotih pasyanta uttaram svah pasyanta uttaram, devam devatrā sūryam aganma jyotir uttamam iti, jyotir uttamam iti.
- 7 Proceeding from the primeval seed, they see the morning light that shines higher than the sky Seeing beyond darkness, the higher light, seeing the higher light, we attain to the sun god among the gods, the highest light, yea, the highest light

In some texts, after relasah, we find yyolih pasyantı vāsaram, paro yad idhvate divā

THE COSMIC EGG

I. ādriyo brahmety ādešah, tasyopavyākhyānam: asad evedam agra āsīt, tat sad āsīt, tat samabhavat, tad āndam niravartata, tat samvatsarasya mātrām ašayata, tan nirabhidyata, te ānḍakapāle rajatam ca suvarnam cābhavatām.

I The Sun is Brahman—this is the teaching. An explanation thereof (is this). In the beginning this (world) was non-existent. It became existent. It grew. It turned into an egg. It lay for the period of a year. It burst open. Then came out of the eggshell, two parts, one of silver, the other of gold.

See RV X 129, Manu I 12.

asat' non-existent, it does not mean absolute non-being. It is a state in which name and form were not manifested: avyākṛta-nāma-rūpam. S. See also T U. II. 7.

In CU. VI 2, the view that in the beginning there was only non-

being is combated

2 tad yad rajatam seyam pṛthwī, yat suvarnam sā dyauḥ; yaj jarāyu te parvatāh, yad ulbam sa megho nīhārah, yā dhamanayas tā

nadyah, yad västeyam udakam sa samudrah.

2. That which was of silver is this earth, that which was of gold is the sky. What was the outer membrane is the mountains; that which was the inner membrane is the mist with the clouds. What were the veins were the rivers What was the fluid within is the ocean

In the Orpiuc Cosmogony, Chronos and Adrastea produce a gigantic egg which is divided into two, the upper half forming the sky and the lower the earth

- 3. atha yat tad ajäyata so'säv ädityah; tam jäyamänam ghosä ulülavo' nüdatisthan, sarväni ca bhütäni, sarve ca kämäh; tasmät tasyodayam prati pratyäyanam prati ghosä ulülavo'nütthisthanti, sarväni ca bhütäni sarve ca kämäh
- 3. And what was born from it is the yonder sun When he was born, shouts and hurrays as also all beings and all desires arose Therefore at his rise and his every return, shouts and hurrays as also all beings and all desires arise

- 4 sa ya etam evam vidvān ādityam brahmety upāste'bhyāso ha yad enam sādhavo ghosā ā ca gaccheyur upa ca nimrederan nimrederan

THE STORY OF JĀNASRUTI AND RAIKVA

- I aum jānaśrutir ha pautrāyanah śraddhādeyo bahudāyī bahupākya āsa, sa ha sarvata āvasathān māpayām cakre, sarvata eva me'tsyantīti
- I Aum There was the descendant of Janasruta, his great grandson, a pious giver, a liberal giver, a preparer of much food He had rest houses built everywhere, with the thought 'everywhere people will be eating of my food'
- 2. atha ha hamsā nišāyām atipetuh, tadd havvam hamso hamsam abhyuvāda ho ho'yi bhallāksa, bhallāksa, jānasruteh pautrāyanasya samam divā jyotir ātatam, tan mā prasānksīs tat tvā mā pradhāksīd iti
- 2 Then once at night, some swans flew past and one swan spoke to another thus, 'Hay, Ho, Shortsighted, Shortsighted. The light of Jānaśruti, the great grandson (of Janaśruta) has spread like the sky Do not touch it, lest it burn you.'

3 To it, the other one replied, 'Who is that man of whom you speak, as if he were Raikva, the man with the cart?' 'Pray, how is it with Raikva. the man with the cart?'

Š quotes Raikva in S B III 4 36 as one of the sages who attained brahma-yiāna or divine wisdom though they did not observe the rules of castes and stages of life. anāśramivena vartamāno'hi vidyāyām adhikriyate, kutah tad, drsteh, raikva-vācaknavī-prabhrtīnām evam-bhūtānām api brahmavitvaśrutyupalabdheh

5 Now, Jānaśruti, the great grandson (of Janaśruta) overheard this Then when he rose, he said to the attendant, 'O friend, you speak to me in the same way as to Raikva with the cart.' (He asked) 'How is it with Raikva, the man with the cart?'

He overheard the conversation of the swans and spent the night brooding over it When he woke up, listening to the eulogistic chants of the bards, he turned to his attendant and said, 'You speak of me as of Raikva with the cart' S

I. tad u ha jānaśrutih pautrāyanah şat-śatāni gavām niskam aśvatarī-ratham tad ādāya praticakrame, tam hābhyuvāda

- 1. Then Jänaśruti, the great grandson (of Janaśruta) took with him six hundred cows, a gold necklace, and a chariot with mules and said to him:
- 2 raikvemāni sat śatāni gavām, ayam niṣko'yam aśvatarīrathaḥ, anu ma etām bhagavo devatām śādhi, yām devatām upāssa iti
- 2. 'Raikva, here are six hundred cows, a gold necklace and a chariot with mules. Now Sir, please teach me the deity whom you worship.'

- 3 And to him, then, the other replied, 'Oh, necklace and carriage along with the cows be yours, O Sūdra.' And then again, Jānaśruti, the great grandson (of Janaśruta) taking a thousand cows, a gold necklace and a chariot with mules, and his daughter too, went up to him

Sūdra The king is not a Sūdra S explains it thus: 'The old teachers have explained this point thus: by addressing him as Sūdra, the sage Raikva shows that he already knows what is passing in the king's mind: The word Sūdra meaning "one who is melting with sorrows at hearing the greatness of Raikva, as spoken of by the swans" Or it may be that the king is addressed as Sūdra because he comes for instruction with an offering of riches like a Sūdra and not with proper obeisance and attendance as befits the higher castes, and it does not mean that the king is a Sūdra by caste. Others, however, explain that Raikva addressed him thus, because he was enraged at his offering him so little, because it is also said that riches are to be accepted when plenty of it is offered'

4. tan hābhyuvāda, raikvedam sahasram gavām, ayam nisko'yam asvatarī-rathah, iyam jāyāyam grāmo yasmınn āsse: anv eva mā, bhagavah, śādhīti.

RAIKVA'S TEACHING

I väyur väva samvargah, yadā vā agnır udväyatı, väyum evāpyetı, yadā süryo'stam eti väyum evāpyetı, yadā candro'stam eti väyum evāpyeti

I Air, verily, is the absorbent, for when a fire goes out, it goes into the air. When the sun sets, it goes into the air, and when the moon sets, it goes into the air

For Anaximenes air is theos, it is the primary substance His follower, Diogenes of Apollonia (fifth century BC) makes out that air is not only the one original and permanent substance but is also in its purest form the substance of all psyche in the universe It has special affinities with the soul in animals and human beings Simplicius quotes from his book, On Nature, 'Mankind and the other animals live on air, by breathing, and it is to them both soul and mind. The soul of all animals is the same, namely, air, which is warmer than the air outside, in which we live, though much colder than that near the sun. In my opinion that which has intelligence is what men call air, and by it everything is directed and it has power over all things, for it is just this substance which I hold to be God. See W. K. C. Guthrie. The Greeks and their Gods (1950), pp. 135-36

The connection of life with breath and so with air seems obvious

The Latin word for soul, anima, means both air and breath

3. Now, with reference to the self: Breath, indeed, is the absorbent. When one sleeps, speech just goes into breath; sight goes into breath; hearing goes into breath; the mind goes into breath For breath, indeed, absorbs all this.

- 4. tau vā etau dvau samvargau, vāyur eva devesu, prāņah prāņesu.

The food you have refused to me, you have really refused to Brahman.

The one god is said to be Prajā-patr.

7. Then Saunaka Kāpeya, reflecting on this, replied. 'It is the self of gods, the creator of all beings, with golden teeth, the eater, the truly wise one They speak of his magnificence as very great indeed, because he eats what is not food, without being eaten Thus, verily, O student of sacred knowledge, do we meditate on this '(Then he said to his attendants) 'give him food.'

- 8. Then they gave (food) to him These five and the other five make ten and that is the highest throw in dice Therefore in all directions, these ten are the food and the highest throw. This is Virāj, the eater of food Through it, this whole world becomes seen. One who knows this, sees all this and becomes an eater of food, yea, one who knows this.

The first five are air, fire, sun, moon and water The second five are breath, speech, eye, ear and mind

- 4 He said to him 'Of what family are you, my dear?' He replied, 'I do not know this, sir, of what family I am I asked my mother. She answered me, "In my youth, when I went about a great deal as a maid-servant, I got you So I do not know of what family you are I am Jabālā by name and you are Satyakāma by name." Thou hast not departed from the truth Having initiated him, he separated out four hundred lean, weak cows and said, 'Go with these, my dear' While taking them away, he said, 'I may not return without a thousand.' He lived away a number of years When they came to be a thousand.

SILENCE AND SPEECH IN SACRIFICES

I eşa ha var yajño yo'yam pavate, eşa ha yann idam sarvam punāti, yad esa yann idam sarvam punāti, tasmād esa eva yajñas tasya manas ca vāk ca vartanī.

I Verily, that which purifies here (i e the wind) is the sacrifice for he, moving along, purifies all this. And because moving along he purifies all this, he is the sacrifice. Of that mind and speech are the ways.

² Of these the Brahmā priest performs one with his mind; by speech the Hotr, the Adhvaryu and the Udgātr priests the other. When the morning litany has commenced and before the concluding recitation, the Brahmā priest has to speak

Generally the Brahmā priest follows the sacrifice with his mind, i.e. in silence. When he breaks the silence, then the mental exercise is interrupted, for he also resorts to speech. The performance of the Brahmā priest should be an act of meditation.

ı prazāpatır lokān abhyatapat, teşām tapyamānānām rasān prāvrhat, agnım prthivyāh vāyum antarikṣāt, ādityam divaḥ.

- I Prajā-bati brooded on the worlds. As they were brooded on, he extracted their essences, fire from the earth, air from the itmosphere, the sun from the sky
- 2 sa etās tisro devatā abhyatapat, tāsām tapyamānānām rasan pravrhat agner reah, vayor yajumsi, samany adityat.
- 2 On these three deities he brooded. As they were brooded on, he extracted their essences, the Rg verses from the fire, the Yajus formulas from the air, the Saman chants from the SHO
- 3 sa etām trayīm vidyām abhyatapat, tasyās tapyamānāyā rasan pravrhat, bhur ity rgbhyah, bhuvar iti yagurbhyah, svar iti samabhvah.
- 3 On this threefold knowledge he brooded As it was brooded upon he extracted its essences; bhur from the Rg verses; bhuvas from the Yajus formulas; svah from the Sāman chants
- 4 tad yady rkto risyed bhûh sväheti gärhapatye juhuyät, rcam eva tad rasena rcam vīryena rcam yajnasya viristam samdadhāti.
- 4. If (the sacrifice) is injured from the Rg verses, one should make an oblation in the householder's fire with the words bhūh, hail. So by the essence of the Rg verses themselves, by the power of the Rg verses, he binds together (heals) the injury to the Rg sacrifice
- 5 atha yadı yazusto risyed bhuvah sväheti daksinagnau juhuyat yajusām eva tad rasena yajusām vīryena yajusām yajñasya viristam samdadhāti
- 5 Again, if (the sacrifice) is injured by the Yajus formulas one should make an oblation in the southern fire with the words 'bhuvah' hail So by the essence of the Yajus formulas themselves, by the power of the Yajus formulas he binds together (heals) the injury to the Yajus sacrifice.
- 6 aiha yadı sāmato risyet, svah svāhety āhavanīye juhuyāt, samnām eva tad rasena samnām vīryeņa samnām yajnasya virislam samdadhāti.
- 6 Again, if (the sacrifice) is injured by the Sāma chants, one should make an oblation in the ahavaniya fire with the words 'svar' hail So by the essence of the Sama chants themselves, by the power of the Sama chants, he binds together (heals) the injury to the Saman sacrifice

If the injury be with regard to Brahmā, $ says, one should make an oblation in all the three fires, pronouncing all the three, bhūh, bhuvah, svah, as the injury relates to all the three Vedas

- 7 tad yathā lavanena suvarnam samdadhyāt, suvarnena rajatam, rajatena trapu, trapunā sīsam, sīsena loham, lohena dāru, dāru carmanā
- 7 Just as one would bind together gold with (borax) salt, silver with gold, tin with silver, lead with tin, iron with lead, wood with iron or wood with leather

loha iron or brass

8 evam esām lokānām āsām devatānām asyās trayyā vidyāyā vīryena yaznasya viriştam samdadhāti, bheşaja-krto ha vā eşa yaznah yatrawam-vid brahmā bhavati.

8 So does one bind together (heal) any injury to the sacrifice with the power of these worlds, of these gods, and of the three Vedas Verily, such a sacrifice is well healed when there is a Brahmā priest knowing this healed bhesaja-krto ha vā esa yajūah, rogārta wa pumām cikitsakena sušiksitenawa yajūo bhavati

- 9 esa ha vā udak-pravano yajñah, yatravam-vid brahmā bhavati, evam-vidam ha vā eṣā brahmānam anu gāthā yato yata āvartate, tat tad gacchati mānavah
- g Verily, that sacrifice is inclined to the north, in which there is a Brahmā priest who knows this And with regard to such a Brahmā priest there is this song Wherever it falls, thither the man goes mānava silent from mauna, silence, or thoughtful, from manana Whenever mistakes are committed, he breaks his silence and corrects them, for it is said, 'Whenever it fails, thither the man goes'

- IO. brahmavaika rtvik kurūn aśvābhiraksati, evam vidd ha vai brahmā yajñam yajamānam sarvāmś ca rtvijo'bhirakṣati, tasmād evam-vidam eva brahmānam kurvīta, nānevam-vidam, nānevamvidam
- To The Brahmā priest as a Rtvik priest protects the sacrificers like a mare, i.e. the Brahmā priest knowing this protects the sacrifice, the sacrificer and all the Rtvik priests. Therefore one should make one who knows this as his Brahmā priest, not one who does not know it, yea, not one who does not know it

I yo ha vai jyestham ca śrestham ca veda, jyesthaś ca ha vai śresthaś ca bhavati, prāno vāva jyesthas ca śresthaś ca.

I. Verily, he who knows the oldest and the best becomes himself the oldest and the best. Breath indeed is the oldest and the best.

S explains that breath is the oldest because it functions prior to the sense activities, even when the child is in the womb.

THE MEANING OF THE MANTHA RITE

- I sa hovāca, kım me annam bhavişyatīti; yat kim cıd ıdam ā śvabhya ā śakunıbhyah, ıtı höcuh tad vā etad anasyānnam ano ha ıaı nāma pratyaksam, na ha vā evamvıdı kımcana anannam bhavatītı.
- r. He (Breath) said, 'What will be my food?' They said, 'Whatever there is here, even unto dogs and birds' So this, verily, is the food of breath. Verily, breath (ana) is his evident name For one who knows this, there is nothing whatever that is not food prāna consists of pra and ana ana is breath and pra indicates the direction of the motion

2. sa hovāca, kim me vāso bhavisyatīti; āpaļi, iti hocuļi, tasmād vā etad asisyantah purastāc coparistāc cādbhih paridadhati, lambhuko ha vāso bhavati, anagno ha bhavati

2 He said, 'What will be my clothing?' They said, 'Water.' Therefore it is that, when people are about to eat, they cover it (the breath) with water, both before and after He thus obtains clothing and becomes clothed (is no longer naked).

This verse refers to the usual Indian practice of rinsing the mouth both before and after a meal

3. tadd haitat satyakāmo jābālo gośrutaye vaiyāghrapadyāyoktvovāca, yady apy etac chuskāya sthāņave brūyāt, jāyerann evāsmin-sākhāḥ, praroheyuḥ palāsānīti of the god,' he drinks up the whole Having cleansed the vessel or the cup, he sits down behind the fire either on a skin or on the bare ground with speech restrained and with self-possession If he now sees a woman let him know that his effort has reached fruition.

S says that he lies down behind the fire and if, in the dream, he sees a woman, that is a sign that his effort has succeeded

The analogy of the heavenly region to the sacrificial fire is worked out. The sun is the fuel as the world shines only when it is lighted up by the sun. The rays are the smoke because they rise from it even as the smoke rises from the fuel. The day is the flame because it is bright and is the effect of the sun. The moon is the coals or the embers, for even as the moon becomes visible when the day has ceased, the embers become visible when the flame is put out. The stars are the sparks, they are like parts of the moon.

I. So those who know this, and those who in the forest meditate on faith as austerity (or with faith and austerity) go to light and from light to day, from day to the bright half of the month (of the waxing moon), from the bright half of the month to those six months during which the sun moves northward

The question as to the place to which men go from here is taken up See C.U IV 15 5 those who know this The doctrine of the five fires S makes out that this refers to the householders, as the next clause refers to the recluses in the forest

2. From these months to the year, from the year to the sun, from the sun to the moon, from the moon to the lightning. There, there is a person who is non-human. He leads them on to Brahmā This is the path leading to the gods

The earliest conception of the path of the gods is to be found in the RV, where Agni who serves as the intermediary between gods and men, as bearing the offerings to the gods is addressed thus 'Knowing the ways by which the gods go, thou (Agni) hast become the unweared messenger, the bearer of oblations 'I 72.7, see also II 2 4 The path on which the sacrifices were taken to the heavenly world becomes the path by which the sacrificer himself ascended to the world of the gods See Satapatha Brāhmana, I 9 3 2 The stations on the path need not be taken literally They represent stages of progressive knowledge and light while those of pitr-yāna of progressive darkness and corruption See IV 15 5 BU VI 2 15

annam—food They become the servants of the gods: upakarana-mātram devānām bhavantı te strī-paśu-bhṛtyādīvat Ś The gods love them and they love the gods They live with and rejoice in gods

Three kinds of future are indicated. The performers of sacrifices reach the moon by passing along the path of the fathers, pity-yāna, and after having experienced the fruits of their works these return again with a residuum of their karma. The non-performers of sacrifices go to the kingdom of Yama. Those who adopt the way of enlightenment go by the path of gods, deva-yāna. There is no return for them from the latter. The distinction between the pity-yāna and the deva-yāna is one of two different systems of culture, the way of works and the way of knowledge resulting in two different spiritual conditions.

- 8 But on neither of these ways are those small creatures (which are) continually revolving (those of whom it is said), be born and die Their's is a third state By this (it comes about) that that world becomes full. Therefore let one seek to guard himself. To this end, there is this verse.

If we pursue wisdom, we travel by the path of the gods If we perform good works we travel by the path of the fathers If we do neither, we will continually revolve like little creatures

The five questions raised in V 3, 2-3 are answered

prādeša-mātra of the measure of the span Ś gives five different renderings of which the chief are (1) that which is recognised bodily through heaven as the head and the earth as the feet, (11) that which is measured by a measure extending from the heaven to the earth

The self which has assumed the shape of the whole universe is the Universal Self It is to be known as the Self of all beings. One has to realise the Self in oneself before one can comprehend Him as the Self of the whole creation. The individual 'I' and the universal 'I' are one

Asmarathya teaches the meditation of Vaisvānara as prādešamātra since the Supreme Being is specially manifested in the heart which is conceived as of the measure of a span

THE NEED FOR KNOWLEDGE IS STRESSED

I sa ya ıdam avıdvān agnı-hotram juhotı, yathangaran apohya bhasmanı juhuyat, tadrk tat syat

I If, without knowing this, one offers the fire sacrifice, that would be just as if he were to remove the live coals and pour the offering on (dead) ashes

- 2 But if, knowing it thus, one offers the fire sacrifice he offers it in all worlds, in all beings, in all selves, he will perform sacrifices with a full knowledge of their meaning and purpose
- 3 tad yathesīkā-tūlam agnau protam pradūyeta, evam hāsya sarve pāpmānah pradūyante, ya etad evam vidvān agni-hotram juhoti

4 Therefore if one who knows this should offer the remnant of his food to a Candāla, it would be offered in his Universal Self On this there is the following verse

Candāla is symbolic of those who do not deserve the offer anarha S One is released from the observance of restrictions when one has attained knowledge that the one Self dwells in all One offers it to the Universal Self dwelling in the body of the Candāla: candāla-de-hasthe vaiśvānare Ś. The whole system of caste and untouchability is undermined by the perception of the Indwelling Self in all

THE PRIMACY OF BEING

I sad eva, saumya, idam agra āsīd ekam evādītīyam, tadd haika āhuh, asad cvcdam agra āsīd ekam evādvitīyam, tasmād asataļ saj jāyata

I. In the beginning, my dear, this was Being alone, one only without a second Some people say 'in the beginning this was non-being alone, one only, without a second From that non-being, being was produced' sad being eva without any limitation or upādhi

idam this, the universe of name and form, the world of manifestation Prior to manifestation this world was pure being One only without a second. There is no second to it. There is no other object than being nasya duitiyam vastv antaram vidyata ity advitiyam. See TU II 7, CU III 19 1

The logical priority of Brahman to the world is brought out by the statement that Being alone was this in the beginning

See Maitrī, VI 17 Cp. Pañcadaśī, I 19

ıdam sarvam purā srster ekam evādvitīyakam sad evāsīn nāma-rūpe nāstām iti āruner vacah

'Previous to creation all this was being, one only without a second Name and form were not this is the statement of the son of Aruna'

He does not have 'being' as other things have being. He is his own being. Being is, is God. Being is above all conceptions and conceptual differentiations. It is prior to all things. All other things are from being, live in it and end in it. What is other than being is nothing.

According to Indian logic, there are four kinds of non-existence or abhāva There is absolute non-existence or atyantābhāva anything self-contradictory like the barren woman's son, vandhyāputra, is inconceivable and impossible Barrenness and motherhood contradict each other The real excludes self-contradictory non-existence When non-being or asat is said to be the root of existence, asat does not mean absolute non-existence but only prior or antecedent non-existence or prag-abhava or potential existence. The world is non-existent before its production. It was existent potentially or as a possibility though not as an actuality Creation is not out of absolute non-existence but out of prior non-existence or the world of possibility This type of non-existence has no beginning but has an end when the possibility is actualised pradhvamsābhāva is posterior non-existence It is the opposite of prior non-existence It has a beginning but no end When a jar is destroyed, its non-existence begins at the time it is destroyed, but it has no end The mutual exclusiveness of a jar and a cloth, the fact of difference, is indicated by anyonyābhāva A is not B A jar is not a cloth See Annambhatta's Tarka-samgraha 3

2. But how, indeed, my dear, could it be thus? said he, how could being be produced from non-being? On the contrary, my dear, in the beginning this was being alone, one only, without a second

A suggests that ekam excludes sajātīya and svagata bheda and advitīyam excludes vijātīya bheda

vrksasya svagata-bhedah patra-puspa-phalādibhih vrksantarāt sajātīyo vijātīyah silāditah II. 20.

Svagata-bheda is internal difference of a tree from its leaves, flowers and fruits Sajātīya difference is that of one tree from other trees Vijātīya is the difference of a tree from rock, etc Brahman is devoid of all these three kinds of difference

3. It thought, May I be many, may I grow forth. It sent forth fire That fire thought, May I be many, may I grow forth. It sent forth water. Therefore, whenever a person grieves or perspires, water is produced from the fire (heat).

asksala thought literally saw This word indicates that pure being is conscious. The reference in all such passages is not to the elements as such, but to the presiding deities abhımanınyah cetanah devatah SB II I 5 S also says that the Highest Lord abiding as the selves of the various elements, produces by his power of thought, the different effects:

paramesvara eva tena tena ātmanā avaltsthamānah abhidhyāyan tam tam vikāram syjate SB II 3 13.

In other Upanisads, space, air and fire are mentioned as successive products

The text, S suggests, has no eye to the order of creation for it is only interested in making out that all effects are derived from Being devatā-literally divinity. It means being By the union of sat or Being with the three elements of fire, water and earth, all the varied manifestations of the world are produced. In relation to the three elements which are called devatas, sat is called para devatā, highest being Sat is primary being Tejas is its first product Out of tegas water is produced, and out of water food Sat penetrates into these three as their inner soul, and by mixing them up makes each of them threefold The red colour of fire is the colour of tejas, the white of apas and the black of anna the three are the truth and their differentiations are derived from vac, vācārambhanam So long as vāc does not differentiate, the three colours form a unity M Senart thinks that the three rūpas are derived from the three cosmic spheres. All things are ultimately modifications of pure being sarvasya sad vikāratvāt S The primordial being becomes three deities, fire, water and earth. The doctrine of trivit-karana, by which each of the three original elements, fire, water and earth is to be regarded as being divided into two equal portions, of which one half is kept intact and the other half is divided into two equal parts, the two quarters of the two other elements in combination with the one half of the original element. This view is the basis of the doctrine of pañcīkarana of the later Vedānta. Anaxagoras affirms that there is a portion of everything in everything.

The three colours are taken over by the Sāmkhya system to correspond to the three gunas, sativa, rajas and tamas

5. To him he then said, 'Just as, my dear, of a great lighted fire if a single coal of the size of a firefly is left, and made to blaze up by covering it with straw and with it the fire would thereafter burn much

6. evam, saumya, te sodaśānām kalānām ekā kalā'trśistā'bhūt, sā'nnenopasamāhītā prājvālīt, tayā etarhī vedān anubhavasi anna mayam hi, saumya, manah, āpomayah prāņah, tejomayī vāg itr tadd hāsya vijajñāv itr

6 So, my dear, of your sixteen parts only one part was left, and that, when covered with food, blazed up With it you now apprehend the Vedas For, my dear, the mind consists of food, the breath consists of water and speech consists of heat. Then he understood what he said; he understood it

pañcendriyasya purusasya yad eva syād anāvītam
tad asya prajūā sravati drīch pādād ivodakam

When the (mind of the) person consisting of the five senses is not supported by food, then his intelligence goes away, even as the water flows away from the mouth of a leathern bag 'anāvṛtam' unprotected, uncovered by food

I. Then Uddālaka Āruni said to his son, Svetaketu, Learn from me, my dear, the true nature of sleep When a person here sleeps, as it is called, then, my dear, he has reached pure being He has gone to his own Therefore they say he sleeps for he has gone to his own svapnānia true nature of sleep, literally the end of the dream S interprets it as the central portion of the dream vision: svapnāntam svapna-madhyam suṣuptam S In the condition of deep sleep, personal consciousness subsides and the self is said to be absorbed in the Highest Self Speech, mind and the senses rest. Only the breath is active The jīva, the living soul returns for a while to the deeper self in order to recover from the fatigue

In dreamless sleep, buddhi or understanding remains in a potential condition and becomes active in the dream and waking states

Just as a bird tied by a string, after flying in various directions without finding a resting-place elsewhere settles down (at last) at the place where it is bound, so also the mind, my dear, after flying in various directions without finding a resting-place elsewhere settles down in breath, for the mind, my dear, is bound to breath

The organic nature of the relationship between mind and life is brought out here. The mental, while it transcends the vital, arises out of the vital and is rooted in it

3 aśanā-pipāse me, saumya, vijānīhīti, yatraitat puruso aśiśisati nāma, āpa eva tad asītam nayante tad yathā gonāyo'svanāyah purusanāya iti, evam tad apa ācaksate'sanāyeti, tatraitacchungam

3. Learn from me, my dear, what hunger and thirst are. When a person here is hungry, as it is called, water only is leading (carrying away) what has been eaten (by him). So as they speak of a leader of cows, a leader of horses, a leader of men, so they speak of water as the leader (or carrier of food). On this, my dear, understand that this (body) is an offshoot which has sprung up, for it could not be without a root

The person is hungry because whatever he eats is quickly digested.

- 4. And what else could its root be than food? And in the same manner, my dear, with food as an offshoot, seek for water as the root, with water, my dear, as an offshoot, seek for heat as the root; with heat, my dear, as an offshoot, seek for Being as its root All these creatures, my dear, have their root in Being. They have Being as their abode, Being as their support

Being is the ultimate root of the whole universe.

- 5 Now when a person here is thirsty, as it is called, heat only is leading (or carrying off) what has been drunk (by him). So as they speak of a leader of cows, a leader of horses, a leader of men so one speaks of heat as the leader of water. On this my dear, understand that this (body) is an offshoot which has sprung up, for it could not be without a root.

6 And what else could its root be than water? With water, my dear, as an offshoot, seek for heat as the root, with heat, my dear, as an offshoot, seek for Being as the root All these creatures, my dear, have their root in Being They have Being as their abode, Being as their support But how, verily, my dear, each of these three divinities, on reaching the human, becomes threefold has already been said. When, my dear, a person departs from hence, his speech merges in his mind, his mind on his breath, his breath in heat and heat in the highest divinity

From Pure Being arises fire, from fire water and from water earth In speech the element of fire predominates, in life-breath the element of water, in mind the element of earth. When a person deceases, his speech is merged in the mind. His voice fails though his mind continues to function. When the mind merges in life, the mental activity ceases. When life merges in heat, when we are in doubt about a man's condition, whether he is alive or dead, we feel the body. If it is warm, he is alive, if not he is dead. Fire is then taken up in the highest Being. If we depart from this life with our thoughts merged in the Supreme we reach Pure Being, otherwise, we enter the world of becoming.

7. That which is the subtle essence (the root of all) this whole world has for its self. That is the true. That is the self. That art thou, Svetaketu 'Please, Venerable Sir, instruct me still further.' 'So be it, my dear,' said he tat tvam as: that art thou This famous text emphasises the divine nature of the human soul, the need to discriminate between the essential self and the accidents with which it is confused and the fetters by which it is bound. He who knows only what is of the body or mind knows the things that may be his but not himself. The text 'That art thou' applies to the inward person, antah purusa, and not to the empirical soul with its name and family descent.

'What I am, that is he, what he is, that am I' See Astareya Aranyaka, II 2 4 6 1 VI 5 I-4 Jābāla Up has the following: tvam vā aham asmi bhagavo devate aham vā tvam asi. 'I am thou, O great God, and thou art I.'

R interprets tat tvam asi as affirming that the principle of God is common to both the universe and the individual. That means God having the entire universe as his body, thou means God having the individual soul as his body. The principle of God is common to both

In the Jaminiya Upanisad Brāhmana (III. 14. 1-5) when the deceased reaches the Sun-door, the question is asked, Who art thou? If he answers by a personal or a family name, he is subject to the law of karma If he responds 'Who I am (is) the light thou (art). As such have I come to thee, the heavenly light.' Prajā-pati replies: 'Who thou art, that same am I; who I am that same art thou. Enter in'

Rūmī speaks to us of the man who knocked at his friend's door and was asked, 'Who art thou?' He answered 'I.' 'Begone,' said his friend. After a year's suffering and separation he came and knocked again, and when asked the same question, replied, 'It is Thou art at the door,' and received the reply, 'Since thou art I, come in, O myself.' S makes out that our real home is sat or Being Our eyes are bandaged with desires for worldly possessions which blind us. When we suddenly meet a person who knows the Self, whose own bonds have been broken, when he points the way, we feel that we are not mere creatures of the world but we belong to the ultimate reality. We are released, according to S, when the body reared by our past

Alexander was one day asked, 'Why do you show greater respect and reverence to your instructor than you do to your father?' See VI. 8, 6,

Both those who know the truth and those who do not know the truth reach the ultimate Reality at death. The former do not return to embodied life while the latter do.

S denies that he who knows passes at death through the artery of the head to the sun and then to the Real. At death he reaches the Real straight.

Also, my dear, they lead up a man seized by the hand, saying, 'He has stolen, he has committed a theft, heat the axe for him' If he is the doer thereof (i.e. if he has committed the theft) then he makes himself untrue (a liar). Being given to untruth, covering himself by untruth he takes hold of the heated axe and is burnt. Then he is killed

At the time of this Upanisad belief in ordeals should have prevailed. The guilty man is burnt and killed by grasping the heated axe while the innocent man is not affected by grasping it. So also the knower is not repelled by the Real while the non-knower returns to embodied life.

This passage gives an illustration to indicate how he who knows, when he reaches the Real, does not return to embodied life, while he who does not know, when he reaches the Real returns

SANATKUMĀRA'S INSTRUCTION TO NĀRADA PROGRESSIVE WORSHIP OF BRAHMAN NAME

- I adhīhi, bhagavah, iti hopasasāda sanatkumāram nāradah, tam hovāca yad vettha tena mopasīda, tatas ta ūrdhvam vaksyāmīti, sa hovāca
- I Nārada approached Sanatkumāra and said, 'Teach me, Venerable Sir,' He said, 'Come to me with (tell me) what you know Then I will teach you what is beyond that'

See TU III I

The story is introduced to show that the supreme good cannot be accomplished without a knowledge of the Self niratiśaya-prāptisādhanatvam ātma-vidyāyā Ś

Nārada is he who gives the knowledge of the Supreme Self, according to Sabda-kalpa-druma nāram dadāti iti nāradah, nāram

param-aima-visayakam jäänam

Sanatkumāra is represented in Indian tradition as the eternal child Brahma-vaivarta Purāna makes out that he is eternally a child of five years, who did not undergo the usual samskāras, a pupil of the very God, Nārāyana, vayasā pañca-hāyanah, acūdo anupavītas ca veda-sandhyā-vihīnakah yasya nārāyano guruh

Harwamśa confirms this view 'Know me only to be a child just as I was born and so the name sanatkumāra was given to me'

yathotpannas tathawāham kumāra ıtı viddhi mām, tasmāt sanatkumāreti mām aitan me pratisthitan

The learned Nārada goes to the unlearned Sanatkumāra for instruction. For self-realisation, practice of virtue and love to all creation are necessary more than scriptural lore Vāmana Purāna makes out that Sanatkumāra is the son of virtue by the wife of non-violence.

I. Mind, assuredly, is greater than speech. For as the closed fist holds two amalaka or two kola or two aksa fruits so does mind hold speech and name. For when one through mind has in mind to learn the sacred hymns, then he learns them. If he has mind to perform sacred works, then he performs them. When he has in mind to desire for sons and cattle, then he desires them. When he has in mind to desire this world and yonder, then he desires them. Veda, the Yajur Veda, the Sāma Veda, the Atharva Veda as the fourth, legend and ancient lore as the fifth, the Veda of the Vedas (i.e. grammar), the rites of the fathers, mathematics, the science of portents, the science of time (chronology), logic, ethics and politics, the science of the gods, the science of sacred knowledge (i.e. the Vedas), the science of the elementals, the science of rulership, the science of the stars (astronomy), the science of snake charming, of the fine arts as well as heaven and earth, air and space, water and heat, gods and men.

beasts and birds, grass and trees, animals together with worms, flies and ants, the right and the wrong, the true and the false, the good and the bad, the pleasing and the unpleasing the food and the drink (or taste), this world and yonder, all this one understands just with understanding. When one becomes strong, he becomes a rising man If he rises he serves (wise people). If he serves, he draws near (by becoming attached as a pupil). By drawing near, he becomes a seer, becomes a hearer, becomes a thinker, becomes a perceiver, becomes a doer, becomes an understander. He should not deny it ativadin. He goes beyond all declarations made previously beginning with name and ending with hope, and realises that prana or the conscious self is Brahman In M U III I 4 an ativadin is contrasted with one who really knows the highest truth

In all this discussion Sanatkumāra leads Nārada step by step, tato bhūyah, until he obtains the experience of the absolutely great, which is undefined and unmeasured. As Nārada seems to be satisfied with prāna and does not ask 'Is there anything greater than prāna?' the teacher leads him on to a higher view in sections 16–26 He is an ativādin who passes beyond the empirical variety and grasps the metaphysical reality. yastu bhūmākhyam sarvātikrāntam tattvam

Sanatkumāra points out that spiritual freedom is the basis of all action. We reach it by stages. The vision of the Divine, the Infinite, gives us happiness. Other things which fall short of it are of little consequence. The self, ātman, is the source of all things, whatsoever, hope, memory, space, light and water. It is the source of all power, all knowledge, all happiness.

CHAPTER VIII

CONCERNING THE NATURE OF THE SELF

THE UNIVERSAL SELF WITHIN THE HEART AND IN THE WORLD

I harih, aum. atha yad idan asmin brahma-pure daharam pundarikam vesma, daharo'sminn antarākāsah, tasmin yad antah, tad anvestavyam, tad vā va vijijnāsitavyam.

I Hanh, aum. Now, here in this city of Brahman is an abode, a small lotus flower; within it is a small space. What is within that should be sought, for that, assuredly, is what one should desire to understand.

daharam: alpam, small. S.

purdarīkam: puņdarīka-sadršam, like a lotus. S.

brahma-pure sarire, in the body. S. The body is deva-sadana or the temple of God.

vijifiāsiiavyam: sābṣāt-baraṇīyam, made an object of direct apprehension S

In introducing this chapter S points out that the speculative effort of Chapter VII, which establishes the identity of our self with the highest self is too much for ordinary people who are inclined to assume that the metaphysical reality which is free from all determinations is as good as non-being: dig-deśn-guṇa-gati-phala-bheda śūnyam hi paramārihasad adi ayam bral.ma marda-briddhīrām asad ira pratibhāt: Pure being; devoid of all determinations, is often in Western thought mistaken for non-being (asat). Cp. Hegel's criticism of Spmoza's substance.

As ordinary people find it difficult to conceive of the Real as out of space and time, they are taught to think of it as an object endowed with qualities, living in the world and the human self. This knowledge is to serve as a preparation for the higher knowledge.

tidyate yad anvestavyam, yad vā va tijijnāsitavyam iti.

2. If they should say to him, with regard to this city of Brahmā and the abode and the small lotus flower and the small space within that, what is there that should be sought for, or that, assuredly, one should desire to understand?

The implication is that there is nothing there which one has to search out or understand: kim tad atra vidyate na kiñ cana vidyata ity abhiprāyah. Ś.

3 sa brīvāi yāvān vā ayam ākāśah, tāvān eso'ntarhrdaya ākāśah. ubhe asmin dyāvā-pṛthivī antar eva samāhite, ubhāv agnis'ca vāyus ca sūryā-candramasāv ubhau, vidyun naksatrāņi yac cāsyehāsti yac ca nāsti sarvam tad asmin samāhītam iti

3 He should say, as far, verily, as this (world) space extends, so far extends the space within the heart Within it, indeed, are contained both heaven and earth, both fire and air, both sun and moon, lightning and the stars. Whatever there is of him in this world and whatever is not, all that is contained within it.

The individual is to be regarded as the world in miniature The world is the individual writ large.

In Buddhist thought ālaya-vijāāna is the receptacle of all the latent possibilities of existence. hrd-ākāśa answers to the ālaya-vijāāna When the concrete manifestations are overcome by decay and death, their types are not destroyed along with them. The desires out of which they arise are preserved in the hrd-ākāśa. what is not: What is no longer or not yet, the past and the future.

4. tanı ced brūyuk, asminis'ced idam brahma-pure sarvanı samāhitanı sarvanı ca bhūtānı sarve ca kāmāk yadaitaj jarā vāpnoti pradhvanısate vā, kini tato'tistsyata iti.

4. If they should say to him, if, within this city of Brahmā, is contained all (that exists), all beings and all desires, then what is left of it when old age overtakes it or when it perishes?

5. sa brūyāt; nāsya jarayattaj jīryati, na vadhenāsya hanyate. etat satyam brahma-puram asmın kāmāli samāhitāh, eṣa ātmā-pakata-pāpmā vijaro vimrtyvr višoko vijighatso'pipāsah, satya-kāmali satya-samkalpah, yathā hy eveha prajā anvāvišanti yathānušāsanam, yam yam antam abhikāmā bhavanti yam janapadam, yam ksetra-bhāgam, tām tam evopajīvanti.

5. He should say, it (the self within) does not age with old age, it is not killed by the killing (of the body). That (and not the body) is the real city of Brahmā. In it desires are contained. It is the self free from sin, free from old age, free from death, free from sorrow, free from hunger, free from thirst, whose desire is the real, whose thought is the real. For, just as here on earth people follow in obedience to command (as they are commanded), of whatever object they are desirous, be it a country or a part of a field, on that they live dependent.

Our desires condition our future.

- 6 tad yatheha karma-jito lokah ksiyate, evam evamutra punya-jito lokah ksiyate tad ya ihatmanam ananuvidya vrajanty etams ca satyan kaman, tesam sarvesu lokesv akama-caro bhavati atha ya ihatmanam anuvidya vrajanty etams ca satyan kaman, tesam sarvesu lokesu kama-caro bhavati.
- 6. As here on earth the world which is earned by work perishes, even so there the world which is earned by merit (derived from the performance of sacrifices) perishes. Those who depart hence without having found here the self and those real desires, for them there is no freedom in all the worlds. But those who depart hence, having found here the self and those real desires—for them in all worlds there is freedom.

- 2. But those of one's (fellows) whether they are alive or whether they have departed and whatever else one desires but does not get, all this one finds by going in there (into one's own self), for here, indeed, are those true desires of his with a covering of what is false. Just as those who do not know the field walk again and again over the hidden treasure of gold and do not find it, even so all creatures here go day after day into the Brahma-world and yet do not find it, for they are carried away by untruth

All desires find their fulfilment in the self. The city of Brahmā is within one's heart where we can possess all our desires

We daily get into the Brahmā-world while we are asleep: hṛdayā-kāśākhyam brahma-lokam ahar ahaḥ pratyaham gacchantyo' pi susupta-kāle na undanti na labhante S.

3 Verily, that self is (abides) in the heart Of it the etymological explanation is this This one is in the heart, thereof it is the heart. He who knows this goes day by day into the heavenly world.

In deep sleep one gets into the Brahman of the heart. One has to realise the self in one's heart Indaya-nāma nirvacana prasiddhyāpi sia-hrdaya ātmety avagantavyam Ś.

5 Verily, these are the three syllables sat, ti, yam The sat, that is the immortal. The ti, that is the mortal The yam, with it one holds the two together. Because with it one holds the two together therefore it is yam. He who knows this goes day by day into the heavenly world.

For another explanation of the word satyam, see B U. V 5 1 yacchati holds together, yamayati, niyamayati, vasikaroti S The eternal and the temporal are bound together. There is no suggestion that the mortal is illusory.

I Now the self is the bridge, the (separating) boundary for keeping these worlds apart. Over that bridge day and night do not cross, nor old age nor death, nor sorrow, nor well-doing nor ill-doing. All evils turn back from it for the Brahma-world is freed from evil

See Katha III. 2, M.U. II. 2. 5.

Day and night are the factors of time, the determinants of the mortality of all things under the sun.

2. tasmād vā etam setum tīrtvāndhah sann anandho bhavati. viddhak sann aviddho bhavati, upatāpī sann anupatāpī bhavati. tasmād vā etam setum tīrtvāpi naktam ahar evābhinispadyate, sabid vibhāto hy evaisa brahma-lokah.

2. Therefore, verily, on crossing that bridge, if one is blind he becomes no longer blind, if wounded, he becomes no longer wounded, if afflicted he becomes no longer afflicted. Therefore, --verily, on crossing that bridge, night appears even as day for that Brahma-world is ever-illumined.

See III. II. 3.

When one crosses the bridge and gets to the other shore, the troubles of the world cease. Eckhart says: 'There neither virtue nor vice ever entered in." sakrd ribhātah: ever-illumined, sadā ribhātah, sadaikarūþah. S.

Only by the disciplined life of a student of sacred knowledge does he who knows obtain that (world). Now what people call 'What has been sacrificed' is really the disciplined life of a student of sacred knowledge, for only by sacrificing with the disciplined life of a student of sacred knowledge does one obtain the self

- 2 Now what people call the protracted sacrifice (satir-ayanam) is really the disciplined life of a student of sacred knowledge Only by the disciplined life of a student of sacred knowledge does one obtain the protection of the real self. Now what people call the vow of silence is really the disciplined life of a student of sacred knowledge, for only by finding out the self through the disciplined life of a student of sacred knowledge does one (really) meditate

3 Now what people call a course of fasting is really the disciplined life of a student of sacred knowledge, for the self which one finds by the disciplined life of a student of sacred knowledge does not perish. Now what people call the life of a hermit is really the disciplined life of a student of sacred knowledge. Verily, ara and nya are the two seas in the Brahma-world in the third heaven from here. And there is the lake Airammadīya and there the tree showering Soma, there is the city of Brahman Aparājitā and the golden hall built by the Lord.

anāśakāyanam. a course of fasting It may also mean entrance into the unperishing, a-nāśaka-ayana

In the K.U I 3, the sea is called ara, according to S, aparanta is not a city but a resting-place, ayatana

This section advocates not only the need for brahmacarya but also the equivalence of certain sacrifices to brahmacarya. This equivalence is established by ingenious etymological explanations Yajiia or 'sacrifice' and yo jiiātā 'he who knows' have a certain similarity. Similarly ista, another kind of sacrifice, has something in common with esanā or 'search'

satirāyana with sat, the true and trāyana or protection, mauna silence with manana, meditation, anāšakāyana with the unperishing from nas to perish, aranyāyana with ara and nya, the two seas which are said to exist in the world of Brahmā

- 4 tad ya evartāv aram ca nyam cārnavau brahma-loke brahmacaryenāmwindanti, tesām evarsa brahma-lokah tesām sarvesu lokesu kāma-cāro bhavati.
- 4 Only they who find the two seas Ara and Nya in the Brahma-world through the disciplined life of a student of sacred knowledge, only they possess the Brahma-world. In all the worlds they possess unlimited freedom.

All these fulfilled desires mentioned in sections 2-5 are real at their own level. They are not to be dismissed as false or unreal. Even dreams are unreal only in relation to what we see when we are awake. What we see in waking experience is not altogether unreal for it is based on the real.

A hundred and one are the arteries of the heart, one of them leads up to the crown of the head. Going upward through that, one becomes immortal: the others serve for going in various other directions, for going in various other directions.

The self which is free from evil, free from old age, free from death, free from grief, free from hunger and thirst, whose desire is the real, whose thought is the real, he should be sought, him one should desire to understand. He who has found out and who understands that self, he obtains all worlds and all desires Thus spoke Prajā-pati.

- 3 For thirty-two years the two lived there the disciplined life of a student of sacred knowledge. Then Prajā-pati asked them, 'Desiring what have you been living?' The two said, 'The self which is free from evil, free from old age, free from death, free from grief, free from hunger and thirst, whose desire is the real, whose thought is the real. He should be sought, him one should desire to understand. He who has found out, he who understands that self he obtains all worlds and all desires' These people declare to be your word, Venerable Sir, desiring him we have been living.

- 4 Prajā-pati said to the two, 'The person that is seen in the eye, that is the self,' said he 'That is the immortal, the fearless That is Brahman' 'But, Venerable Sir, he who is perceived in water and in a mirror, who is he?' He replied, 'The same one, indeed, is perceived in all these'

While Prajā-pati means by the self the subject of all seeing, Indra and Virocana mistake the self for the person that is seen, not the person that sees See Yoga Sūtra II 6 The person seen in the eye is the figure imaged in the eye, and they ask whether the image that is seen in the water and in the mirror is the self At this stage the pupils confuse the true self with the body

THE BODILY SELF

I. Look at your self in a pan of water and whatever you do not understand of the self, tell me. Then the two looked in a pan of water Then Prajā-pati said to the two, 'What do you see?' Then the two said, 'We both see the self thus altogether, Venerable Sir, a picture even to the very hairs and nails.'

The body is subject to change and cannot therefore be the self which is said to be unchanging loma-nakhādivac charīrasyāpy āgamāpāyitvam siddham Ś

2 Then Prajā-pati said to the two, after you have well adorned yourselves, put on your best clothes, make yourselves tidy, look into the pan of water. Then the two adorned themselves well, put on their best clothes and made themselves tidy and looked into the pan of water Then Prajā-pati said to the two, 'What do you see?'

This illustration points out that bodily changes are as external to the true self as clothes and ornaments are. They belong to the not-self, anātman

3 The two said, 'Just as we are, Venerable Sir, well adorned, with our best clothes and tidy, thus we see both these, Venerable Sir, well adorned, with our best clothes and tidy.' 'That is the self,' said he 'That is the immortal, the fearless, that is Brahman.' They both went away with a tranquil heart.

4 Then Prajā-pati looked at them and said, they go away without having perceived, without having known the self Whosoever will follow such a doctrine, be they gods or demons they shall perish Then Virocana with a tranquil heart went to the demons and declared that doctrine, one's (bodily) self is to be made happy here, one's (bodily) self is to be served He who makes his own self happy here and he who serves his own self, he obtains both worlds, this world and the yonder

5 Therefore even here they say of one who is not a giver, who has no faith, who does not offer sacrifices, that he is a demon, for this is the doctrine of the demons. In this account we have a progressive spiritualisation of the idea of self. The highest knowledge is not to be snatched at one leap It is acquired as the result of methodical endeavour, steady deepening of the mind. The essence of the psychical self consists in a directedness to the object of consciousness, its intentionality. We begin with the physical individual, the sensuous outlook, the demoniacal view. Slowly there is the inturning of the mind, a direction to the phenomena of dream and dreamless sleep. Introspection is guided towards the idea of the self. Atman is the highest self. The journey ends in pure spirit, the subject of knowledge which is continuous despite the shutting off of consciousness, which is exalted above waking and sleeping.

AITAREYA UPANISAD

The Astareya Upanisad belongs to the Rg Veda and the Upanisad proper consists of three chapters. This is part of the Astareva Aranyaka, and the Upanisad begins with the Fourth Chapter of the second Aranyaka, and comprises Chapters IV, V and VI. The preceding parts deal with sacrificial ceremonies like the mahavrata and their interpretations. It is the purpose of the Upanisad to lead the mind of the sacrificer away from the outer ceremonial to its inner meaning. All true sacrifice is inward S points out that there are three classes of men who wish to acquire wisdom. The highest consists of those who have turned away from the world, whose minds are freed and collected, who are eager for freedom For these the Upanisad (Astareya Aranyaka II. 4-6) is intended There are others who wish to become free gradually by attaining to the world of Hiranya-garbha For them the knowledge and worship of prana. life-breath is intended (Astareya Aranyaka II I-3) There are still others who care only for worldly possessions. For them the meditative worship of the Samhita is intended (Astareya Āranyaka III).1

TAITTIRÏYA UPANIŞAD

The Taithriya Upanisad belongs to the Taittiriya school of the Yajur Veda It is divided into three sections called Vallis The first is the Siksā Valli. Siksā is the first of the six Vedāngas (limbs or auxiliaries of the Veda); it is the science of phonetics and pronunciation The second is the Brahmānanda Valli and the third is the Bhrgu Valli These two deal with the knowledge of the Supreme Self, paramātma-jñāna.

THE SIGNIFICANCE OF COMBINATIONS

I saha nau yasah, saha nau brahma-varcasam, athā tat samhrtāyā upanisadam vyākhyāsyāmah;

pañcasv adhikaranesu, adhilokam, adhiyyotisam, adhividyam, adhiprajam, adhyatmam eta mahasamhita ity acaksate.

athādhilokam, prihivī pūrva-rūpam, dyaur utiara-rūpam, ākāšas

sandhih, väyus samdhänam ity adhilokam

1. May glory be with us both, may the splendour of Brahma-

knowledge be with us both

Now next we will expound the sacred teaching of combination under five heads, with regard to the world, with regard to the luminaries, with regard to knowledge, with regard to progeny, with regard to oneself. These are great combinations, they say.

Now with regard to the world the earth is the prior form, the heaven the latter form, the ether is their junction, the air is the connection Thus with regard to the world.

brahma-varcasam the splendour of brahma-knowledge In Lahta-ustara we are told that when the Buddha was in samādhi, a ray called the ornament of the light of gnosis moved above his head, jūāna-lokālankāram nāma rasmih Cp BG XIV II samhitā a conjunction of two words or letters of the text The mind of the pupil is directed to the symbolic significance

Master and disciple pray that the light of sacred knowledge may illumine them both, that they both may attain the glory of wisdom.

2 athādhijyautisam agnih pūrva-rūpam, āditya uttara-rūpam, āpas sandhih, vaidyutas samdhānam ity adhijyautisam

2 Now as to the luminaries; fire is the prior form, sun the latter form Water is their junction, lightning is the connection. Thus with regard to the luminaries

3 athādhwdyam ācaryah pūrva-rūpam, antevāsy uttara-rūpam, vidyā sandhih, pravacanas samdhānam ity adhwdyam.

3 Now as to knowledge the teacher is the prior form; the pupil is the latter form, knowledge is their junction; instruction is the connection. Thus with regard to knowledge

Patañjali in his Mahābhāsya (Kielhorn's ed , p 6) says there are four steps or stages through which knowledge becomes fruitful The first is when we acquire it from the teacher, the second when we study it, the third when we teach it to others and the fourth when we apply it Real knowledge arises only when these four stages are fulfilled: caturbhis ca prakārair vidyopayuktā bhavaty āgama-kālena svādhyāya-kālena pravacana-kālena vyavahāra-kaleneir.

4 alhādhiprajam mātā pūrva-rūpam, pitottara-rūpam prajā

sandhih, prajananas samdhanam. ity adhiprajam

4 Now with regard to progeny: the mother is the prior form, the father is the latter form progeny is their junction, procreation is the connection. Thus with regard to progeny

5 athâdhyàimam: adharā-hanuh pūrva-rūpam, uttarā-hanur uttara-rūpam, vāk sandhih, jiḥvā samdhānam' ity adhyātmam.

- 5 Now with regard to the self the lower jaw is the prior form, the upper jaw is the latter form, speech is the junction, the tongue is the connection. Thus with regard to the self
- 6 timā mahāsamlutāļi, ya evam etā mahāsamlutā vyākhyātā veda samdhīyate prajayā paśubluk, brahma-varcasenānnādyena suvargena loķena
- 6 These are the great combinations. He who knows these great combinations thus expounded becomes endowed with offspring, cattle, with the splendour of Brahma—knowledge, with food to eat, and with the heavenly world.

He will prosper here and hereafter

I May that Indra who is the greatest in the Vedic hymns, who is of all forms, who has sprung into being from immortal hymns, may he cheer me with intelligence, O God, may I be the possessor of immortality

May my body be very vigorous, may my tongue be exceeding sweet; may I hear abundantly with my ears. Thou art the sheath of Brahman, veiled by intelligence Guard for me what I have heard

This is a prayer for acquiring retentiveness and for physical and moral health

The syllable aum is pre-eminent among the Vedic hymns. It is 'of all forms' as the whole universe is its manifestation 'Of Brahman, of the Paramātman or the Highest Self, Thou art the sheath, as of a sword, being the seat of His manifestation' S madhumattamā exceeding sweet madhumatī, atišayena madhura-

O Disposer of all, come from every side Hail

Thou art a refuge, to me do thou shine forth; unto me do thou come of a thousand branches: the different hymns and the gods meant by them are varied expressions of the Divine One.

pravisam: I enter. The knowledge of God is said to be a penetration of God into the inmost substance of the soul When God is conceived as external to the individual, in heaven or in Olympus, when our feeling towards Him is one of love and respect, inspired by His majesty and power, our religion of fear, obedience and even love is external When, on the other hand, we are driven by an inner lack or insufficiency, when we cry for the highest reality or God which or who comes into us, enters us, removes our dross, when we unite ourselves to Him, our religion becomes inward, mystical The mystic longs for inner completion by participation which is the real meaning of imitation This is not always accompanied by ecstatic rapture. It may be a quiet sense of union which may have a few high points of emotion Cp John Ruysbroeck: 'In this storm of love two spirits strive together, the spirit of God and our own spirit God, through the Holy Ghost, inclines Himself towards us, and thereby we are touched in love. And our spirit, by God's working and by the power of love, presses and inclines itself into God, and thereby God is touched These two spirits, that is, our own spirit and the spirit of God, sparkle and shine one into the other, and each shows to the other its face. . . . Each demands of the other all that it is, and each offers to the other all that it is, and invites it to all that it is This makes the lovers melt into each other. . . . Thereby the spirit is burned up in the fire of love, and enters so deeply into the touch of God, that it is overcome in all its cravings, and turned to nought in all its works, and empties itself' Adornment of the Spiritual Marriage, II 54

I Bhūh, Bhuvah, suvah, verily these are the three utterances of them, verily, that one, the fourth, mahah, did the son of Mahācamasa make known That is Brahman, that is the self,

its limbs (are) the other gods

Bhūh is this world, Bhuvah, the atmosphere Suvah is the yonder world mahah is the sun; by the sun indeed do all worlds become great

Vyāhris are so called because they are uttered in various rituals

4 bhūr iti vai prānah, bhuva ity apānah, suvar iti vyānah, maha ity annam, annena vāva sarve prānā mahīyante

4 Bhūh is the inbreath, Bhuvah is the outbreath, Suvah is the diffused breath, mahah is the food By food, indeed, do all the vital breaths become great.

5 tā vā etās catasras caturdhā, catasras catasro vyāhrtayah, tā yo veda, sa veda brahma, sarvesmai devā balm āvahanti.

5 Verily, these four are fourfold The utterances are four and four. He who knows these knows Brahman. To him all the gods offer tribute.

I This space that is within the heart—therein is the Person consisting of mind, immortal and resplendent. That which hangs down between the palates like a nipple, that is the birth-place of Indra; where is the edge of the hair splitting up the skull of the head. In fire, as $Bh\bar{\nu}h$, he rests, in air as Bhuvah.

See MU II. 2 6; Maitrī VI. 30; VII II hranmayah: resplendent, jyotirmayah. S

Brahman who is said to be remote is here envisaged as close to us Though the Supreme is present everywhere, here we are taught to look upon Him as residing in one's own heart S. says that the Supreme is said to be in the heart as a help to meditation, even as an image is used for deity. upalabilityartham upāsanārilam ca hrdayāpāša sthānam ucyate, sālagrama iva usnoh. See C U. VIII. 1-6; III 14 Here we find a transition from the view that the heart is the seat of the soul to the other view that the brain is the seat of the soul While the soul is an unextended entity which cannot have a spatial locus, psychologists discuss the nature of the part or parts of the body with which the soul is closely associated

For Aristotle, the seat of the soul was in the heart *

I Cp Hammond. 'The diseases of the heart are the most rapidly and certainly fatal; (2) psychical affections such as fear, sorrow, and joy cause an immediate disturbance of the heart, (3) the heart is the part which is the first to be formed in the embryo.' Aristotle's Psychology quoted in Ranade. A Constructive Surve, of the Upan sadic Philosophy (1925), p. 131 'If by the seat of the mind is meant not being more than the locality with which it stands in immediate dynamic relations, we are certain to be right in saying that its seat is somewhere in the cortex of the brain' William James. Principles of Psychology, Vol. I, p. 214.

The reference here is to the susumnā nādī of the Yoga system which is said to pass upward from the heart, through the mid region of the throat up to the skull where the roots of the hair lie apart. When it reaches this spot, the nādī passes up, breaking up the two regions of the head. That is the birthplace of Indra. indrayonih indrasya brahmanah yonih mārgah S indrasya paramātmano yonih sthānam R It is the path by which we attain our true nature. See Maitrī VI 21; BU IV 42

2. In the sun as Suvah, in Brahman as Mahah He attains self-rule He attains to the lord of manas, the lord of speech, the lord of sight, the lord of hearing, the lord of intelligence—this and more he becomes, even Brahman whose body is space, whose self is the real, whose delight is life, whose mind is bliss, who abounds in tranquility, who is immortal Thus do thou contemplate, O Prācīnayogya

He who contemplates in this matter becomes the lord of all organs, the soul of all things and filled with peace and perfection. This passage brings out that the end is greater existence, not death, we should not sterilise our roots and dry up the wells of life We have to seize and transmute the gifts we possess

This statement is an expression of self-realization when the self, feeling its identity with the Supreme, says that he is the mover, the impeller of this world-tree of samsāra. Trišanku, who realised Brahman, said this, in the same spirit in which the sage Vāmadeva said Ś

may our sindy make us illumined

There is not a necessary connection between learning and wisdom To be unlettered is not necessarily to be uncultured. Our modern world is maintaining the cleavage between learning and wisdom. Cp. 'Perhaps at no other time have men been so knowing and yet so unaware, so burdened with purposes and yet so purposeless, so disillusioned and so completely the victims of illusion. This strange contradiction pervades our entire modern culture, our science and our philosophy, our literature and our art' W. M. Urban. The Intelligible World (1929), p. 172

I Aum The knower of Brahman reaches the Supreme As to this the following has been said He who knows Brahman as the real, as knowledge and as the infinite, placed in the secret place of the heart and in the highest heaven realises all desires along with Brahman, the intelligent

From this Self, verily, ether arose, from ether air, from air fire, from fire water, from water the earth, from the earth

herbs, from herbs food, from food the person

This, verily, is the person that consists of the essence of food This, indeed, is his head, this the right side, this the left side, this the body, this the lower part, the foundation

sambhūtah arose, emanated, not created

The five different elements are clearly defined and described as having proceeded one after another from the Self

Sometimes from food, semen, and from semen the person Cp S

There are five kośas or sheaths in which the Self is manifested as the ego or the nīvāiman. The first of them consists of food. Other sheaths consist of prāna or life, manas or instinctive and perceptual consciousness, vināna or intelligence and ānanda or bliss. These five principles of matter, life, consciousness, thought and bliss are found in the world of non-ego. Anna or food is the radiant, the virān, that which is perceptible by the senses, the physical According to Sureśvara, life, consciousness and intelligence constitute the subtle self, the sūtrātman and bliss is the causal sheath, the kārana kośa

BU. I 1 2 mentions five sheaths under the names, anna or matter, prāna or life, manas or consciousness, vāc or speech (corresponding to vijāāna or intelligence) and avyākrta, the undifferentiated The last is the kārana or the ultimate cause of all

Ātman becomes the knower or the subject when associated with antahkarana vritimad-antahkaranopahitatvenātmano jādītvam, na

The bodily sheath is conceived in the form of a bird. Sureśvara says 'The sacrificial fire arranged in the form of a hawk or a heron or some other bird, has a head, two wings, a trunk and a tail. So also here every sheath is represented as having five parts'

It is an axiom of mystic religion that there is a correspondence between the microcosm and the macrocosm Man is an image of the created universe. The individual soul as the microcosm has affinities with every rung of the ladder which reaches from earth to heaven.

For food, verily, is the eldest born of beings Therefore is it called the healing herb for all From food are beings born. When born they grow up by food. It is eaten and eats things Therefore is it called food

As to that there is also this verse.

Manas is the faculty of perception. At the stage of manas we accept authority which is external, at the stage of wyñāna internal growth is effected. The Vedas are our guide at the former level, at the intellectual we must develop faith, order, truthfulness and union with the Supreme. At the level of intellectuality or wyñāna, we ask for proofs. When we rise higher, the truths are not inferred but become self-evident and cannot be invalidated by reason. Cp.

In every order of things the lower is strengthened by its union with the higher. When our knowledge is submissive to things, we get the hierarchical levels of being, matter, life, animal mind, human intelligence and divine bliss. They represent different degrees of abstraction and the sciences which deal with them, employ different principles and methods. In animala, the attempt to connaturalise man with the supreme object succeeds. Intelligence is successful in controlling the tangible world. As a rational instrument in the sphere of positive sciences, its validity is justified. This attempt of the intellect to unify is not due to intellect alone. It is derived from its higher, from the breath of the divine. In ananda, earth touches heaven and is sanctified.

S thinks that our real self is beyond the beatific consciousness, though in his commentary on III. 6 he argues that Bhrgu identifies the ultimate reality with the spirit of ananda.

The author of the Brahma Sūtra in I. 1. 12-19 identifies anandamaya with the absolute Brahman and not a relative manifestation. The objection that the suffix mayat is generally used for modification is set aside on the ground that it is also used for abundance.

He (the supreme soul) desired Let me become many, let me be born. He performed austerity Having performed austerity he created all this, whatever is here Having created it, into it, indeed, he entered Having entered it, he became both the actual and the beyond, the defined and the undefined, both the founded and the non-founded, the intelligent and the non-intelligent, the true and the untrue As the real, he became whatever there is here That is what they call the real

He who is here in the person and he who is yonder in the Sun—he is one He who knows this, on departing from this world, reaches to the self which consists of food, reaches the self which consists of life, reaches the self which consists of mind, reaches the self which consists of understanding, reaches the self which consists of bliss.

As to that, there is also this verse.

For fear of Him does the wind blow the writer sees the proof of God in the laws of the universe. The regularity expresses an intelligence and presupposes a guide S See Katha VI 3

Those who attain to the status of gods by their own work are called Karma-devas.

The bliss of delight which knowledge of Brahman occasions baffles all description. It is something completely incomprehensible Brahman thus is blissful being and so is of the highest value. In reaching the richness of being of Brahman we reach our highest fulfilment. In describing the various degrees of happiness, the author of the Upanisad gives us an idea of the classes of human and divine beings recognised in that period, men, fathers, fairies, gods by ment and gods by birth, Prajā-pati and Brahmā or Hiranya-garbha.

To him he said, 'Through austerity, seek to know Brahman Brahman is austerity '

He performed austerity, having performed austerity,

The first suggested explanation of the universe is that every thing can be explained from matter and motion. On second thoughts, we realise that there are phenomena of life and reproduction which require another principle than matter and mechanism. While the material objects of the world are explicable in terms of matter, plants take us to a higher level and demand a different principle From materialism we pass to vitalism. But the principle of life cannot account for conscious objects. So the pupil, dissatisfied with the solution of life, approaches the father, who advises the son to reflect more deeply.

Matter is the context of the principle of life

MIND IS BRAHMAN

I mano brahmetı vyajānāt, manaso hy eva khalv ımānı bhūtānı jāyante, manasā jātāni jīvantı, manah prayanty abhısamvısantı tad vijūāya, punar eva varunam pitaram upasasāra, adhīhi bhagavo brahmeti.

tam hovāca, tapasā brahma vijijūāsasva, tapo brahmeti, sa tapo' tapyata, sa tapas taptvā.

I He knew that mind is Brahman. For truly, beings here are born from mind, when born, they live by mind and into mind, when departing, they enter.

Having known that, he again approached his father Varuna

and said 'Venerable Sir, teach me Brahman.'

To him, he said, 'Through austerity seek to know Brahman. Brahman is austerity'

He performed austerity; having performed austerity.

When we look at animals, with their perceptual and instinctive consciousness we notice the inadequacy of the principle of life. As life outreaches matter, so does mind outreach life. There are forms of life without consciousness but there can be no consciousness without life. Mind in the animals is of a rudimentary character. See Attareya Āranyaka II. 3 2 1-5 Cp Milindapaīha where manastkāra, rudimentary mind is distinguished from pañāa or reason. Animals possess the former and not the latter. Even mind cannot account for all aspects of the universe. In the world of man, we have the play of intelligence. Intelligence frames concepts and ideals, plans means for their realization. So the pupil finds the inadequacy of the principle of mind and again approaches his father, who advises him to reflect further

Section 5

INTELLIGENCE IS BRAHMAN

I vijhänam brahmeti vyajānāt, vijhānādd hy eva khalv imāni bhūtāni jāyante, vijhānena jātāni jīvanti, vijhānam prayanty abhisamvišanti

I He knew that intelligence is Brahman For truly, beings here are born from intelligence, when born, they live by intelligence and into intelligence, when departing, they enter

Having known that, he again approached his father Varuna,

and said, 'Venerable Sir, teach me Brahman'

To him, he said, 'Through austerity, seek to know Brahman Brahman is austerity'

He performed austerity, having performed austerity,

Intelligence again is not the ultimate principle. The categories of matter, life, mind and intelligence take us higher and higher and each is more comprehensive than the preceding. Men with their conflicting desires, divided minds, oppressed by dualities are not the final products of evolution They have to be transcended In the intellectual life there is only a seeking. Until we transcend it, there can be no ultimate finding Intellectual man, who uses mind, life and body is greater than mind, life and body but he is not the end of the cosmic evolution as he has still a secret aspiration. Even as matter contained life as its secret destiny and had to be delivered of it, life contained mind and mind contained intelligence and intelligence contains spirit as its secret destiny and presses to be delivered of it Intelligence does not exhaust the possibilities of consciousness and cannot be its highest expression Man's awareness is to be enlarged into a superconsciousness with illumination, joy and power The crown of evolution is this deified consciousness

BLISS IS BRAHMAN

I ānando brahmetı vyajānāt, ānandādd hy eva khalv ımānı bhūtānı jāyante, ānandena jātānı jīvantı, ānandam prayanty ablusamviśantı,

I He knew that Brahman is bliss For truly, beings here are born from bliss, when born, they live by bliss and into bliss, when departing, they enter.

This wisdom of Bhrgu and Varuna, established in the highest heaven, he who knows this, becomes established He becomes possessor of food and eater of food He becomes great in offspring and cattle and in the splendour of sacred wisdom, great in fame.

The higher includes the lower and goes beyond it Brahman is the deep delight of freedom

The Upanisad suggests an analogy between the macrocosm, nature and the microcosm, man, an equation between intelligibility and being The ascent of reality from matter to God as one of increasing likeness to God is brought out. While man has all these five elements in his being, he may stress one or the other, the material or the vital or the mental or the intellectual or the spintual. He who harmonises all these is the complete man. For Anstotle the human soul is, in a certain sense, everything.

This analysis is accepted by the Buddha who speaks of five kinds of food for the physical, vital, psychological, logical and spiritual elements The enjoyment of nirvana is the food for spirit nibbutim bhuñjamānā Ratana Sutta Cp Augustine 'Step by step was I led upwards, from bodies (anna) to the soul which perceives by means of the bodily senses (prana), and thence to the soul's inward faculty which is the limit of the intelligence of animals (manas); and thence again to the reasoning faculty to whose judgment is referred the knowledge received by the bodily senses (vijñāna). And when this power also within me found itself changeable it lifted itself up to its own intelligence, and withdrew its thoughts from experience, abstracting itself from the contradictory throng of sense-images that it might find what that light was wherein it was bathed when it cried out that beyond all doubt the unchangeable is to be preferred to the changeable, whence also it knew that unchangeable, and thus with the flash of one trembling glance-it armed at That which is' (ananda). Confessions VII, 23

Augustine describes the highest state as one of joy 'The highest spiritual state of the soul in this life consists in the vision and contemplation of truth, wherein are joys, and the full enjoyment of the highest and truest good, and a breath of serenity and eternity'

The grades of existence and of value correspond so that the class which has the lowest degree of reality in the existential sense has the lowest degree of value

Behind all our growth is the perfection of ourselves which animates it, we are constantly becoming until we possess our being. The changing consciousness goes on until it is able to transcend change. The Beyond is the absolute fulfilment of our self-existence. It is animala, the truth behind matter, life, mind, intelligence, that controls

them all by exceeding them

The Upanisad suggests an epic of the universe From out of utter nothingness, asat, arises, the stellar dance of teeming suns and planets whirling through vast etheric fields. In this immensity of space emerges the mystery of life, vegetations, forests, soon living creatures, crawling, jumping animals, the predecessors of human beings Human intelligence with its striving for ideals has in it the secret of sciences and philosophies, cultures and civilisations. We can make the world wonderful and beautiful or tragic and evil

The world owes its being to the interaction of an enjoyer and an object enjoyed, i e subject and object. This distinction is superseded in the Absolute Brahman

Oh Wonderful, Oh Wonderful, Oh Wonderful.

The enlightened one attains unity with the All He expresses wonder that the individual with all limitations has been able to shake them off and become one with the All. To get at the Real, we must get behind the forms of matter, the forms of life, the forms of mind, the forms of intellect. By removing the sheaths, by shaking off the bodies, we realise the Highest This is the meaning of vastra-palarana. 'Across my threshold naked all must pass'

When we realise the truth we can assume any form we choose

This is a song of joy. The manifold diversity of life is attuned to a single harmony A lyrical and rapturous embrace of the universe is the result. The liberated soul filled with delight recognises its oneness with the subject and the object, the foodeater and food and the principle which unites them. He feels in different poises that he is one with Brahman, with Isvara and with Hiranya-garbha

The chant proclaims that the enlightened one has become one with all. The liberated soul passes beyond all limitations and attains to the dignity of God Himself He is one with God in all His fulness and unity It is not a mere fellowship with the chasm between the Creator and the created Here is the exalted experience of one who not merely believes in God, or who is merely convinced of His existence by logical arguments or one who regards Him as an object to be adored and worshipped in thought and feeling but of one for whom God is no more object but personal life. He lives God or rather is lived by Him. He is borne up and impelled by the spirit of God who has become his inward power and life

Hallaj expressed in the most uncompromising terms this conviction of oneness with the Supreme Ana'l haqq, 'I am the real' The Sufi theory is that man becomes one with God when he transcends his phenomenal self (fanā) Ghazālī believes that Hallāj's statement is nothing more than the conviction belonging to the highest stage of unitarianism In order to attain to the immediate vision of the Divine, the human soul must be lifted altogether above the natural order and made to partake of the divine nature 2 Peter I 4 Cp 'Beloved, we are God's children now, it does not yet appear what we shall be, but we know that when he appears we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is' (I John III 2) 'God made all things through me when I had my existence in the unfathomable ground of God Eckhart, E T G Evans, Vol I, p 589

All distinctions of food and foodeater, object and subject are transcended He goes up and down the worlds as he chooses, eating what food he likes, putting on what form he likes

Suresvara says 'All this is divided twofold, food and foodeater The enlightened one says, "I who am the Atman, the Real and the Infinite, am myself this twofold world "'

The Supreme is the subject and the object as well as the link between them

I have overcome the whole world

Cp this with the Buddha's declaration, after attaining abhisam-bodhi

'Subdued have I all, all-knowing am I now Unattached to all things, and abandoning all, Finally freed on the destruction of all craving, Knowing it myself, whom else should I credit? There is no teacher of mine, nor is one like me, There is none to rival me in the world of men and gods; Truly entitled to honour am I, a teacher unexcelled Alone am I a Supreme Buddha, placid and tranquil, To found the kingdom of righteousness, I proceed to Kāśi's capital,

Beating the drum of immortality in the world enveloped

by darkness '

Ariyaparyesana Sulta Majhma Nikāya

Cp Richard of St Victor 'The third grade of love is when the mind of man is rapt into the abyss of the divine light, so that, utterly oblivious of all exterior things, it knows not itself and passes wholly into its God. In this state, while the mind is alienated from itself, while it is rapt unto the secret closet of the divine privacy, while it is on all sides encircled by the conflagration of divine love and is intimately penetrated and set on fire through and through, it strips off self and puts on a certain divine condition, and being configured to the beauty gazed upon, it passes into a new kind of glory' Dom Cuthbert Butler. tyaktena bhuñjīthāh enjoy through tyāga, or renunciation of self-will. Enjoy all things by renouncing the idea of a personal proprietary relationship to them. If we recognise that the world in which we live is not ours, we enjoy it. When we know that the one Real indwells all, we will get rid of the craving for acquisition. Enjoy by giving up the sense of attachment. When the individual is subject to ignorance, he is not conscious of the unity and identity behind the multiplicity and so cannot enter into harmony and oneness with the universe and thus fails to enjoy the world. When, however, he realises his true existence which is centred in the Divine, he becomes free from selfish desire and possesses, enjoys the world, being in a state of non-attachment. Self-denial is at the root of spiritual life 'If any one wish to come after me, let him deny himself' Matthew XVI 24

Sometimes this passage is interpreted as meaning enjoy what is allotted to you by God (tena). Do not ask for more than what

mā grdhah covet not Do not be greedy. When we realise that God inhabits each object, when we rise to that cosmic consciousness, covetousness disappears Cp Wotton's Paraphrase of Horace which is found in Palgrave's Golden Treasury

This man is freed from servile bonds Of hope to rise, or fear to fall, Lord of himself, though not of lands And having nothing, yet hath all kasyastid dhanam. This is taken independently. Whose indeed is wealth? It belongs to the Lord 'What hast thou that thou hast not received' I Cor IV. 7 If we have craving for wealth, we are not true believers.

By contemplating the fact that the giver of all is the Supreme Lord, we cultivate the quality of detachment, tairāgya For, the meaning of this verse is to encourage all those who wish to understand the self, to devote themselves to final release and give up all worldly desires. The exterior sacrifice is representative of the interior whereby the human soul offers itself to God

Gandhi's comment on this verse is interesting 'The manife's describes God as the Creator, the Ruler and the Lord The seer to whom this martra or verse was revealed was not satisfied with the very frequent statement that God was to be found everywhere But he went further and said "Since God pervades everything, nothing belongs to you, not even your own body. God is the undisputed unchallengeable Master of everything you possess. If it is universal brotherhood-not only brotherhood of all human being-, but of all living things—I find it in this mantra. If it is unshal able faith in the Lord and Master—and all the adjectives you can think of—I find it in this mantra. If it is the idea of complete surrender to God and of the faith that he will supply all that I need, then again I say I find it in this manira Since he pervades every fibre of m) being and of all of you, I derive from it the doctrine of equality of all creatures on earth and it should satisfy the cravings of all philosophical communists. This mantra tells me that I cannot held as mine anything that belongs to God and that, if my life and that of all who believe in this mar tra has to be a life of perfect dedication. it follows that it will have to be a life of continual service of fellow creatures ' Address at Kottayam, Harijan, 1937

Indifference to the pains of the world, to the suffering of living relatives is due either to callourness or thoughtle sing. But when we reall a that we are all the concern of the same Creator, the objects of this care, we fiel within ourselves an unburdening a releve, sense that everyone has a right to his own place in the same prover. WORK AND WISDOM

2 Always performing works here one should wish to live a hundred years If you live thus as a man, there is no way other than this by which karman (or deed) does not adhere to you

hurvann eva: performing works and without desiring their fruits

The first verse tells us that we win our way to inward freedom, by renunciation, by the withdrawal from the fortunes and misfortunes that shape the outward side of our existence We are called upon to withdraw from the world's work not in body but in mind, in intention, in spirit 'Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven' pijuset should wish to live jivitum ichet.

na karma lipyate nare by which karma does not adhere to you When we act by merging the individual in the cosmic purpose and by dedicating all action to God, our action does not bind, since we are no more entangled in selfish desire

S argues that this and the following verses refer to those who are not competent to know the self and who are called upon to perform works enjoined in the Vedas. He makes out that the way of knowledge is for samnyāsins and the way of action for others

The purport of this verse, is, however, that salvation is attained by the purification of the heart resulting from the performance of works done with the notion that these are all for the sake of the Lord and dedicated to Him Works done in this spirit do not bind the soul

According to Samkarananda, this verse is addressed to those who desire salvation, but cannot renounce the world

The importance of work is stressed in this verse We must do works and not refrain from them Embodied man cannot refrain from action, he cannot escape the life imposed on him by his embodiment. The way of true freedom is not abstention from action but conversion of spirit.

Wisdom is beautiful but barren without works St James. 'Faith, apart from works, is dead 'II. 26.

The author points out that action is not incompatible with wisdom. There is a general tendency to regard contemplation as superior to action. This judgment is not peculiar to India. In the New Testament, Martha chose the good part and Mary the better. What Martha chose, ministering to the hungry, the thirsty and the homeless will pass away, but Mary chose to contemplate, see the vision of God and it shall not be taken away from her. The Upanisad says that it is not necessary to withdraw from active life to give oneself up to the contemplative. Besides, no one can come to contemplation without having exercised the works of the active life.

St Gregory says, 'We ascend to the heights of contemplation by the steps of the active life' Morals on Job, XXXI 102

The Supreme is one essence but has two natures, an eternal immutability and an unceasing change. It is stillness and movement Immovable in Itself, all things are moved from It. The unity and manifoldness are both aspects of the life divine. Unity is the truth and multiplicity is its manifestation. The former is the truth, vidyā, the latter ignorance, avidyā. The latter is not false except when it is viewed in itself, cut off from the eternal unity. Unity constitutes the base of multiplicity and upholds it but multiplicity does not constitute and uphold the unity.

5 It moves and It moves not; It is far and It is near; It is within all this and It is also outside all this

These apparently contradictory statements are not suggestive of the mental unbalance of the writer. He is struggling to describe what he experiences through the limitations of human thought and language. The Supreme is beyond the categories of thought Thought is symbolic and so cannot conceive of the Absolute except through negations, yet the Absolute is not a void. It is all that is in time and yet is beyond time.

It is far because it is not capable of attainment by the ignorant and it is very near to the knowing for it is their very self.

Vedānta Desika quotes two verses to show the distance and the intimacy of the Supreme to the undevout and the devout respectively

parānmukhānām gownde, vişayāsaktacetasām tesām tat paramam brahma dūrād dūratare silniam. tan-mayatvena govinde ye narānyasta-cetasah visaya-tyāginas tesām vijūcyam ca tad antike

These verses indicate the two sides of the Divine, the one and the many, the unmoving and the moving They do not deny the reality of either They see the one in the many. The one is the eternal truth of things; the many its manifestatation. The latter is not a figment of the mind. It becomes so when it is divorced from the sense of its eternal background

All things and beings are the manifestation of the One Supreme, which is described through paradoxes. It is swifter than the mind, the senses cannot grasp It, It eludes their hold Standing, It outstrips all Rooted in It, all the cosmic forces energise the whole universe. It moves and yet is motionless. It is near, yet distant It is inside of all and outside of all

fested in the multiple forms āima-vyatīrīktānī na pasyatī S

This verse speaks of the transformation of the soul, its absorption in God in whom is the whole universe. It also points out how unity is the basis of multiplicity and upholds the multiplicity. Therefore the essence of the Supreme is its simple Being. Multiplicity is its becoming Brahman is the one self of all and the many are the becomings of the one Being.

moha delusion or the veiling of the self, avarana soka sorrow due to viksepa or distraction in the manifestations

When the unity is realised by the individual he becomes liberated from sorrow, which is the product of dualities. When the self of the perceiver becomes all things, there can be no source of disturbance or care. The vision of all existences in the Self and of the Self in all existences is the foundation of freedom and joy. The Isa, the Lord is immanent in all that moves in this world. There is no opposition between the one and the many

The Upanisad opens with the conception of God immanent in the world, asks us to see the creation in God and does not overlook the fact of a fundamental oneness, ekatvam which alone is Being Eckhart. 'Does the soul know God in the creatures, that is merely evening light? Does she know creatures in God, that is morning light? But does the soul know God as He who alone is Being, that is the light of midday?' Rudolf Otto: Mysticism East and West (1932), p 52 n.

IGNORANCE AND KNOWLEDGE

9 andham tamah pravišanti yoʻvidyām upāsate tato bhūya iva te tamo ya u vidyāyām ratāh

 Into blinding darkness enter those who worship ignorance and those who delight in knowledge enter into still greater darkness, as it were

See B.U IV 4-10

S interprets avidyā to mean ceremonial piety and vidyā as knowledge of the deities. The former leads to the world of the manes and the latter to the world of gods. Cp vidyāyā deva-lokah kārmanā pitr-lokah B.U. II 5. 16. S feels that vidyā cannot refer to the knowledge of Brahman for it cannot lead to greater darkness. If we are lost in the world of birth, becoming, we overlook our pure being. If we concentrate on the latter, we will also be onesided. We must look upon the Absolute as the one and the many, as both the stable and the moving. It is both immanent and transcendent.

The verse refers also to the dichotomy of work and wisdom and suggests that while those who are lost in works without the wisdom of the spirit enter into darkness, those who are exclusively devoted to the pursuit of wisdom, to the neglect of works, enter into still greater darkness Selfish seekers of spiritual wisdom miss their aim.

The Upanisad repudiates both schools of thought—those who hold that salvation is attained only by means of works and those who hold that it is to be attained by knowledge alone. It supports Kumārila who advocates a combination of knowledge and works Kumārila says that even as a bird cannot fly in the heaven by one wing only but only by both the wings, even so man can gain salvation only by the combined pursuit of knowledge and works. Contemplative and active lives should go together 'Faith without works is dead'

It is also said that andyā applies to the selfish people who desire worldly possessions and ndyā to those who say 'I am Brahman'

without the actual realisation of this truth S

The state of those who are lost in ignorance and cling to external props is pitiable indeed, but the state of those who are intellectually learned but spiritually poor is worse. The darkness of intellectual conceit is worse than that of ignorance. The writer is here distinguishing between knowledge by description and knowledge by acquaintance or experience.

 anyad evāhur vidyayā anyad āhur avidyayā iti śuśruma dhīrānām ye nas tad vicacaksire

no Distinct, indeed, they say, is the result of knowledge and distinct, they say, is the result of ignorance. Thus have we heard from those wise who have explained to us these.

We cannot grasp the nature of ultimate Reality by either discursive knowledge or lack of it

If knowledge and ignorance are both real, it is because consciousness of oneness and consciousness of multiplicity are different sides of the supreme self-awareness. The one Brahman is the basis of numberless manifestations.

vidyām cāvidyām ca yas tad vedobhayam saha avidyayā mṛtyum tīrtvā vidyayāmrtam aśnute

II Knowledge and ignorance, he who knows the two together crosses death through ignorance and attains life eternal through knowledge

See Maitri VII 9

Vidyā is equated with knowledge of deities and avidyā with karma, vidyām cāvidyām ca devatājāānam karma cety arthah S S makes out that by the performance of rites we overcome death and by the meditation on deities we attain immortality, which is becoming one with the deity meditated upon amrtam devātmabhāvam

Vedanta Desika quotes a verse where it is said that by austerity

we destroy sins and by wisdom we attain life eternal tapo mdyā ca mprasya mhsreyasa karan ubhan

tapasā kalmasam hantı vidyayāmītam asnute

Kūranārāyana says, 'avidyayā vidyānga-rūpatayā coditena harmanā mrtyum vidyotpatti-pratibandhaka-bhütam punya-papa-rūpam praktanam karma tīrtvā niravašesam utlanghya vidyayā paramātmopāsanarūpayā amriam ašnute moksam prāpnoti.

ubhayam saha: the two together. Works though they do not by themselves lead to salvation, are helpful in preparing our hearts for it If we imagine that we can attain the highest wisdom without such previous preparation, we are mistaken. If we give ourselves to what is not knowledge we are mistaken, if we delight altogether in knowledge despising work we are also mistaken."

Arraya is regarded as an essential prerequisite for spiritual life. Man cannot rise to spiritual enlightenment if he has not first through avidyā become conscious of himself as a separate ego. In spiritual life we transcend this sense of separateness. To reach the higher self we must do battle with the lower. The endowment of intellectuality or avidya is justified on the ground that it creates the conditions for its own transformation. If we remain at the intellectual level, look upon it not only as a means but as the end in itself, if we deny the reality of life eternal to which we have to rise, then we suffer from intellectual pride and spiritual blindness. The knowledge of discursive reason is essential, but it has to be transcended into the life of spirit Avidyā must be transcended in Vidyā. Avidyā has its place. Without it there is no individual, no bondage, no liberation.

THE MANIFEST AND THE UNMANIFEST

12 andham tamah pravišanti ye'sambhūtim upāsate iato bhūya iva te tamo ya u sambhūtyām ratāh.

12 Into blinding darkness enter those who worship the unmanufest and into still greater darkness, as it were, those who delight in the manifest.

asambhüli: the unmanifest, the undifferentiated prabrii. We get our rewards according to our beliefs

Augustine: Two virtues are set before the soul of man, the one active, the other contemplative, the one whereby we journey, the other whereby we reach our journey's end; the one whereby we toil that our heart may be cleansed for the vision of God; the other whereby we repose and see God; the one lies in the precepts for carrying on this temporal life, the other in the doctrine of that life which is eternal. Hence it is that the one tools, and the other reposes; for the former is in the purgation o'sins, the latter in the light (or illumination) of the purgation effected.' Quoted in Dom Cuthbert Butler's Western Myst.cism (1922).

' it dy's meaning the normal run of life based upon the procreative institution of marriage is treated as a means of preventing physical discontinuity, and ridy a meaning the leading of chaste life, the practice of austernues and the pursuit of higher knowledge as means of realising the immortality of soul 'B M. Barna. Ceylon Lectures (1945), p 201 n. asambhūti non-becoming Those who do not believe in re-birth may be referred to.

sambhūti the manifest, the lord of the phenomenal world, kārya-brahma Hıranya-garbha S It is sometimes said that asambhūti means that the world has no creator, that it is produced, preserved and destroyed by its own nature Those who hold such a view are the

naturalists See B G XVI 8, 9, 20

The Supreme is neither of these in the sense that he is not also the other. If we identify the Supreme with the manifest, it would be pantheism in the sense that the whole of the Divine nature finds expression in the manifested world, leaving nothing over, and it is a wrong view Again, if the world of becoming were not there, it would all disappear in what would seem a world of undifferenced abstraction. Within the depths of the spirit there is unfolded before us the drama of God's dealings with man and man's with God. Unity and multiplicity are both aspects of the Supreme and therefore the nature of the Supreme is said to be inconceivable.

To be absorbed in the world around without turning to the principle at the base of it is one extreme, to be absorbed in the contemplation of the transcendent infinite indifferent to the events of the manufested world because they are likely to disturb inward serenity and self-complacency is another extreme. This verse asks us to lead a life in the manifested world with a spirit of nonattachment, with the mind centred in the unmanifest We must live in this world without being choked by it. We must centre our thoughts in the eternal remembering that the eternal is the soul of the temporal

- 18 O Agni, lead us, along the auspicious path to prosperity, O God, who knowest all our deeds Take away from us deceitful sins We shall offer many prayers unto thee

Verses 15-18 are uttered at the time of death. Even to-day they are used by the Hindus in their funeral rites. We are required to remember our past deeds as their results accompany the departing soul and determine the nature of the future life

The Upanisad emphasises the unity of God and the world and the union of the two lives, the contemplative and the active We cannot have the contemplative life without the active We must cleanse our souls to ascend the heights of contemplation. The seers of the Upanisads, the Buddha, Jesus have set an example not to neglect the work of the world through love of contemplation. They are noted for their stability and poise. Their calm was a vigilant one. They act without selfishness and help without patronising.

KENA UPANIŞAD

The Upanisad derives its name from the first word Kena, by whom, and belongs to the Sāma Veda. It is also known as the Talavakāra, the name of the Brāhmana of the Sāma Veda to which the Upanisad belongs. It has four sections, the first two in verse and the other two in prose The metrical portion deals with the Supreme Unqualified Brahman, the absolute principle underlying the world of phenomena and the prose part of the Upanisad deals with the Supreme as God, Īśvara The knowledge of the Absolute, parā vidyā, which secures immediate liberation (sadyo-mukti) is possible only for those who are able to withdraw their thoughts from worldly objects and concentrate on the ultimate fact of the universe. The knowledge of Īśvara, aparā vidyā, puts one on the pathway that leads to deliverance eventually (krama-mukti) The worshipping soul gradually acquires the higher wisdom which results in the consciousness of the identity with the Supreme

I. By whom willed and directed does the mind light on its objects? By whom commanded does life the first, move? At whose will do (people) utter this speech? And what god is it that prompts the eye and the ear?

The questions put in this verse by the pupil imply that the passing things of experience are not all and they depend on a permanent reality. The necessity of a ground for the existence of finite beings is assumed here. The questions assume that there is a relation between reality and these phenomena, that the real governs the phenomenal.

This verse contains the answers to the questions raised in the first verse ear of the ear it means that the self directs the ear.

There is the Eternal Reality behind the mind, life and the senses, the mind of the mind, the life of the life. Brahman is not an object subject to mind, speech and the senses He who knows it will gain life eternal and not the partial satisfactions of the earthly life. Here in the world of space and time we are always seeking the Beyond which is above space and time. There, we possess the consciousness that is beyond space and time.

3 There the eye goes not, speech goes not, nor the mind; we know not, we understand not how one can teach this

Katha VI. 12, M.U. III (1)-8, T.U II 4.

The Supreme is not dependent on mind, life and senses for its

'Knowledge of a thing arises through the senses or the mind and since Brahman is not reached by either of these, we do not know of what nature it is. We are therefore unable to understand how anyone can explain that Brahman to a disciple. Whatever is perceivable by the senses, that it is possible to indicate to others, by genus, quality, function or relationship, jāti-guna-kriyā-višesanaih Brahman does not possess any of these differentiating characters. Hence the difficulty in explaining its nature to disciples.

4 anyad eva iad viditād aiho aviditād adhi iti susruma pūrvesām ye nas tad vyācacaksire,

4 Other, indeed, is it than the known, and also it is above the unknown. Thus have we heard from the ancients who have explained it to us

It is above the known and the unknown, but it is not unknowable. Verse 6 says, tad eva brahma tvam viddhi, 'that, verily, is Brahman, know thou,' implies that the Brahman is not beyond our apprehension. The writer suggests that this teaching has been transmitted by tradition. We cannot know it by logic brahma castanyam ācāryopadeša paramparayavādhigantavyam, na tarkatah. Š

5 That which is not expressed through speech but that by which speech is expressed, that, verily, know thou, is Brahman, not what (people) here adore

who is the object of worship

Isvara as the indwelling spirit and not as an object who is external to us is what the Real is God must cease to be a conceived and apprehended God but become the inward power by which we live But this inward experience of God is felt only by the advanced spirits The simple, unreflective child-mind seeks God who is above and not within The prayer of Solomon, 'Hear thou in Heaven thy

not what people here adore -The pure Godhead which is beyond all conceptual determinations and differentiations, when viewed conceptually and concretely becomes, as Eckhart says, an 'idol,' 'Had I a God whom I could understand, I would no longer hold him for God.'2

Spirit cannot be objectified The revelation of Spirit is in the depths of one's life and not in the objective world. However high our conception may be, so long as it is an objective attitude, it is a form of idolatry. When we are in bondage to the objective world, we look upon God as a great external force, a supernatural power who demands to be appeased God is life and can be revealed only in spiritual life The relation to the Supreme is an inward one revealing itself in the depths of spiritual life Spirit is freedom, life, the opposite of necessity, passivity, death. This and the following verses affirm that Spirit must free itself from the yoke of necessity. The more completely we live in the divine the less do we reflect on him.

Cp Eckhart When the soul beholds God purely, it takes all its being and its life and whatever it is from the depth of God, yet it knows no knowing, no loving, or anything else whatsoever. It rests utterly and completely within the being of God, and knows nothing but only to be with God So soon as it becomes conscious that it sees and loves and knows God, that is in itself a departure.'3 dabhram, another reading is daharam Both mean alpam or small. Whatever is human or divine is limited by adjuncts and is thus not different from smallness or finitude. The Brahman which is free from adjuncts is not an object of knowledge. The disciple is asked to ponder over this truth and he, through reasoning and intuitive experience, comes to a decision and approaches the teacher and says, 'I think that Brahman is now understood by me'

2. I do not think that I know it well; nor do I think that I do not know it He who among us knows it, knows it and he, too, does not know that he does not know.

'It is neither that I know him not, nor is it that I know him' is also an admissible rendering

There is the knowledge that we obtain through philosophical processes but there is also another kind of knowledge. The founder and model of Egyptian monachism, St. Antony, according to Cassian (Coll IX. 31), delivered this judgment about prayer, 'That prayer is not perfect in which the monk understands himself or his own prayer.' (See Encyclopaedic of Religions and Ethics, article on Roman Catholic.)

Op Dionysius: 'There is that most divine knowledge of God which takes place through ignorance, in the union which is above intelligence, when the intellect quitting all things that are, and then leaving itself also, is united to the superlucent rays, being illuminated thence and therein by the unsearchable depth of wisdom.' Divine Names VII. 3 Louis of Blois observes: 'The soul, having entered the vast solitude of the Godhead, happily loses itself; and enlightened by the brightness of most lucid darkness, becomes through knowledge as if without knowledge, and dwells in a sort of wise ignorance.' Spritual Mirror, Ch. XI.

3. To whomsoever it is not known, to him it is known: to whomsoever it is known, he does not know. It is not understood by those who understand it; it is understood by those who do not understand it.

This verse brings out how we struggle with the difficulties of human expression, how we confess to ourselves the insufficiency of mental utterance.

The Supreme is not an object of ordinary knowledge but of intuitive realisation. If we think that we know Brahman and we can describe Him as an object perceived in nature or as the cause inferred from nature, we do not, in reality, know Him. Those who feel that they do not and cannot know Him in this manner do have a knowledge of Him. Brahman cannot be comprehended as an object of knowledge. He can be realised as the subject in all knowledge. Seave that the true knowledge is intuitive experience, samage-carianam. The process of abstraction employed by philosophers gives us an abstract idea, but the intuitive apprehension by which the scul is carried away above all intelligence into a direct union with God is different from intellectual abstraction and negation.

Varacchedika Sutra, f. 38, XXVI: Those who see me in any form or toink of me in words, their way of thinking is false, they do not see me at all. The Beneficent Ones are to be seen in the Law, theirs is a Lawbody, the Buddha is rightly to be understood as being of the nature of the Law, he cannot be understood by any means.

Pictures: 'In other words, they have seen God and they do not remember' Ah, no: it is that they see God still and always and that as long as they see, they cannot tell themselves they have had the vision, such reminiscence is for souls that have lost it 'Enneads, IV 4 6 Nicolas of Cusa, De Vis. Dei, Ch XVI 'What satisfies the intellect is not what it understands'

Cp Dionysius, the Areopagite 'God is invisible from excess of light. He who perceives God is himself in darkness God's all-pervading darkness is hidden from every light and veils all recognition. And if anyone who sees God recognises and understands what he sees, then he himself hath not seen Him'

THE VALUE OF THE KNOWLEDGE OF BRAHMAN

- 4 When it is known through every state of cognition, it is rightly known, for (by such knowledge) one attains life eternal Through one's own self one gains power and through wisdom one gains immortality

pratibodha-vidiam through every state of cognition. bodham bodham pratis inditiam S The self is the witness of all states sarva-pratyaya-darśi-cicchakti-svarūpa-mātrah To know it as such is right knowledge. It is the absolute a priori, the certain foundation of all knowledge. If pratibodha-viditam is interpreted as leading to an inferential apprehension of the self, then self becomes a substance possessing the faculty of knowing and not knowledge itself bodha-kriya-śaktimān ātmā dravyam, na bodha-svarūpa eva S Knowledge appears and disappears. When knowledge appears, the self is inferred, when knowledge disappears, the self becomes a mere unintelligent substance tathā nastabodho dravyamātram mrvišeṣaḥ S. The self is subject to changes

If pratibodha-viditam means knowledge of self by self, the object known is the conditioned Brahman and not the unconditioned Reality 'Pure spirituality is bound only to interior recollection and mental converse with God So although (one) may make use of (these interventions) this will be only for a time, his spirit will at once come to rest in God and he will forget all things of sense 'i

'Of all forms and manners of knowledge the soul must strip and void itself so that there may be left in it no kind of impression of knowledge, nor trace of aught soever, but rather the soul must remain barren and bare, as if these forms had never passed through it, and in total oblivion and suspension '2

The wise man sees the same Brahman in every creature here. If here on earth, in this physical body, we arrive at our true existence, and are no longer bound down to the process, to the becoming, we are saved. If we do not find the truth, our loss is great, for we, then, are lost in the life of mind and body and do not rise above it to our supramental existence.

The incomprehensible Supreme is higher than all gods, and is the source of victory for the gods and defeat, for the demons Brahman as the Supreme Isvara vanquishes the enemies of the world and restores stability to it.

We see in this allegory the supplanting of the Vedic gods by the one Supreme Brahman.

Tapas is training in spiritual life Negatively, it is cleansing our soul of all that is sinful and imperfect, positively, it is building up of all that is good and holy. In the history of religion, the practice of bodily austerities has been looked upon as the chief means for attaining spiritual ends. The privations of food and drink, of sleep and clothing, of exposure to heat and cold are labours undertaken to wear down the body. In the story of asceticism, Hindu or Christian, excesses of bodily suffering play a large part such as the use of chainlets, spikes and pricks and scourgings.

KATHA UPANISAD

Katha Upanisad, also called Kāthakopanisad which belongs to the Taittiriva school of the Yajur Veda, uses the setting of a story found in ancient Sanskrit literature 1 A poor and pious Brāhmana, Vājasravasa, performs a sacrifice and gives as presents to the priests a few old and feeble cows His son, Naciketas, feeling disturbed by the unreality of his father's observance of the sacrifice, proposes that he himself may be offered as offering (daksinā) to a priest. When he persisted in his request. his father in rage said, 'Unto Yama, I give thee' Naciketas goes to the abode of Yama and finding him absent, waits there for three days and nights unfed Yama, on his return, offers three gifts in recompense for the delay and discomfort caused to Naciketas For the first, Naciketas asked, 'Let me return alive to my father.' For the second, 'Tell me how my good works (ista-purta) may not be exhausted'; and for the third, 'Tell me the way to conquer re-death (punar mriyu)'

In the Upanisad, the third request is one for enlightenment

on the 'great transition' which is called death

The Upanisad consists of two chapters, each of which has three Vallis or sections

There are some passages common to the $G\bar{\imath}t\bar{a}$ and the Katha U

Taittiriya Brāhmana III. I 8, see also MB Anusāsana Parva 106. The first mention of the story is in the RV (X 135) where we read how the boy Naciketas was sent by his father to Yama (Death), but was allowed to get back on account of his great faith, \dot{s} raddhā

Section 1

NACIKETAS AND HIS FATHER

 uśan ha vai vājaśravasah sarva-vedasam dadau: tasya ha naciketā nāma putra āsa

I. Desirous (of the fruit of the Visvajit sacrifice) Vājašravasa, they say, gave away all that he possessed He had a son by name Naciketas usan desirous Evidently, at the time of the Upanisad, the sacrificial religion of the Brālmanas was popular Desire for earthly and heavenly gain was the prominent motive. The Upanisad leads us to a higher goal. 'He who is free from desire beholds him' II 20.

usan, is sometimes said to be the offspring of Vājaśravasa z gave away all that he possessed. He is represented as making a voluntary surrender of all that he possessed, samnyāsa, in order to secure his spiritual interests

Nacikelas one who does not know and therefore seeks to know.

The author attempts to distinguish between Vājaśravasa, the protagonist of an external ceremonialism, and Naciketas, the seeker of spiritual wisdom Vājaśravasa represents orthodox religion and is devoted to its outer forms. He performs the sacrifice and makes gifts which are unworthy. The formalism and the hypocrisy of the father hurt the son

- 2. lam ha kumāram santam daksınāsu nīyamānāsu śraddhāviveša, so'manyata
- ² As the gifts were being taken to the priests, faith entered him, although but a (mere) boy, he thought

Prompted by the desire to do real good to his father, the boy felt worned about the nature of the presents fraddha faith. It is not blind belief but the faith which asks whether the outer performance without the living spirit is enough

- 3 pitodakā jagdha-trnā dugdha-dohā nirindriyāh anandā nāma te lokās tān sa gacchata tā dadat
- 3 Their water drunk, their grass eaten, their milk milked, their strength spent, joyless, verily, are those worlds, to which he, who presents such (cows) goes nirındriyāh: without the strength to breed, a-prajanana-samarthāh. anandāh anānandāh, asukhāh, joyless. Īśa 3, BU IV. 4 II. The cows which are presented are no longer able to drink, eat, give milk or calve.

Naciketas reveals here, with the enthusiasm of youth, the utter inadequacy of a formal soulless ritualism. The idea of complete surrender (sarva-vedasam dadau) in the first verse should be properly interpreted as utter dedication or complete self-giving

True prayer and sacrifice are intended to bring the mind and will of the human being into harmony with the great universal purpose of God

4 sa hovāca pitaram, tāta kasmai mām dāsyasīti; dvitīyam trtīyam; tam hovāca: mriyave tvā dadāmīti

4 He said to his father, 'O Sire, to whom wit thou give me?' For a second and a third time (he repeated) (when the father) said to him, 'Unto Death shall I give thee'

Dr Rawson suggests that a mere boy should be so impertment as to interfere with his doings, the father in anger said, 'Go to hell.'

The boy earnestly wishes to make himself an offering and thus purify his father's sacrifice. He does not discard the old tradition but attempts to quicken it. There can be no quickening of the spirit until the body die.

Cp St Paul 'Thou fool, that which thou sowest is not quickened except it die 'mṛtyave: unto Death Mrtyu or Yama is the lord of death When Vājašravasa gives away all his goods, Naciketas feels that this involves the giving away of the son also and so wishes to know about himself When the father replies that he will give him to Yama, it may mean that, as a true samnyāsin, personal relations and claims have henceforward no meaning for him Naciketas takes his father's words literally. He in the course of his teaching points out that the psychophysical vehicles animated by the spirit are determined by the law of karma and subject to death. He who knows himself as the spirit, and not as the psychophysical vehicle is free and immortal

5 Naciketas, 'Of many (sons or disciples) I go as the first, of many, I go as the middling What duty towards Yama that (my father has to accomplish) today, does he accomplish through me?'

ems. gacchāms, I go madhyamah. middling, mriānām madhye Among many who are dead I am in the middle I am not the last Many others will still follow me and there is no need for lamentation

Naciketas in sadness reflects as to what help he has to render to Yama

Anticipating the teacher's or the parents' wishes and carrying them out is the way of the best pupils or sons, promptly attending to what is ordered is the next best, neglecting the orders is the worst form of conduct of pupils or sons. Naciketas belonged to the first type, at worst to the second, he was never negligent of his duty to his father.

6. 'Consider how it was with the forefathers, behold how it is with the later (men), a mortal ripens like corn, and like corn is born again.'

S makes out that Naciketas, startled by his father's words, reflected and told his father who was now in a repentant mood that he was much better than many sons, and there was nothing to be gained by going back on one's word Naciketas reminds his father that neither his ancestors nor his contemporaries who are decent ever broke their word. After all, human life is at best transitory. Like a blade of grass man dies and is born again Death is not all, rebirth is a law of nature. The life of vegetation on which all other life depends passes through the seasonal round of birth, growth, maturity, decay, death and rebirth. The unity of all life suggests the application of this course to human beings also. This perpetual rebirth is not an escape from the wheel of becoming into a deathless eternity. Even if we do not gain life eternal, survival is inescapable. So the son persuades his father to keep his word and send him to Yama's abode.

Possibly Naciketas wished to know what happened to his ancestors and what will happen to his contemporaries after death

NACIKETAS IN THE HOUSE OF DEATH

7 As a very fire a Brāhmaṇa guest enters into houses and (the people) do him this peace-offering; bring water, O Son of the Sun!

In the Brāhmana account, Naciketas goes to Yama's house, at the command of a divine voice. He waits for three nights before

Death returns and shows him hospitality due to a guest

S says 'Thus addressed, the father sent his son to Yama, in order to keep his word And going to Yama's abode, he waited for three nights as Yama had gone out. When he returned his attendants, or perhaps his wife said to him as follows informing him (of what had taken place in his absence) '

As fire is appeased by water, so is a guest to be entertained with hospitality The word for fire used here is Vaiśvānara, the universal fire, which affirms the unity of all life. The guest comes as

In the previous verse tvat-praststam is taken to mean 'set free by you', so in this verse mat-praststah should mean 'set free by me'. It is in the nominative case in apposition to Auddalāki Āruni, the subject which is incorrect. So S gives a different meaning, which is, however, not the obvious meaning of the phrase. If we alter it to mat-praststam, the rendering will be, 'As of old will he (thy father) Auddalaki Āruni, recognising thee, set free by me.'

Deussen retains the original reading but gives a different rendering. Auddālaki Āruni will be just as before. Happy will he be, released by me (from his words).

Charpentier identifies Naciketas with Auddalaki Āruni He renders the verse thus

'As of old he will be full of joy, since the son of Uddālaka Ārum

The central purpose of the passage is to indicate that the ultimate power of the universe is also the deepest part of our being. See also I 2. 12 It is one of the assumptions of the Upanisad writers that deep below the plane of our empirical life of imagination, will and feeling is the ultimate being of man, his true centre which remains unmoved and unchanged, even when on the surface we have the fleeting play of thoughts and emotions, hopes and desires. When we withdraw from the play of outward faculties, pass the divisions of discursive thought, we retreat into the soul, the witness spirit within lokād: the beginning of the world In the RV, Agm is identified with Prajā-pat, the Creator, and so may be regarded as the source or origin of the world. In II 2. 9 we are told that the one Fire, having entered the universe, assumed all forms BU. I 2 7 makes out that 'this fire is the arka, the worlds are its embodiment'

S, however, interprets lokadi as first of the worlds, as the first embodied existence prathama-śarīritvād Cp. CU where it is said that all other things evolved from fire (tejas) which was itself the Yājňavalkya says, the liberated soul, having passed beyond (preiya) has no more separate consciousness (samyñā). He is dissolved in the Absolute consciousness as a lump of salt is dissolved in water. He justifies the absence of separate consciousness to his bewildered wife Maitreyi. Where everything has become the one self, when and by what should we see, hear or think?' He who is liberated from the limitations of name and form, who has become one with the all, cannot be said to exist in the ordinary sense. He is not limited to a particular consciousness, nor can he be said to be non-existent, for he has attained to real being (II 4 12-14). The question repeatedly put to the Buddha is, "Does the Tathāgata survive after death or does he not survive?" The Buddha refused to answer this question, holding that to say that he continues to exist would give rise to one kind of misunderstanding while to deny it would lead to others

The story of the temptation by Mrtyu occurs for the first time in the Upanisad and not in the account in the Taittirīya Brāhmana. The temptation of Naciketas has points of similarity with that related of Gautama the Buddha

Cp also the temptation of Jesus

Naciketas is unmoved by the promises of transient pleasures and obtains from the god of death the secret of the knowledge of Brahman which carries with it the blessing of life eternal Gautama the Buddha also rejects the offers of Māra in order to obtain true wisdom. There is this difference, however, that while Yama, when once his reluctance is overcome, himself reveals the liberating truth to Naciketas, Māra is the evil one, the tempter.

The Buddhist view that everything that exists is fleeting and evanescent is suggested in this verse

Man is not to be contented with wealth The material guarantees of human security are fragile It is an earth-bound philosophy that makes man the end and aim of life, that recognises no value of a transcendental character What is the value of wealth or life, as they are impermanent? So long as death is in power we cannot enjoy wealth or life for the fear of death destroys the zest for hving So Naciketas asks for self-knowledge, āima-vijāānam, which is beyond the power of death

Naciketas says that 'We shall live, so long as Yama endures' In other words, he is certain of our continuance in this cosmic

For Rāmānuja, the understanding, avagatīt, which a person gets about the self when taught by one who has realised Brahman is impossible of attainment when taught by a person of inferior capacity Madhva means by it that it is inferior teaching when taught by a learned but unintelligent person for it has been variously understood and so is not easy of understanding. TO I know that wealth is impermanent. Not through the transient things is that abiding (one) reached; yet by me is laid the Naciketa fire and by impermanent means have I reached the everlasting.

By burning in the sacrifice all transient things is the eternal attained

Some translators (e.g. Max Muller and Hume) attribute this verse to Naciketas But surely Naciketas has not yet performed the sacrifice called by his name S attributes these words to Yama, who makes out that through the sacrificial fire, he has obtained the enduring sovereignty of heaven. But this sovereignty is only relatively permanent. Through the ephemeral means of Karma including sacrifices, nothing truly permanent can be achieved. The performer of the Nāciketa fire will endure as long as the cosmos lasts but such endurance is not eternity, since the cosmos with all that it contains will be absorbed into the eternal at the end of the cosmic day.

By 'impermanent means have I reached the everlasting' What Yama has attained is thus stated by Gopāla-yatīndra adhikārāpanno, dharmādharmaphalayoh, pradānena jantūnām myanirivam āpannah If by the symbolic worship of so unstable a thing as fire we can attain an enduring state, then the view reminds us of a verse in

Before his eyes were spread out all the allurements of the world, including the position of Hiranya-garbha the highest state in the phenomenal world, obtained by those who worship the Supreme by sacrifice and meditation, according to S, and he has rejected them all. Here perhaps is suggested the contrast between the Vedic ideal of heaven and the Upanisad ideal of life eternal. The world to which the righteous go is the Brahmā world. In svarga-loka or heaven there

gūdham deeply hidden It is hidden because we have to get behind the senses, mind and understanding. It is the very ground of the soul The Buddhists look upon every creature as an embryo of the tathāgata, tathāgata-garbha Every creature has the possibility of becoming a Buddha When we get into the inner being of the spirit, we are in immediate relationship with the Eternal This basic principle which we recognise by immediate experience or continued contemplation is the basis of human freedom It is the principle of indeterminacy, the possibilities of determinations which are not yet If we identify ourselves with what is determinate, we are subject to the law of determinism 'If ye are led by the spirit, ye are not under the law' adhyālma-yoga self-contemplation viṣayebhyah pratisamhṛlya cetasālmani samādhānam S. adhyālma means pertaining to the self as distinct from adhibhūla, pertaining to the material elements and adhidaiva, pertaining to the deities Adhyālma-yoga is yoking with one's essential self. It is the practice of meditation, a quiet, solitary sustained effort to apprehend truth which is different from the ordinary process of cerebration

Yama answers Naciketas's question raised in I 29, about the mysterious divine being hidden behind the phenomenal world, in the depths of one's own being, which is difficult of access by ordinary means and yet is open to spiritual contemplation Yama, in different ways and phrases, brings out the impenetrable mystery of the inmost reality which is the object of search. If the Brahma world is the fulfilment of all desires, this eternal bliss is obtained by the renunciation of all desires, while brahma-loka is the highest place of the manifested cosmos, its farthest limit, there is the eternal beyond it brahmacarya the life of a religious student. It is referred to in RVX 109 and described in Atharva Veda XI 5. It lasts for twelve years but may be longer. Svetaketu was a brahmacārin from 12 to 24. The student is expected to live in the house of his teacher, wait on him, tend his house and cattle, beg for his own and his master's food, look after the sacrificial fires and study the Veda Detailed rules for brahmacarya are given in the Grhya Satra

Asvalayana says that a brahmacarın is required to be chaste, obedient, to drink only water and not sleep in the daytime I 22, I 2.

Brahmacarya has come to mean continence and self-restraint

Aum is the prarava, which, by the time of the Upanisads, is charged with the significance of the entire universe. Deussen is certainly incorrect when he observes: 'Essentially it was the unknowableness of the first principle of the universe, the Brahman, and the impossibility of expressing it by word or illustration, which compelled the choice of something so entirely meaningless as the symbol Aum as a symbol of Brahman'. The word first occurs in the Taittiriya Samluia of the Black Yajur Veda, III 2 9 6, where it is called the frame a and indicates, according to Keith, the prolongation of the last syllable of the offering verse uttered by the Loty. In the Brahmanas, it occurs more frequently as a response by the adharyu to each Relicate verse uttered by the Lety, meaning, 'yes,' so be it, answering to the Christian 'Amen'

In the Astroya Brahmana V. 32, arm is treated as a mystic villable representing the essence of the Vedas and the universe.

It is the symbol of the manufested Brahman (waking, dream and dreamless sleep) as well as the unmanufested beyond See Mā U. IV 32 a-krainh unstriving man He who is free from desire for external objects, earthly or heavenly, which distract the soul and distort its vision S adopts this view. He will, however, have the desire for salvation, mumuksulva. The Upanisad insists on the absence of strife or anxiety and refers to the man whose will is at peace 2 dhātu-prasādāt through the tranquillity of the mind and the senses.

The wise man who knows that his self, though now embodied and subject to change, is one with the imperishable omnipresent Self, has no cause for grief. He goes beyond all fear and sorrow.

Cp St Paul: 'Work out your own salvation with fear and trembling; for it is God which worketh in you both to will and to do of His good pleasure' Epistle to the Philippians 2 12-13 Cp 'If thou askest how may these things be, interrogate grace and not doctrine, desire and not knowledge, the groaning of prayer rather than study, the spouse rather than the teacher, God and not man, mist rather than clarity, not light but fire all assame and bearing on to God by devotion and glowing affection' St Bonaventura. Itinerary of the Mind, quoted from H O Taylor's Mediaeval Mind, 3rd ed, Vol II, pp 448

S, however, gives a different interpretation by an ingenious exegesis 'Him alone whom he chooses by that same self is his own self obtainable' The self reveals its true character to one that seeks it exclusively.

Saving wisdom cannot be obtained without the moral qualifications here mentioned No one can realise the truth without illumination, and no one can have illumination without a thorough cleansing of one's moral being See also M U. III. 1 5, III 1 8; Cp B U IV. 4 23 So long as we are indulgent to our vices, so long as we pine away with hatred and ill-will to others, we cannot get at true knowledge The classical division of spiritual life into purgation, illumination and union gives the first place to ethical preparation, which is essential for the higher degrees of spiritual life Moral disorder prevents us from fixing our gaze on the Supreme Until our mind and heart are effectively purged, we can have no clear vision of God It follows that man's effort is essential to grasp grace and profit by it Grace is not irresistible It is open to us to accept or reject it Election by God referred to in the previous verse is not to be interpreted as fostering fatalism or predestination, though the religious seer feels that even in the first movement of the soul towards wisdom, the effort at purgation, the prime mover is God

This verse gives the lie direct to the suggestion sometimes made that the spiritual and the ethical are not organically connected If we wish to attain the spiritual, we cannot bypass the ethical

 rłam prbantau sukrtasya loke guhām pravistau parame parārdhe, chāyā-tapau brahma-vido vadanti, pañcāgnayo ye ca tri-nāci-

There are two selves that drink the fruit of Karma in the world of good deeds. Both are lodged in the secret place (of the heart), the chief seat of the Supreme. The knowers of Brahman speak of them as shade and light as also (the householders) who maintain the five sacrificial fires and those too who perform the triple Naciketas fire.

It has been said already that the Eternal Reality which is greater than anything this world or the celestial offers can be reached by meditation on one's own inner self and not by ordinary empirical knowledge. This section continues the account of the way in which the Supreme Self may be known. This verse makes out that meditation on the inner self leads to the knowledge of the Supreme because the latter dwells in close fellowship with the individual self in the cave of the human intelligence R. 'There are two drinking,' etc. shows that, 'as the object of devout meditation and the devotee abide together, meditation is easily performed.' R.B. I. 4.6.

tiam: Karma. Rta signifies the divinely established order of the universe, both natural and moral. It here refers to the divine order connecting deeds with their results S means by it 'the truth because it is the inescapable fruit of action' than satyam avasyam bhāvitvāt karma phalam S.

sukrtasya, of good deeds: of their own deeds. sva-krtasya

The two referred to here are the individual soul and the Supreme self. Cp. M.U. III. I. 10, S.U. IV. 6 and 7, which go back to R V. I. 164. 20. Sayana, commenting on this verse, says that the reference is to the two forms of the ātman, the individual soul (yīvāiman) and the universal (paramātman). But how can the self which is represented as looking on without eating, be treated as experiencing the rewards of deeds? S. R., and Śrīnivāsa in his commentary on Nimbārka argue that it is loose usage of chattri-nyāya. When two men walk under an umbrella, we say there go the umbrella-bearers Madhva is more to the point when he quotes Brhat Samhitā and says, 'The Lord Hari dwells in the heart of beings and accepts the pure pleasure arising from their good works' The Supreme in its cosmic aspect is subject to the chances and changes of times Isvara as distinct from Brahman participates in the processes of the world

Madhva finds support in this verse for his doctrine of the entire

disparateness of the individual and the universal souls

chāyā-lapau: shade and light, shadow and glowing or light pañcāgnayah: those who maintain the five sacrificial fires

All this inducates that while meditation is the way to saving knowledge, due performance of the ordained sacrifices gives us a measure of spiritual understanding

In the beginning, it is said that the sky and earth were one They became separated by an intervening river or sea of time and space, samsārasāgara. Each one of us, here on earth, wishes to find his way to the farther shore by a ladder or a bridge If we think of a ladder, the way (panthā) is upward (ārdhvam), if we think of a bridge, the way is across That which takes us across to the other shore is the immanent spiritual self which is at once the way and the goal The bridge holds the worlds apart and also unites them See B.U IV. 4 22, VIII. 4 I. In Buddhist texts, the way from the vortex of existence, samsara to the extinction of life's fires, nirvana is the eightfold path 'I am the way, John XIV 6. He who calls himself the way appeared to St Catherine of Siena 'in the form of a bridge extending from Heaven to Earth over which all mankind had to pass' See Dona Luisa Coomaraswamy. The Perilous Bridge Harvard Journal of Asiatic Studies, August 1944

Two ways of crossing the river of samsara are indicated, the performance of the Vedic sacrifices, which leads to the heaven of the gods and the knowledge of Brahman The first prepares the way for the second, on the path of gradual liberation of krama-mukts.

THE PARABLE OF THE CHARIOT

3 āimānam rathmam viddhi, sarīram ratham eva tubuddhım tu sāradhim viddhı, manah pragraham eva ca

3 Know the Self as the lord of the chariot and the body as, verily, the chariot, know the intellect as the charioteer and the mind as, verily, the reins

The idea of the self riding in the chariot which is the psychophysical vehicle is a familiar one See also Jātaka VI. 242. The chariot with its sensitive steeds represents the psycho-physical vehicle in which the self rides. In Maitri IV. 4, the embodied self is spoken of as rathita or 'carted' and thus subjected to the conditions of mortality Mind holds the reins. It may either control or be dragged by the team of the senses Rumi in his Mathnawi says: 'The heart has pulled the rems of the five senses' (I. 3275) The conception of Yoga derived from the root yuj to yoke, to harness, to join is connected with the symbolism of the chariot and the team. Yoga is the complete control of the different elements of our nature, psychical and physical and harnessing them to the highest end. See Plato Phaedo 24-28, Phaedrus 246f In spite of difference in details, the Katha Up. and Plato agree in looking upon intelligence as the ruling power of the soul (called buddh or vijnana by the Upanisad and nous by Plato) and aiming at the integration of the different elements of human nature. Cp. Republic (IV. 433): 'The just man sets in order his own inner life, and is his own master and at peace with himself, and when he has bound together the three principles within him (i.e reason, emotion and the sensual appetites) and is no longer many but has become one entirely temperate and perfectly adjusted nature, then he will proceed to act, if he has to act, whether in state affairs or in private business of his own

10. Beyond the senses are the objects (of the senses) and beyond the objects is the mind; beyond the mind is the understanding and beyond the understanding is the great self.

äimā mahān the great self

S means by it the great soul of the universe said to be the first-born of anyakta, the unmanifest. According to the RV (X 121) in the beginning was the chaos of waters, floating on which appeared Hiranya-garbha, the golden germ, the first born of creation and the creator of all other human beings Hiranya-garbha is the soul of the universe RV. X. 120 2.

When the golden light of purusa is cast on all the rich content of prakti, we have the manifestations from crude matter to the

divinities in paradise.1

For R, mahān ātmā is the individual self kartr, which is indwelt by the highest self. R B. I. 4. r.

II mahatah param avyaktam, avyaktāt puruşah parah puruṣān na param kiñcit: sā kāsihā, sā parā gatih.

II Beyond the great self is the unmanifest; beyond the unmanifest is the spirit. Beyond the spirit there is nothing. That is the end (of the journey), that is the final goal.

anyakta unmanifest It is beyond mahat, it is praket, the universal mother from out of which by the influence of the light of purusa, all form and all content emerge into manifestation.

S calls avyakta, māyā, avidyā. While purusa, subject, and prakrti, object, are co-ordinate principles at the stage of cosmic creation, ¹ Cp Deussen 'We know that the entire objective universe is possible only insofar as it is sustained by a knowing subject. This subject as the sustainer of the objective universe is manifested in all individual subjects but is by no means identical with them. For the individual subjects pass away, but the objective universe continues to exist without them; there exists therefore the eternal knowing subject (Hiranya-garbha) also by whom it is sustained 'The Philosophy of the Upanisads, p. 201.

while their inter-action is essential for all manifestation, purusa is considered to be higher as he is the source of light and his unity appears nearer to the ultimate one than the multiplicity of prakris, strictly speaking, however, the Pure Self is beyond the descriptions of unity, duality and multiplicity

For Rāmānuja, avyakta is the body or the chanot It is called avyakta because the subtle body and not the gross body is referred to While there is agreement between S and Rāmānuja, on the point, S proceeds to say that the subtle body has avidyā or ignorance for its cause and therefore belongs to the world of māyā 'Māyā is properly called undeveloped or non-manifested since it cannot be defined as that which is or that which is not.' S B I 4 3 By avyakta, S means not the prakrti of the Sāmkhya but the māyā-šakli which is responsible for the whole world including the personal God For Rāmānuja, avyakta denotes Brahman in its causal phase, when names and forms are not yet distinguished It is a real mode, prakāra or development, parināma of Brahman through which the universe is evolved R B I 4 23-27

Madhva observes that 'the word avyakia which primarily denotes the Supreme Lord alone also denotes the other (matter), for it is dependent on Him and like unto a body of the Lord' Saira Bhāsya

purusan na param kiñcit beyond the Spirit there is nothing

The term purusa goes back to the Purusa Sükla (R V X 90)

and is distinctly personal in significance

Purusa is the subject side of that within which are both subject and object, the light of unity and the darkness of multiplicity. We do not reach it, until the end of the cosmic day. So we can say that there is nothing beyond the purusa

In these two verses we find a hierarchy of principles or beings which have later acquired highly technical significations. We are asked to pass from outward nature to the one world-ground, avyakia, and from it to the spirit behind. Between the two, purusa and praktis, a certain priority is given to purusa, for it is the light of purusa's consciousness that is reflected on all objects of the manifested universe high or low, gross or subtle. From the sense world where the senses reveal their objects, we pass to the dream world where manas or mind operates independent of the senses. From this latter we pass to the world of dreamless sleep where the unmanifest prakti becomes the divine mother. Those who are absorbed in praktis, those who have attained to the state of praktis-laya have the bliss and freedom of dreamless sleep, but it is not the illuminated freedom that we seek. For that we must get to the purusa, who is the source of all

Cp Pseudo Dionysius 'Do thou, in the intent practice of mystic contemplation, leave behind the senses and the operations of the intellect, and all things that the senses or the intellect can perceive, and all things which are not and things which are, and strain upwards in unknowing as far as may be towards the union with Him who is above all being and knowledge. For by unceasing and absolute withdrawal from thyself and all things in purity, abandoning all and set free from all, thou wilt be borne up to the ray of the Divine Darkness that surpasseth all being.' Mystical Theology, I.

Mahat, avyakta and purusa are terms used by the Sāmkhya philosophy Avyakta is the prakrtı or pradhāna. When its equilibrium is disturbed by the influence of purusa, the evolution or srstı or the manifest world starts, and this evolution consists of twenty-three principles Mahat, the great principle, buddhi or intelligence, ahamkāra self-sense, principle of individuation from which issue manas, the central, co-ordinatory sense-organ, 5-9, five buddhīndriyas or sense organs, 10-14, five karmendriyas or organs of action, 15-19, five tanmātras, or subtle elements, 20-24, five sthūla-bhūtas or gross elements Purusa, the twenty-fifth, is totally distinct in nature from all others, neither producing nor produced, though by its influence on prakrtı, it causes the evolution of the manifest world.

The account in the Katha Up. is different from the classical Sāmkhya in many respects; there is no mention of aham-kāra or self-sense, though it is true that the distinction between buddh and aham-kāra, intellect and individuation is not a material one.

While the Sāmkhya identifies buddhi and mahat, the Upanisad distinguishes them

The purusa of the dualistic Sāmkliya is not beyond the avyakta or prakrii but is a co-ordinate principle

It is doubtful whether avyakta refers to the prakrti of the Sāmkhya. See S.B I 4. I The Upanisad account gives certain Sāmkhya ideas in a theistic setting.

I The Self is not to be sought through the senses The Self-caused pierced the openings (of the senses) outward, therefore one looks outward and not within oneself. Some wise man, however, seeking life eternal, with his eyes turned inward, saw the self.

vyatrnat pierced The Self-caused has so set the openings of the soul that they open outwards and men look outward into the appearances of things but the rare soul ripe for spiritual wisdom withdraws his attention from the world, turns his eye inward, sees the Self and attains immortality S makes out that he cursed or injured them by turning them outward, himsilavān hananam krtavān Such observations which are disparaging to the legitimate use of the senses give the impression of the unworldly character of much of our best effort S's opinion is opposed to the view set forth in the previous section that senses are like horses, which will take us to our goal, if properly guided The Upanisad calls for the control and not the suppression of the senses Spiritual search has an inward movement leading to the revelation of the Divine in the inmost soul It is this aspect which is stressed in this verse ! We generally lead outward lives, to have a vision of truth we must turn our gaze inward Sec SU III 18, we must bring about an inversion of the natural orientation of our consciousness svayambhūh self-caused Cp causa sur of Neoplatonism That which causes itself or produces itself is different from the unproduced, the uncaused It is the Creator God and not the uncaused Brahman See Salapatha Brāhmana I 9 3 10, Taitirīya Brāhmana III 12

Colerage

The soul is like an eye When the eye rests on the perishing things of the world, it does not know the truth of things When it turns inward and rests on truth and being, it perceives truth

Plato speaks of the object of education as a 'turning around of the soul' In the famous simile of the cave Plato compares those who are destitute of philosophic wisdom to prisoners in a cave who are able only to look in one direction. They are bound and have a fire behind them and a wall in front. They see shadows of themselves and of objects behind them cast on the wall by the light of the fire They regard these shadows as real and have no notion of the objects to which they are due At last some wise man succeeds in escaping from the cave to the light of the sun. He sees real things and becomes aware that he had hitherto been deceived by shadows

Cp. Phaedo 'The soul, when using the body as an instrument of perception, that is to say, when using the sense of sight or hearing or some other sense . . . is then dragged by the body into the region of the changeable and wanders and is confused. But when returning into herself she reflects, then she passes into the other world, the region of purity and eternity and immortality, and unchangeableness which are her kindred and with them she ever lives, when she is by herself and is not let or hindered, then she ceases from her erring ways and being in communion with the unchanging is unchanging And this state of the soul is called wisdom.'

Descartes points to the necessity of turning away from external appearances and rising to the spiritual realities which self-knowledge reveals. Only while the author of the Upanisad requires us to rise above intellection into insight when we will be imbued with the truth already present in the soul, Descartes asks us to strive to know the truth through reason.

The Upanisad points out that God is more manifest in the soul of man than in the world outside It, therefore, demands a conversion of the spirit on itself.

they are all said to derive their being from the One Supreme Realty In verses 5-7, the living soul, the soul of the universe, infinite nature, are identified with Brahman; in verses 8 and 9, Fire and Sun are said to have their reality in Brahman devās sarve ātman prahshhā iti. R

the ruler of the time order.

S discusses this passage in his Sūtra Bhāsya (I. 3 24 and 25) and argues that the soul which is said to be of the size of a thumb is in reality Brahman Rāmānuja and Nimbārka agree and hold that the highest self is called 'thumb-sized' since it dwells in the heart of the worshipper. In B U the self is said to be 'as small as a grain of nice or barley and yet it is the ruler of all and lord of all,' V 5 I In C U, it is said to be of the measure of a span, pradeša-mātra, V is I Matrī states all the views of the size of the soul. It tells us that a man 'reaches the supreme state by meditating on the soul, which is smaller than an atom or else of the size of the thumb, or of a span, or of the whole body 'VI 38.

ekādaša-dvāram eleven-gated B.G (V. 13) mentions mne gates¹ which are the two eyes, two ears, two nostrils, mouth, anus and generating organ¹ Here two others are mentioned to make up eleven and they are the navel and the saggital suture, the opening at the top of the skull (A U. III 12), through which the liberated soul is said to escape at death a-vakra-cetasah whose thoughts are not crooked avakram akunlam. anushaya ruling (the city) S takes it to mean 'contemplating,' dhyātvā When the soul controls the gates and lives in peace it is free from sorrow. It is freedom which begins here (jīvan-mukhi) and leads after death to complete release (videha-mukti).

Originally prāna meant breath and was used for the Supreme Being In the early Upanisads, all the vital powers (i.e. speech, breath, eye, ear and manas) are called prānāh. B U. I. 5. 3, T U. I 7. These are looked upon as varieties of breath or as powers presiding over different parts of the body. Prāna and apāna stand for breaths in expiration and inspiration respectively. vāmanam the dwarf (another name for the thumb-sized person, angustha-mātra burusa)

5. Not by any outbreath or inbreath does any mortal whatever live But by another do they live on which these (life-breaths) both depend

This verse repudiates the materialist doctrine that the soul is just an assemblage of parts. It makes out that as the house and the dweller are separate, the destruction of the house does not mean the destruction of the dweller. The loss of the body does not mean the dissolution of the soul, while desertion of the body by the soul would mean the disintegration of the body.

II Just as the sun, the eye of the whole world, is not defiled by the external faults seen by the eye, even so, the One within all beings is not tainted by the sorrow of the world, as He is outside (the world).

The verse admits the reality of the pain of the world but denies that it touches the Supreme Self which is our inner being. The forms which the Supreme assumes are not its modifications but are the manifestations of its possibilities. The Supreme Self is unaffected by the pain of the individual selves because the pain of the individual self is due to its identifying itself with its psycho-physical vehicle. The individual ego makes a confusion between the self and what is not the self. The Supreme, on the other hand, does not suffer because it is not subject to ignorance (avidyā) and it does not identify itself with any of the accidents to which its various psycho-physical vehicles are subject.

12. Not by speech, not by mind, not by sight can he be apprehended How can he be comprehended except by him who says, 'He is'?

He can be comprehended only by those who affirm that 'He is' The self as the knowing subject can never become an object. It can be realised through Yoga While He transcends the ordinary means of apprehension, He can be immediately experienced through Yoga, and for such apprehension faith in His existence is an indispensable condition The conviction of the reality of that which is sought is the prerequisite

Commenting on this verse, S argues that the Supreme Brahman who is conceived as the source of the universe must be regarded as existent We cannot conceive of the world as produced from nothing

The world effect must have an existent cause

We can at least reasonably say of God that He is Cp Epistle to the Hebrews 'He that cometh to God must believe that He is' Cp St Bernard 'Who is God' I can think of no better answer than, He who is Nothing is more appropriate to the eternity which God is If you call God good, or great or blessed, or wise or anything else of this sort, it is included in these words, namely, He is

13 astīty evopalabdhavyas tattva-bhāvena cobhayoh, astīty evopalabdhasya tattva-bhāvah prasīdats

13 He should be apprehended only as existent and then in his real nature—in both ways. When He is apprehended as existent, his real nature becomes clear (later on)

The primary assertion that can be made of the Self is the declaration of existence, pure and simple ubhayoh in both ways In the conditioned and the unconditioned ways sopādhika-nirupādhikayoh S. Rational faith in the existence of Brahman leads on to spiritual experience in which His nature is revealed to and understood by the

In this section, the author speaks to us of the discipline of Yoga by which man's whole being is unified and concentrated on the realization of the highest Being who is also the inner and real self

14. yadā sarve pramucyante kāmā ye'sya hrdı śrıtāh, atha martyo'mrto bhavaty atra brahma samasnute

14. When all desires that dwell within the human heart are cast away, then a mortal becomes immortal and (even) here he attaineth to Brahman.

When self-seeking desire, ignorance and doubt disappear, the vision of God is attained. The Upanisad treats fellowship with God as the consummation of spiritual experience 15 yadā sarve prabhidyante hrdayasyeha granthayah, atha martyo' mṛto bhavaty etāvad anuśāsanam.

15. When all the knots that fetter here the heart are cut asunder, then a mortal becomes immortal. Thus far is the teaching.

etāvad anušāsanam thus far is the teaching. The original Upanisad, it was felt, ended with I. 3 17 These words seem to mark the end of the enlarged Upanisad. The remaining verses seem to be a still later addition.

16 A hundred and one are the arteries of the heart; one of them leads up to the crown of the head. Going upward through that, one becomes immortal, the others serve for going in various other directions

See C.U. VIII 6 6, where it is said, that if a man has lived the disciplined life of a student and so 'found the self,' then at the time of death, his soul, dwelling in the heart, will pass upward by an artery known as susumnā (Maitrī VI 21), to an aperture in the crown of the skull known as the brahma-randhra or vidti, by which at the beginning of life it first entered. For there the soul rises by the sun's rays to the sun which is a door-way to the Brahmā world to those who know and a stopping-place for those who do not know. The other ways lead the unliberated to re-embodiment.

PRAŚNA UPANIŞAD

The Praśna Upanisad belongs to the Atharva Veda and has six sections dealing with six questions put to a sage by his disciples who were intent on knowing the nature of the ultimate cause, the power of aum, the relation of the Supreme to the constituents of the world The Upanisad is so called as it deals with praśna or question.

The southern route is the material path where we perform acts with selfish desires. These acts are of two kinds ista and purta. The former relates to acts of ceremonial piety, observances of Vedic nitual, the latter to acts of social service and public good.

3 The fires of life alone remain awake in this city The householder's fire is the out-breath The (southern) sacrificial fire is the diffused breath. The in-breath is the oblation fire, from being taken, since it is taken from the householder's fire

Life is conceived as a sacrifice and these three life breaths are symbolically identified with the fires used in the Vedic sacrifice. garhapatya, householder's fire It is the sacred home fire kept burning at home

2. To him, he said. That which is the sound Aum, O Satya-kāma, is verily the higher and the lower Brahman Therefore, with this support alone does the wise man reach the one or the other

The verse distinguishes between the Unqualified Absolute Brahman and the qualified Personal Isvara

5 But if he meditates on the highest person with the three elements of the syllable Aum (a, u, m), he becomes one with the light, the sun. Even as a snake is freed from its skin, even so is he freed from sins He is led by sama (chants) to the world of Brahma He sees the person that dwells in the body. who is higher than the highest life. As to this there are these (two verses)

S says The world of Brahmā is the world of Hiranya-garbha who is the lord of the saiya-loka Hiranya-garbha is the self of all the jivas travelling in samsara, for he is the internal self of all living beings in the subtle form and in him, the subtle self are all the jīvas strung together So he is 'jiva-ghana' sa hiranya-garbhah sarvesām samsărınăm, jîvânăm ăima-bhūlah; sa hy antar-ātmā linga-rūpena sarvabhūtānām, tasmin hi lingātmani samhatāh sarve jīvāh, tasmāt sa jiva-ghanah

That one is without parts, immortal. As to that there is this verse:

MUNDAKA UPANISAD

The Mundaka Upanisad belongs to the Atharva Veda and has three chapters, each of which has two sections. The name is derived from the root mund, 'to shave,' as he that comprehends the teaching of the Upanisad is shaved or liberated from error and ignorance. The Upanisad states clearly the distinction between the higher knowledge of the Supreme Brahman and the lower knowledge of the empirical world. It is by this higher wisdom and not by sacrifices or worship that one can reach Brahman. Only the samnyāsin who has given up everything can obtain the highest knowledge.

r Brahmā arose as the first among the gods, the maker of the universe, the protector of the world He taught the knowledge of Brahman, the foundation of all knowledges, to Atharvan, his eldest son.

Brahmā, the creator of the world and its governor arose, by the exercise of his own choice. His rise is unlike the birth of individuals which is determined by their past deeds S. svātantryena na dharmā-dharma-vašāt Brahmā here is Hiranya-garbha, the world-soul brahma-knowledge. A life without philosophy is not livable for man, in the view of Socrates. See Plato's Apology. 3 He whose agnihotra sacrifice is not followed by the sacrifice of the new moon and of the full moon, by the four months' sacrifice, by the ritual (performed in the harvest season) is without guests, without oblations, without the ceremony to all the gods or gives offerings contrary to rule, (such conduct) destroys his worlds till the seventh

The opposition of the Upanisads to the observance of rites is greatly exaggerated. The performance of rites is unnecessary for those who are already liberated while it is necessary for attaining liberation. When performing rites we must be fully aware of what we are doing. There is a vital difference between the routine performance of ntes and an understanding performance of them

In Satapatha Brāhmana (II 2 2 8-20) it is said that the gods and the demons were both the children of Praja-pair both devoid of spiritual wisdom and so were subject to the law of change and death Only Agm was immortal Both set up their sacrificial fires The demons performed their rites externally and the gods then set up that fire in their inward self. evam antarātman ādadhata and having done so became immortal and invincible and overcame their mortal and vincible foes Again, 'by knowledge (vidyayā) they ascend to where desires have migrated (parāgatāh) it is not by offerings (daksinābliih) nor by ignorant ardour (avidvāmsah (apasvinah) but only to knowers that that world belongs' Salapatha Brāhmana X 5 4 16 We must set up the sacrificial fire within our self. We must feed the flame by truthful utterance, for we quench it by speaking falsehood. The distinction between external conformity and inward purity is ultimately resolved when the whole of life is interpreted and lived sacrificially See also Salapatha Brāhmana X 4 2 31 and XIII 1 3. 22

II But those who practise austerity and faith in the forest. the trangual knowers who live the life of a mendicant, depart freed from sin, through the door of the sun to where dwells the immortal, imperishable person

aranye in the forest, spiritual life in India has solitary meditation as one of its essential stages. It has been the cherished ambition and pursuit of the lonely ascetic. It is assumed that those who are distracted by the cares and encumbered by the possessions of the world find it hard to secure their spiritual ends. Those emanicipated from these are free to devote themselves to the highest aim When once the end is reached, the Indian samnyasm travels at pleasure and has no fixed residence or occupation. The first Christians were homeless wanderers The mendicant rather than the resident community of monks has been the Indian ideal Monasteries are more temporary rest-houses or centres of learning than permanent habitations

The Hindu system of asramas according to which every one of the twice-born towards the close of his life must renounce the world and adopt the homeless life and the ascetic's garb has had great influence on the Indian mind Though in intention, certain classes were not eligible to become monks, in practice monks were recruited from all castes

The Jam and the Buddhist orders though based on the ancient Hindu custom have become more centralised and co-ordinated Mutts or monasteries have become more popular among the Hindus also To erect a monastery for the service of the wandering ascetics has become recognised as an act of religious piety

In these verses the Upanisad points out the superiority of the way of knowledge to the empty and formal ritualism of the Brakmanas

The latter lead to the world of Brahmā which lasts as long as this world lasts while the former takes us to the world of Iśvara, 1e oneness with the Supreme, where we obtain sarvātmabhāva

4 Truly it is life that shines forth in all beings Knowing him, the wise man does not talk of anything else Sporting in the self, delighting in the self, performing works, such a one is the greatest of the knowers of Brahman

kriyāvān. performing works Ś, feeling the incompatibility of performing works after attaining knowledge of Brahman, suggests that it may mean only the previous performance of meditation and other acts conducive to a knowledge of Brahman. The verse, however, tells us that he who knows the ātman is also a performer of works. The soul frees itself from all attachments, enters into the stillness of the self, becomes composed and yet breaks forth into temporal works without compulsion, without seeking for reward, without selfish purpose. Its life is a free outpouring of a liberated consciousness and it is incapable of resting even as the living God Himself does not rest. Deep unmoved repose at the centre and perpetual creativity are his features.

In the Tripurā-rahasya the prince who has become liberated even in the present life (jīvan-mukta) performs his royal duties like an actor on the stage, natavad ranga-mandale, without being motivated by any selfish passions. He is not infected by what he does on the stage. He remains himself untroubled by the thought 'Thus I did right' or 'thus I did wrong' See B U IV 4 22. He will do his duty impartially, regardless of gain and loss B G tells us that our concern is with action only, not with the result 'Battles are lost in the same spirit in which they are won' The duty of a soldier is to fight and not to hate. The well-known story of Ali points out how we should not act in passion. Ali, engaged in single combat, was on the point of victory, but when his opponent spat in his face, he withdrew because he would not fight in anger

MĀŅŅŪKYA UPANIŞAD

The Māndūkya Upanisad belongs to the Atharva Veda and contains twelve verses. It is an exposition of the principle of aum as consisting of three elements, a, u, m, which refer to the three states of waking, dream and dreamless sleep. The Supreme Self is manifested in the universe in its gross, subtle and causal aspects. Answering to the four states of consciousness, wakefulness, dream, dreamless sleep, transcendental consciousness; there are aspects of the Godhead, the last alone being all-inclusive and ultimately real. The Absolute of mystic consciousness is the reality of the God of religion. The Upanişad by itself, it is said, is enough to lead one to liberation.

Gaudapāda, Samkara's teacher's teacher wrote his famous Kārikā on the Upanişad, which is the first systematic exposition of Advaita Vedānta which has come down to us Samkara has commented on both the Upanisad and the Kārikā

THE SIGNIFICANCE OF AUM

I aum ity etad aksaram ıdam sarvam, tasyopavyākhyānam, bhūtam bhavad bhavısyad ıtı sarvam aumkāra eva, yac cānyat trıkālātītam tad apy aumkāra eva

I Aum, this syllable is all this An explanation of that (is the following) All that is the past, the present and the future, all this is only the syllable aum. And whatever else there is beyond the threefold time, that too is only the syllable aum

The syllable aum, which is the symbol of Brahman, stands for the manifested world, the past, the present and the future, as well as the unmanifested Absolute

- 2 sarvam hy etad brahma, ayam ātmā brahma, so'yam ātmā catus-pāt
- 2 All this is, verily, Brahman. This self is Brahman This same self has four quarters

four quarters. which are viśva, the waking state, taijasa, the dream state, prājāa, the state of dreamless sleep and turīya which is the state of spiritual consciousness 'The knowledge of the fourth is attained by merging the (previous) three such as viśva, etc., in the order of the previous one in the succeeding one' trayānām viśvādānām pūrva-pūrva-pravilāpanena turīyasya pratipatish S

- 3 jägarita sthäno bahis-prajñah saptänga ekonavimsati-mukhah sthüla-bhug vaisvänarah prathamah pädah
- 3 The first quarter is Vaisvānara, whose sphere (of activity) is the waking state, who cognises external objects, who has seven limbs and nineteen mouths and who enjoys (experiences) gross (material) objects

who has seven limbs refers to the list mentioned in C U V 18 2 mineteen mouths are the five organs of sense (hearing, touch, sight, taste and smell), the five organs of action (speech, handling, locomotion, generation and excretion), the five vital breaths, the mind (manas), and the intellect (buddhi), the self-sense (aham-kāra) and thought (citta)

Vaiśvānara He is called Vaiśvānara because he leads all creatures of the universe in diverse ways to the enjoyment of various objects, or because he comprises all beings S viśvesām narānām anekadhā nayanād vaiśvānarah, yad vā viśvaś cāsau naraś ceti viśvānarah, viśvānara eva vaiśvānarah

The waking state is the normal condition of the natural man, who without reflection accepts the universe as he finds it. The same physical universe bound by uniform laws presents itself to all such

4. svapna-sthāno'ntah-prajňah saptānga ekonavimsaii-mukhak pravivikta-bhuk taijaso dvitīyah pādah .

4 The second quarter is targasa, whose sphere (of activity) is the dream state, who cognises internal objects, who has seven limbs and nineteen mouths, and who enjoys (experiences) the subtle objects.

The tayasa is conscious of the internal, i.e. mental states While the visva, which is the subject of the waking state, cognises material objects in the waking experience, the tayasa experiences mental states dependent on the predispositions left by the waking expenences In this state the soul fashions its own world in the imagining of the dreams 'The spirit serves as light for itself' BU IV 3 9 Here also the basis of duality operates, the one that knows and the object that is known Though from the standpoint of the dream, the dream objects are experienced as external, they are said to be subtle because they are different from the objects of the waking state which are external

5 Where one, being fast asleep, does not desire any desire whatsoever and does not see any dream whatsoever, that is deep sleep The third quarter is prayna, whose sphere (of activity) is the state of deep sleep, who has become one, who is verily, a mass of cognition, who is full of bliss and who enjoys (experiences) bliss, whose face is thought

While the first condition is the waking life of outward-moving consciousness, and the second is the dream life of inward-moving consciousness, the third is the state of deep sleep where the consciousness enjoys peace and has no perception of either external or internal objects Cp the Psalmist who says 'God gives truth to his beloved in sleep' (CXXVII 2) The transitory character of sleep shows that it is not the ultimate state The name given to this state is prājāa It is a state of knowledge, though the external and internal states are held in abeyance It is the conceptual self, while the two previous selves are the imaginative and the perceptual ones eks-bhatah the manifold object series, external and internal, lapses

even 'as at night, owing to the indiscrimination produced by darkness, all percepts become a mass of darkness, as it were, so also in the state of deep sleep, all (objects) of consciousness, verily become a mass (of consciousness)' S In deep sleep no desire, no thought is left, all impressions have become one, only knowledge and bliss remain

The apparent absence of duality has led to the view that it is the final state of union with Brahman See B U. IV 3; C U. VIII.

In the waking state we are bound by the fetters of sense-perception and desire, in the dream state we have a greater freedom as the self makes a world of its own, out of the materials of the waking world. Though, in the dream state, we take the dream images of delight and oppression as real, we produce them out of ourselves. In dreamless sleep the self is liberated from the empirical world, indeed from the person as a self-contained unit.

Surges that 'that which is designated as prājūa (when it is viewed as the cause of the world) will be described as turīya separately when it is not viewed as the cause, and when it is free from all phenomenal relationship, ie in its absolute real aspect' tam abījāvastham tasyawa prājūa-śabda-vācyasya turīyatvena dehādi-sambandha-jāgradādi-rahitām pāramārthikīm pīthag vaksyati S on Gaudapāda's Kārikā I 2

It is the first time in the history of thought that the distinction between Absolute and God, Brahman and Iśvara, turīya and prājūa is elaborated Cp with this the Christian view of the Son as 'the image of the invisible God, the first born of all creation; for in him all things were created, in heaven and on earth, visible and invisible

. all things were created through him and for him He is before all things and in him all things hold together' Colossians I 15 The son is the Demiurge, the heavenly architect, not the God but the image of the God For Philo 'the Sun is itself unaffected and undiminished by its radiance, yet all the earth is dependent on it, so God, although in His being He is completely self-contained and self-sufficient, shoots forth a great stream of radiation, immaterial, vet on that account all the more real This stream is God in extension. 7. (Turiva is) not that which cognises the internal (objects), not that which cognises the external (objects), not what cogmises both of them, not a mass of cognition, not cognitive, not non-cognitive (It is) unseen, incapable of being spoken of, ungraspable, without any distinctive marks, unthinkable, unnameable, the essence of the knowledge of the one self, that into which the world is resolved, the peaceful, the bengn, the non-dual, such, they think, is the fourth quarter He is the self, He is to be known

Here we get to a reality which is beyond the distinction of subject and object and yet it is above and not below this distinction It is super-theism and not athersm or anti-theism. We cannot use here terms like all-knowing, all-powerful Brahman cannot be treated as having objects of knowledge or powers It is pure being In many passages, the Upanisads make out that Brahman is pure being beyond all word and thought He becomes Isvara or personal God with the quality of prajua or pure wisdom. He is all-knowing, the lord of the principle of müla-prakrii or the unmamiested, the inner guide of all souls From him proceeds Hiranya-garbha who, as Demiurge, fashions the world. From the last develops Virāi or the totality of all existents The last two are sometimes mixed up

Gaudapāda says that this Brahman is birthless, free from sleep and dream, without name and form, ever effulgent, all thought,

no form is necessary for it'

It is present, even when we are immersed in the activities of the waking world or lost in the unconsciousness of sleep Man's highest good consists in entering into this, the self, making it the centre of one's life, instead of dwelling on the surface

Deep sleep terminates and the self returns to the dream and the waking states. In turiya there is a permanent union with Brahman. The metaphysical reality is cognised in turiya, if such an expression

can be used for the transcendent state

Plotinus portrays a gradual ascent from the world-soul to the spirit (nous) and finally from spirit to the One The goal of spiritual ascent is a mystical ecstatic union with the Absolute. He writes 'Let us suppose the same rest in the body that surrounds the soul, that its movement is stilled, and that the entire surroundings are also at rest, the earth, the sea, the heaven itself above the other elements' In words that are echoes of Plotinus, Augustine in his Confessions describes the ascent from the changeable apprehensions and objects of sense through the intelligible world of conceptual truth to the Absolute Truth 'If the tumult of the flesh were hushed, hushed the images of earth, and the waters and air, hushed also the poles of heaven' man turns his spiritual vision godward to receive the light, then he attains the absolute object of mystical union 'the light unchangeable above the mind' with the flash of one trembling glance

Viśva and taijasa are conditioned by cause and effect But prājāa is conditioned by cause alone These two (cause and effect) do not exist in turīya Primal being unfolds itself as a subject-object relation. The unmeasured and undefined becomes the measured and the defined, a universe of logical discourse Prājāa or wisdom and the element 'm' both indicate that the function of measuring is that of logical mind. All distinctions are within the Supreme

Brahman. God is the logical being, the defined reality It is not we that define Brahman but Brahman defines itself The supreme logical idea is God who is the true, the good and the beautiful Defined reality is not divided reality. The real in itself is Brahman. the real as logically defined is Iśvara who rests in Brahman who does not cease to be Brahman in becoming Isyara

II Prājña, whose sphere (of activity) is the state of deep sleep is the letter m, the third element, either from the root m, to measure or because of merging. He who knows this measures (knows) all this and merges also (all this in himself)

In deep sleep, all waking and dream experiences disappear Isvara is the cause of the universe as well as that of its dissolution As the name prājña implies, the condition is one of intellection. In it we have a thinker and a thought. If this difference did not exist,

it would be a silent oneness

This verse affirms what Parmemdes, Plato and Hegel assumed that the opposition of being and not-being is the original duality from the ontological standpoint Being is a priori to non-being The negation presupposes what it negates Though being is a priori to non-being, being itself cannot be conceived without an opposite. Being could never be being without being opposed to not-being But there is something which is a priori to the opposition of being and non-being and that is the unity which transcends both Thought cannot grasp and determine this spirit beyond the opposition. There is no concept or substance that could be thought of as being the unity without any opposition whatsoever. We cannot even call it unity for it suggests the opposite category of diversity. But we are in the sphere of oppositions, dualities and yet the positive side of the opposition brings out the content of the spirit. We have to seek the ultimate truth, goodness and beauty in its direction.

Plotinus says, 'Before the two there is the one and the unit must precede the Dyad coming later than the one, the Dyad has the One as the standard of its differentiation, that without which it could not be the separate differentiated thing it is 'Enneads V I 5

'As long as we have duality, we must go still higher until we reach

what transcends the Dyad 'Ibid III 8.8

12 The fourth is that which has no elements, which cannot be spoken of, into which the world is resolved, benign, non-dual Thus the syllable aum is the very self. He who knows it thus enters the self with his self.

In turiya, the mind is not simply withdrawn from the objects but becomes one with Brahman who is free from fear, who is all-round illumination, according to Gaudapāda

The non-cognition of duality is common to both prājūa and turīya but prājūa is associated with the seed (consciousness) in sleep while this does not exist in turīya

Lao Tze looks upon the Tao as the ultimate Reality which can be defined only in negative terms as 'colourless,' 'soundless,' 'nonmaterial' His conception of creation was that out of Tao, the eternal ultimate principle came the one, the great monad or the material cause of the universe. The one produced the two primary essences, the Yang and the Yin, positive and negative, male and female, light and shade, which gave birth to the three powers of nature, heaven, earth and man, which in their combination produced all

Lao Tze's follower Chuang-tze regarded T'ien or God as the first great cause

Plotinus says: 'Standing transcendent above all things that follow It, existing in Itself, not mixing or to be mixed with any emanation from Itself, veritably the one, not merely possessing Oneness as an attribute of Its essence—for that would be a false oneness—a Principle overpassing all reasoning, all knowing-a principle standing over all Essence and Existence . only when it is simplex and First, apart from all, can it be perfectly self-sufficing ' Baneads, V. 4 I

This soundless, partless, supreme Reality is the very self. In the state of deep sleep, it becomes the subject confronting the object which is yet unmanifested. We infer the presence of the object, as its developments take place on getting out of sleep. In the dream state, the object is manifested in the form of mental states, in the waking state, the object is manifested in material states. The subjectobject duality is present in different forms in the states of waking, dream and dreamless sleep. It is transcended altogether in the state of turiya, while we have a pure consciousness of Self or Absolute

No object can be set in opposition to the Spirit and so the question of validity or otherwise does not arise. It is self-validating, selfauthenticating experience. The question of validity arises when the object appears as alien and impenetrable but in spiritual experience there is no alien object. There is knowledge of identity, by possession, by the absorption of the object at the deepest levels. In the expersence of turiya, there is neither subject nor object, neither the perception nor the idea of God It does not reflect or explain any other reality than itself It is reality, spirit in its inner life Those who know the truth become the truth It is not a state in which objects are extrinsically opposed to one another. It is the immersion of the self in reality, its participation in primary being It is illumined life. It is pure consciousness without any trace of duality, it is unfailing light turiyah sarva-drh sadā Kārikā I 12 When the real is known there is no world of duality, indie dvailant na vidyate Kărıkā I 18

When analogically we transfer this idea from the microcosm to the macrocosm, from the individual to the world, since there is a co-relation between intelligibility and being, we have answering to the waking state, Virat, to the dream state, Hiranya-garbha, to the dreamless sleep state, Iśvara. All these three are on the plane of duality, Iśvara has facing him mūla-prakrti, though in an unmanifested (avyākrta) condition, as the self has the object in an unmani-

fested condition in the state of dreamless sleep

Plotinus who adopts a similar view puts the case thus: 'If, then, the Divine thought-forms (The Ideas) are many, there must of necessity be something common to all and something peculiar to each to differentiate them this particularity or specific difference is the individual shape, but if there is shape there must be something that has taken the shape . that is to say there is a foundation, substratum, a matter. Further, if there is an Intellectual kosmos of which our kosmos is an image, and if ours is compound and includes matter, there must be a matter in the Intellectual kosmos as well.' Enneads II 4.4.

The interaction of the universal subject and object develops the rest of the universe. Hiranya-garbha is the sūtrātman and plays with ideas, mental states as taijasa does in the dream world. In Rg Veda, it is said that Hiranya-garbha arose in the beginning, the lord of all created beings X. 121. I. hiranya-garbhas sam-avartata agre bhūtasya jātaḥ patir eka āsīt This whole world is in him in an embryo form hiranye brahmānda-rūpe garbha-rūpenāi asihitah prajāpatir hiranya garbhah. Vidyāranya When these are projected into space and time, we have Virāt This answers to the waking state, which is Vaiśvānara's sphere of activity

The waking and the dream states answer to the exteriorised existence and interiorised life of the world-spirit. When the world-spirit externalises its attention, we have the manifestation of the cosmos When it turns its attention inward, the cosmos retreats into latency. When the world-spirit withdraws altogether into undisturbed stillness, the object, though present, becomes a mere abstraction When

even that ceases, Isvara is Brahman

Aum thus represents both the unmanifested Absolute and the personal Iśvara. Gaudapāda writes. 'The sacred syllable aum is verily the lower Brahman and it is also said to be the higher Brahman. Aum is without beginning, unique, without anything external to it, unrelated to any effect and imperishable' pranavo hy aparam brahma, pranav 15 ca parah smrlah apurvo'nantaro bāhyo 1.aparah pranavo'vyayah (26).

If we worship Aum as Iśvara, we pass beyond grief 'Know Aum to be Iśvara, ever present in the hearts of all The wise man, realising aum as all-pervading, does not grieve.'

pranavam hīśvaram vidyāt sarvasya I rdv samsti liam sarva-vyāpinam aumkāram, matvā di īro v a šocati. (28).

While Is ara, the personal God, is the lord of the world of manifestation, of becoming, the Supreme Bral man is beyond all becoming in pure being 'One who has known Aum which is (at the same time) devoid of elements and of infinite elements, in which all duality is resolved, the benign, he is the (real) sage and none other

amātro'nanta-mātras ca dvartasyopasamah swah aumkāro vidīto yena sa munir netaro janah (29)

In this Upanisad we find the fundamental approach to the attainment of reality by the road of introversion and ascent from the sensible and changing, through the mind which dreams, through the soul which thinks, to the divine within but above the soul. The truth of our intellectual knowledge presupposes a light, the Light of the Real above logical truth, the Light which is not itself but that by which it has been created and by whose illumination it shines

In the Apocryphal Wisdom of Solomon, the immanent reason is described thus

'For she is a breath of the power of God,

And a clear effluence of the glory of the Almighty 'VII 25 Wisdom becomes a personality (XVIII 14-16) akin to the word in the Prologue of the Fourth Gospel Though Wisdom is a potency outside God it is yet wholly in God Philo makes a sharp distinction between God in Himself and God revealed, between God who is pure being, unknowable, outside the material universe and God who is immanent in man and the universe, who is all-penetrating, allfilling The gap between the Infinite God and the finite man was bridged in the Old Testament by God's angels who were regarded as emanations of the divine, offshoots of deity, parts of his very being Philo held that the universe was filled with divine potencies While in one sense these are attributes and self-revelations of God, in another sense they are personal beings, incorporeal souls who mediate between God and men, who 'report the injunctions of the father to his children and the necessities of the children to the father.' De Somnus I 22 The unity of all these potencies is constituted by the Logos Heaven and earth subsisted in the Logos before their material creation. The potencies which are the creators of matter emanate from the Logos God who is the ultimate creator never works directly but through the Logos who again works through the potencies called logor Prayña, wisdom, Logos, Intellectual Principle, have a family likeness

Plotinus has the transcendent triad of the Absolute One, the Intellectual Principle or God and the World-soul 'The one is not a Being but the source of Being which is its first offspring The One is perfect, that is it has nothing, seeks nothing, needs nothing, but, as we may say, it overflows and this overflowing is creative, the engendered entity looks towards the One and becomes the Intellectual Principle, resting within itself, this offspring of the One is Being' Enneads V 2 I This Intellectual Principle Nons is the image of the One It is engendered because the One in its self-quest has vision This seeing is Nons The third is the soul, the author of all living things. It made the sun the moon the stars and the whole visible world. It is the offspring of the Divine intellect. It is, in Plotinus, of a twofold nature. There is an inner soul intent on Nous and another which faces outward. The latter is associated with a downward movement in which the soul generates its image which is nature and the world of sense. For Plotinus it is the lowest sphere, something emanating from the soul when it forgets to look upward towards the Nous. We have the One, Nous, Soul and the world answering to the fourfold nature of reality in the Māndūkya U. The last two the world-soul and the world are the subtle and the gross conditions of the same being wrāt trailokya-śarīrah brahmā samasti-vyasti-rūpah samsāra-mandala-vyāpī. Š on T U. II. 8

SVETĀSVATARA UPANIŞAD

The Svetāśvatara Upanisad belongs to the Taittirīva school of the Yapur Veda. Its name is derived from the sage who taught it. It is theistic in character and identifies the Supreme Brahman with Rudra who is conceived as the material and the efficient cause of the world, not only the author of the world but its protector and guide The elements associated with theism. Personal God and devotion to Him, which are to be met with undoubtedly in the other Upanisads, become prominent in the Svetāśvatara Upanişad The emphasis is not on Brahman the Absolute, whose complete perfection does not admit of any change or evolution but on the personal Iśvara. omniscient and omnipotent who is the manifested Brahman Terms which were used by the later Sāmkhya philosophy occur in the Upanisad, but the dualism of the Samkhya, purusa and prakrti, is overcome Nature or pradhana is not an independent entity but belongs to the self of the Divine, devātma-śaku. God is the mayin, the maker of the world which is māyā or made by him? The Upanisad teaches the unity of the souls and the world in the one Supreme Reality The Upanisad is an attempt to reconcile the different philosophical and religious views which prevailed at the time of its composition

II. By knowing God there is a falling off of all fetters, when the sufferings are destroyed, there is cessation of birth and death By meditating on Him, there is the third state, on the dissolution of the body, universal lordship, being alone, his desire is fulfilled

This verse describes the different sides and stages of liberation Negatively it is freedom from birth and death, positively it is oneness with Isvara, so long as there is the manifested world and oneness with Brahman when the manifested world ceases to exist tasya parameśvarasya, abhidhyānād deha-bhede śarīrapāiottara-kālam arcırādınā deva-yāna-pathā gatvā parameśvara-sāyiŋyam gatasya iţtīyam vırād-rūpāpeksayāvyākria-parama-vyoma-kāraneśvarāvasiham vı śva s śvarya lak sanam phalam bhavatı, sa tad anubhūya tatrawa nırasta-samastaıśvarya-tadkevalo älmänam matvä ทเรษเรียรศทเ upādhısıddhır avyākrta-paramavyoma-kāraneśvarātmaka-irtiyāvastham viśvaiśvaryani hitvā, āpta-kāma ātma-kāmah pūrnānandādvitīya-brahma-rūpo vatistliate. diryānād arsvaryam atulam, arsvaryād sukham uitamam, jūānena tai partiyazya videho mukirm āpnuyāt

A distinction is made here between dhyana or meditation which leads to liberation. The former, which is the contemplation of the heart, the rapture of devotion, is a stage to the latter, which is the contemplation of intelligence, the blaze of discernment. So long as the cosmic process continues, the Personal Lord presides over it and the freed individual becomes a co-worker with Him. When the cosmic process terminates, the Personal Lord lapses into the Absolute and so does the freed individual. He knows as does the Lord that he is the manifestation of the Absolute, even when he is functioning in the world.

Io. In a level clean place, free from pebbles, fire and gravel, favourable to thought by the sound of water and other features, not offensive to the eye, in a hidden retreat protected from the wind, let him perform his exercises (let him practise Yoga).

See B G VI. 11, Maitrī VI 30.

The importance of physical surroundings is brought out here Kūrma Purāna mentions jantunyāpta and sašabda as unfitting a place for meditation II. II, MB says narjane vane XIV. 567; also nadīpulinašāyī, nadītīraratis ca XIII 6473 The place for meditation should be noiseless and not noisy. sabda is said to be a mistake for sadā, a place green with young grass etām rūpām purassarām brahmany abhvvyakitkarām yoge.

II Fog, smoke, sun, wind, fire, fireflies, lightning, crystal moon, these are the preliminary forms which produce the manifestation of Brahman in Yoga

We read in the Lankāvatāra Sūtra 'In his exercise, the Yogin sees (imaginatively) the form of the sun or the moon or something looking like a lotus, or the underworld or various forms such as skyfire and the like When all these are put aside and there is a state of imagelessness, then a condition in conformity with suchness (bhūta-tathatā) presents itself and the Buddhas will come together from all their countries and with their shining hands will touch the head of the benefactor'

At first appears a sign like that of a star, then gradually appear a diamond mirror, thereafter a full lunar circle, thereafter a circle of the lustre of the nine germs, thereafter the midday sun, thereafter a circle of flame, then a crystal, a black circle, a dot, sound, digit, star, sun, lamp, eye, the lustre of gold and nine gems are seen

Mystics speak of visions and auditions. Truth is seen through the mirror of human reflection. The mind of man is limited by the nature of its possessor, by the kind of man he is. What thinks is the man, not the mind. Our senses make definite what is in its nature indefinite. We reduce the invisible to our level. As we cannot for long dwell on the heights without suffering from vertigo, we descend to the sense world and use images belonging to it. Though God transcends all forms. He may still use them and convey His presence through them. These images are sent to comfort and instruct us.

This verse makes out that the images are not the subjective activities of the human self Besides, many of these visions have a symbolic character. The words and phrases we use to describe impressions which external things make upon us are employed to describe the events of our spiritual life. It is a process of spiritual materialization Truths of the spiritual life cannot be adequately represented except through symbols Saint Hildegrand (1098-1180) had visions and she repeatedly assures us 'These visions which I saw I beheld neither in sleep nor in dream, nor in madness nor with my carnal eyes, nor with the ears of the flesh, nor in hidden places, but wakeful, alert, with the eyes of the spirit and with the inward ears I perceived them in open view and according to the will of God And how this was compassed is hard indeed for human flesh to search out ' Quoted in Studies in the History and Method of Science, edited by Charles Singer (1917), p 53 Suso, Theresa, Muhammad and many others had these visions

When the fivefold quality of Yoga is produced, as earth, water, fire, air and ether arise then there is no longer sickness, no old age, no death to him who has obtained a body made of the fire of Yoga

This verse and the next emphasise the physical aspects of Yoga Through Yoga we try to build up a healthy and clean body We was to make the very substance of our body incorruptible

Four stages of yoga, ārambha, ghata, paricaya and mispatti are described in verses 13, 14, 15, and 16 respectively. In securing bodily health we have the commencement of the yoga, yoga-praviti. In attaining freedom from sorrow he reaches the second stage. In the third stage the traces of duality disappear, mahā-sūnyam talo bhāti sarva-sidāhi-samāśrayam. In the fourth stage there is the identity of the individual with the Supreme Self. The Yogin does not become disembodied. The elements composing his body are elevated to the level of their subtleness, sūksmatva. He leaves his gross body and attains an indefectible one. It is a consciousness-body akin to that of the Supreme with whom the contemplator has identified himself through meditation.

The Highest Reality is identified with Rudra who is assigned the three functions of creation, protection or maintenance and dissolution

In RV. Rudra is the personnication of the destructive powers of nature, exemplified in storms and lightning. In the later portions of the Veda he is described as Siva, the auspicious, as Mahādeva, the great god. Even in the R.V. it is said that he dwells in mountains, that he has braided hair, that he wears a hide

God does not stand in finite form before the eyes or the mind Finite things serve as symbols enabling us to realise the presence of the divine. These verses demand the recognition of the absolute transcendence of God in relation to the world. The deus absconditus recedes into the distance when we seek to describe him by empirical forms, yet this Upanisad emphasises the personal aspect of the transcendent God. By his own free action man makes his own the ideal which he seeks. Baron Von Hugel quotes from St. Bernard's Tractatus de Gratia et Libero Arbitrio, cap. XIV 47 'That which was begun by Grace gets accomplished alike by both Grace and Freewill so that they operate mixedly not separately, simultaneously not successively, in each and all of their processes. Kausītaki-Brāhmana Upanisad, also called Kausītakī Upanisad¹ does not form a part of the Kausītaki Brāhmana of thirty chapters which has come down to us and the name can be accounted for by treating the Āranyaka of which it forms a part as itself included in the Brāhmana literature of the Rg Veda² Samkara refers to it in several places in his commentary on the Brahma Sūtra and Samkarānanda has commented on it There are various rescensions of the text and the version adopted in Samkarānanda's Dīpikā is followed in this work. The Upaniṣad has four chapters.

Dr S K. Belvalkar has edited the text and given an English translation of the first chapter of this Upanişad 3

I Citra Gängyäyani, verily, wishing to perform a sacrifice chose Äruni He, then, sent his son Svetaketu saying, 'you perform the sacrifice.' When he had arrived, he asked of him, O son of Gautama, is there a hidden place in the world in which you will place me? Or is there another way and will you place me in its world? Then he said, 'I know not this However, let me ask the teacher' Having approached his father, he asked, 'thus has he asked me, how shall I answer? Then he said, 'I, too, know not this Let us learn the study of the Veda at his residence and obtain what others give to us Come, let us both go, 'Then with fuel in hand, he returned to Citra Gängyäyani and said, 'May I come near to you (as a pupil) To him, then, he said, 'you are worthy of the knowledge of Brahman, O Gautama, for you have not gone into conceit Come, I will make you understand' (clearly).

The reference is to the two ways deva-yāna and pitr-yāna Those who travel by the former do not return to a new life on earth but attain liberation by gaining a true knowledge of Brahman, those who travel by the latter to the world of the fathers return to earth to be born again and again

2 Then he said, those who, verily, depart from this world, they all, in truth, go to the moon In the earlier (bright) half, it (the moon) thrives on their breathing spirits, in the latter (dark) half, it causes them to be born (again). The moon, verily, is the door of the world of heaven Whoever answers it (properly), him it sets free (to go to the higher worlds) But whoever answers it not, him having become rain, it rains down here Either as a worm, or as an insect or as a fish or as a bird, or as a lion, or as a boar, or as a snake, or as a tiger, or as a person or as some other in this or that condition he is born again according to his deeds, according to his knowledge, when he comes thither, he asks him, who are you? He should answer From the far-shining, O ye Seasons, the seed was gathered, produced from the fifteenfold from the home of the fathers

(the ancestors) sent me in a man as an agent and with a man as an agent, placed me in a mother I So was I born, being born in the twelfth or thirteenth month united to a father of twelve or thirteen months, for the knowledge of this was I, for the knowledge of the opposite of this Therefore, O ye seasons, bring me on to immortality by this truth, by this austerity I am (like) a season I am connected with the seasons Who are you? (the sage asks again) 'I am you,' he replies Then he sets him free

There are two kinds of knowledge, unto birth, and unto ignorance The former takes us to the path of the gods, the latter to the path of the fathers. Heaven and hell are stages on the journey and belong to the world of time, to a succession of births. Knowledge of Brahman takes us beyond both

THE DOCTRINE OF PRANA (LIFE-BREATH) IDENTITY WITH BRAHMA

- 1. prāņo brahmeti ha smāha kausītakil; tasya ka tā etasya prāņasya brahmaņo mano dūtam, cakṣur goptr, śrotram sam-śrāvayitr, vāk pariveṣtrī; sa yo ha vā etasya prāṇasya brakmaņo mano dūtam veda dūtavān bhavati, yas cakṣur goptr goptrmān bhavati, yah śrotram samśrāvayitr samśrāvayitrnān bhavati, yo vācam pariveṣtrīm pariveṣtrīmān bhavati, tasmai vā etasmai prāṇāya brahmana etāh sarvā devatā āyācamānāya balīm haranti, evam haivāsmai sarvāņi bhūtāny ayācamānāyaiva balīm haranti, ya evam veda tasyopanisan na yāced iti, tad yathā grāmam bhiksitvā'labdhvopavišen nāham ato dattam aśnīyām iti, ta evainam upamantrayante ye purastāt pratyācakṣīran, eṣa dharmo'yācato bhavati, annadās tv etainam upamantrayante, dadāma ta iti.
- 1. The breathing (living) spirit is Brahmā, thus, indeed, Kausītaki used to say. Of this same breathing spirit which is Brahma, the mind, verily, is the messenger; the eye the protector, the ear the announcer, speech the housekeeper. He who, verily, knows the mind as the messenger of this breathing spirit of Brahma becomes possessed of a messenger. He who knows the eye as the protector becomes possessed of a protector. He who knows the ear as the announcer becomes possessed of an announcer, he who knows speech as the housekeeper becomes possessed of a housekeeper. To this same breathing spirit as Brahmā, these divinities (mind, eve. ear. speech) bring offering though he does not beg for it; even so. to this same breathing spirit all beings bring offering even though he does not beg for it. For him who knows this, the doctrinal instruction is 'Do not beg.' As a man who has begged through a village and received nothing sits down saying, 'I shall not eat anything given from here,' and then those who formerly refused him invite him (to accept their offerings), which is the nature of him who does not beg Charitable people, _ however, invite him and say, 'let us give to you.'

In Chapter I the devotee, upās vēa, approaches the couch Amitaujas which is prāna, breath, spirit, life. The nature of frāna as the source of everything, as Brahmā is explained in this chapter. Brahmā with which prāṇa is identified is the creator, jagat-pāranam

Food is the aliment which nourishes body or mind.

2. The breathing spirit is Brahmā, thus indeed Paingya used to say. Of this same breathing spirit as Brahma behind the speech the eye is enclosed, behind the eye the ear is enclosed, behind the ear the mind is enclosed, behind the mind the breathing spirit is enclosed. To this same breathing spirit as Brahma, all these divinities bring offering though he does not beg for it; even so to this same breathing spirit all beings bring offering even though he does not beg for it. For him who knows this, the doctrinal instruction is 'Do not beg.' As a man who has begged through a village and received nothing sits down saying, 'I shall not eat anything given from here,' and then those who formerly refused him invite him (to accept their offerings), such is the nature of him who does not beg Charitable people, however, invite him and say, 'let us give to you.'

If a man covets the highest treasure, either on the night of a full moon or on the night of a new moon or on the bright half of the moon under an auspicious constellation, at one of these periods, having built up a fire, having swept the ground and having strewn the sacred grass, having sprinkled (water) around, having bent the right knee, with a spoon he offers oblations of melted butter 'The divinity named speech is the attainer May it obtain this for me from him Hail to it 'The divinity named breath is the attainer. 'Your eye I sacrifice in me, hail to you' 'Your ear I sacrifice in me, hail to you' 'Your mind I sacrifice in me, hail to you' 'Your wisdom I sacrifice in me, hail to you' Then having inhaled the smell of the smoke, having smeared his limbs with the ointment of melted butter, in silence he should go forth, and seek to come to contact or stand speaking from windward (so that the wind may carry his words to the person) He becomes dear indeed and they think of him indeed

5 Now next self-restraint according to Pratardana or the inner fire sacrifice as they call it As long, verily, as a man is speaking, so long he is not able to breathe. Then he is sacrificing breath in speech As long, verily, as a person is breatling, so long he is not able to speak. Then he is sacrificing speech in breath. These two unending immortal oblations, one is offering continuously, whether waking or sleeping. Now whatever other oblations there are, they have an end for they consist of works. Knowing this very thing, verily, the ancients did not offer the agni-hotra sacrifice.

6 The uklha (recitation) is Brahman, so Suska-bhrngāra used to say, let him meditate on it as the Rg (hymn of praise) unto such a one, indeed, all beings offer praise for his greatness Let him meditate on it as the Yayus (sacrificial formula), unto such a one indeed, all beings get united for his greatness Let him meditate on it as the Saman Unto such a one indeed all beings bow down for his greatness. Let him meditate on it as beauty Let him meditate on it as glory Let him meditate on it as splendour. As this (the uktha) is the most beautiful, the most glorious, the most splendid among the invocations of praise, even so is he who knows this, the most beautiful, the most glorious, the most splendid among all beings So the adhvaryu priest prepares this self which is related to the sacrifice. and which consists of works. In it he weaves what consists of the Yajus In what consists of the Yajus, the hotr priest weaves what consists of the Rg In what consists of the Rg the Udgātr priest weaves what consists of the Saman This is the self of all the threefold knowledge And thus he who knows this becomes the self of Indra

DAILY WORSHIP OF THE SUN FOR THE REMOVAL OF SIN

7 Now next are the three meditations of the all-conquering Kausītaki. The all-conquering Kausītaki, indeed, used to worship the rising sun, having performed the investiture with the sacred thread, having fetched water, having thrice sprinkled the water vessel saying, 'You are a deliverer, deliver me from my "sin". In the same manner he (used to worship the sun) when it was in the middle of the sky saying, 'you are the high deliverer, deliver me highly from sin'. In the same manner he (used to worship the sun) when it was setting saying, 'you are the full deliverer, deliver me fully from sin'. Thus whatever sin he committed by day or by night that he removes fully. And likewise he who knows this worships the sun in the same manner and whatever sin one commits by day or by night, that he removes fully

Then he embraces him saying, 'Even as Prajā-pati embraced his creatures for their welfare so do I embrace you (pronouncing his name)' Then he mutters in his right ear saying, 'Confer on him, O Maghavan, O onrusher,' and whispers in his left ear, 'O Indra, bestow the most excellent possessions. It just lay speaking with speech and seeing with the eye Then the ear entered into it It just lay, speaking with speech, seeing with the eye and hearing with the ear. Then the mind entered into it. It just lay, speaking with the speech. seeing with the eye, hearing with the ear, thinking with the mind Then the vital breath entered into it and then, indeed, it arose at once All these divinities, verily, having recognised the superior excellence of the vital breath, having comprehended the vital breath alone as the self of intelligence, went forth from this body, all these together They, having entered into the air, having the nature of space went to the heavenly world Likewise also, he who knows this, having recognised the superior excellence of the vital breath, having comprehended the vital breath alone as the self of intelligence goes out of this body with all these He, having entered into the air, having the nature of space, goes to the heavenly world. 15 Now next the father and son ceremony or the transmission (of tradition) as they call it The father, when about to depart, calls his son Having strewn the house with new (fresh) grass, having built up the fire, having placed near it a vessel of water with a jug (full of rice), himself covered with a fresh garment the father remains lying. The son, having come, approaches him from above, touching his organs with his organs or the father may transmit the tradition to him while he sits before him. Then he delivers over to him (thus). The father calls out after him 'May fame, spiritual lustre and honour delight in you' Then the other looks over his left shoulder Having hidden his face with his hand or having covered it with the hem of his garment, he says, 'May you obtain heavenly worlds and all desires' If he (father) becomes well (recovers) he should dwell under the authority of his son or wander about (as an ascetic) If, however, he departs, let them furnish him (with obsequies) as he ought to be furnished, as he ought to be furnished

Pratardana, the son of Divodāsa, verily, by means of fighting and effort, arrived at the beloved abode of Indra To him then Indra said, 'Pratardana, choose a boon' Then Pratardana said, Do you yourself choose that boon for me which you deem the most beneficial for mankind' Indra said to him 'A superior verily, chooses not for an inferior Do you yourself choose ' 'No boon, verily, is that to me, said Pratardana Then, however, Indra did not swerve from the truth for Indra, verily, is truth To him then Indra said, 'Understand me only That is what I deem most beneficial for mankind, namely that one should understand me I slew the threeheaded son of Tvastri I delivered the arunmukhas, the ascetics, to the wolves Transgressing many agreements, I killed the people of Prahlada in the sky, the Paulomas in the atmosphere, the Kālakanjas on earth Of me, such as I was then, not a single hair was injured So he who knows me thus, by no deed whatsoever of his is his world injured, not by stealing, not by killing an embryo, not by the killing of his mother, not by the killing of his father If he wishes to commit a sin the dark colour does not depart from his face

Vāmadeva does it according to the R.V. IV. 26. T. The individual self is really one with the Universal Self though unenlightened people are not aware of this unity. Those who know and feel it sometimes speak in the name of the Universal Spirit.

When we attain supreme wisdom and are delivered from the delusion of egotism, our good and evil deeds do not touch us. We have died to the possibility of doing anything evil.

INDRA'S IDENTITY WITH LIFE AND IMMORTALITY

- 2 Indra then said 'I am the breathing spirit, meditate on me as the intelligent self, as life, as immortality. Life is breath and breath is life. For as long as breath remains in the body so long is there life. For indeed with the breathing spirit one obtains immortality in this world, by intelligence true conception. So he who meditates on me as life, as immortality he reaches his full (term of) life in this world and obtains immortality and indestructibility in the heavenly world. Now on this point some say the vital breaths, verily, go into a oneness, (otherwise) no one would be able, at once, to make known a name by speech, a form by the eve, a sound by the ear, a thought by the mind. The vital breaths, after having become one, make known all these one by one. While speech speaks, all the vital breaths speak after it. While the eye sees all, the vital breaths see after it. While the ear hears, all the vital breaths hear after it. When the breath breathes, all the vital breaths breathe after it. Thus is it indeed,' said Indra. 'There is, however (ne continued), a superior excellence amongst the vital breaths.

lives deprived of eye for we see the blind; one lives deprived of ear for we see the deaf; one lives deprived of mind for we see the childish, one lives deprived of arms, one lives deprived of legs for thus we see But now it is the breathing spirit alone. the intelligence self that seizes hold of this body and makes it rise up This, therefore, one should meditate on as the uktha, it is said This is the all-obtaining in the breathing spirit What is the breathing spirit, that is the intelligence-self. What is the intelligence-self, that is the breathing spirit. This is the view thereof, this is the understanding thereof. When a person is so asleep that he sees no dream whatever, he becomes one with that breathing spirit alone. Then speech together with all the names. goes to him; the eye together with all forms goes to it, the ear together with all sounds goes to it, the mind together with all thoughts goes to it When he awakes, even as sparks proceed in all directions from a blazing fire, even so from this self the vital breaths proceed to their respective stations, from the vital powers the gods (the sense powers) and from the gods the worlds This same breathing spirit, the intelligence self seizes hold of the body and makes it rise up This, therefore, one should meditate on as the uktha, it is said. This is the all-obtaining in the breathing spirit What is the breathing spirit, that is the intelligence self, what is the intelligence self, that is the breathing spirit. This is the proof thereof, this is the understanding When a sick person about to die gets to such weakness as to fall into a stupor they say of him, his thought has departed, he does not hear, he does not see, he does not speak with speech, he does not think He becomes one in that breathing spirit alone. Then speech together with all thoughts goes to it. And when he departs from this body, he departs together with all these

4 Speech gives up to him (who is absorbed in life-breath) all names, by speech he obtains all names Breath gives up to him all odours, by breath he obtains all odours. The eye gives up to him all forms, by the eye he obtains all forms. The ear gives up to him all sounds, by the ear he obtains all sounds. The mind gives up to him all thoughts, by the mind he obtains all thoughts. Verily, these two together dwell in the body and together they depart. Now we will explain how all beings become one with this intelligence.

After the account about mind there is the following passage in some texts saisā prāne sarvāphir yo vai prānah sā prajūā yā vā prajūā sa prānah. This is the all-obtaining in the breathing spirit. And what is the breathing spirit, that is intelligence and what is intelligence, that is the breathing spirit.

The two, the vital and the intellectual, live together and depart together

8. Speech is not what one should desire to understand, one should know the speaker Odour is not what one should desire to understand, one should know him who smells (the odour) Form is not what one should desire to understand, one should know the seer (of form) Sound is not what one should desire to understand, one should know the hearer Taste of food is not what one should desire to understand, one should know the discerner of the taste of food The deed is not what one should desire to understand, one should know the doer Pleasure and pain are not what one should desire to understand, one should know the discerner of pleasure and pain Bliss, delight and procreation are not what one should desire to understand, one should know the discerner of bliss, delight and procreation Movement is not what one should desire to understand, one should know the mover Mind is not what one should desire to understand, one should know the minder (the thinker) These ten existential elements are with reference to intelligence The ten intelligence elements are with reference to existence For, truly, if there were no elements of existence, there would be no elements of intelligence Verily, if there were no elements of intelligence, there would be no elements of existence For from either alone no form whatsoever would be possible And this (the self of intelligence) is not many For as in a chariot the felly is fixed on the spokes and the spokes are fixed on the hub, even so these elements of existence are fixed on the elements of intelligence and the elements of intelligence are fixed in the breathing spirit. This same breathing spirit is, truly, the intelligent self, bliss, ageless, immortal He does not become great by good action nor small by evil action This one, truly, indeed causes him whom he wishes to lead up from these worlds to perform good actions This one, indeed, also causes him whom he wishes to lead downward, to perform bad action. He is the protector of the world, he is the sovereign of the world, he is the lord of all He is my self, this one should know, he is my self, this one should know

We should know the subject as also the object Knowing and being are correlated The correlativity of the subjective (prajnā-mātrā) and the objective (bhūla-mātrā) factors is recognised Intermātrā)

In vain indeed did you make me to converse saying, "Let me declare Brahman to you," He, verily, O Bālāki, who is the maker of these persons (whom you have mentioned in succession), he of whom all this is the work, he alone is to be known' Thereupon Bālāki, with fuel in his hand, approached, saying, 'Receive me as a pupil 'To him then Ajātasatru said, 'This I deem a form (of conduct) contrary to nature that a Ksatriya should receive a Brahmana as a pupil Come, I shall make you understand' Then taking him by the hand he went forth The two then came upon a person asleep Then Ajātasatru called him (saying), 'You great one, clad in white raiment, King Soma' But he just lay silent Thereupon he pushed him with a stick He got up at once To him, then, Ajātaśatru said 'Where, in this case, O Bālāki, has this person lain, what has become of him here, from where has he returned here?' Thereupon (of this) Bălāki did not know To him, then, Ajātaśatru said Where, in this case, O Bālāki, this person has lain, what has become of him here, from where has he returned here, as I asked, is the channels of a person called htta extending from heart to the surrounding body (pericardium) As minute as a hair divided a thousandfold, they consist of a thin essence (fluid) white, black, yellow and red. Then in this life-breath alone he becomes one Then speech together with all names goes to it. The eye together with all forms goes to it. The ear together with all sounds goes to it The mind together with all thoughts goes to it And when he awakes, then, as from a blazing fire sparks proceed in all directions, even so from this self the vital breaths proceed to their respective stations, from vital breaths, the sense powers. from the sense powers the worlds This very life-spirit, even the self of intelligence has entered this bodily self to the very hairs and nails Just as a razor might be hidden in a razor-case or as fire in the fireplace, even so this self of intelligence has entered this bodily self up to the very hairs and nails On that self these other selves depend as upon a chief his own (men) Just as a chief enjoys his own (men) or as his own (men) are of service to a chief, even so this sense of intelligence enjoys these (other) selves, even so the (other) selves are of service to that self (of intelligence). Verily, as long as Indra did not understand this self, so long did the demons overcome him When he understood, then (the self) having struck down and overcome the demons, he attained pre-eminence among all gods and all beings, sovereignty and overlordship. So also he who knows this, striking off all evils, attains pre-eminence, sovereignty and overlordship over all beings-he who knows this, yea, he who knows this

MAITRĪ UPANIŞAD

The Maitrī or Maitrāyanīya Upanisad, belongs to the Maitrāyanīya śākhā or branch of the Black Yayır Veda ¹ Maitrī is the principal teacher and Maitrāyana is the name of the śākhā to which the Upanisad belongs It contains seven chapters of which the last two are comparatively modern The whole Upanisad is later in date than the classical Upanisads which it quotes frequently ² We have a reference to the trimūrti conception Brahmā, Visnu and Šiva in IV 5, which also indicates the late date of the Upanisad The three forms are traced to the three gunas, rajas, sattva and tamas in V. 2. Suggestions of the illusory character of the world, momentariness of phenomena show the influence of Buddhist thought. Rāmatīrtha's commentary on the Upanisad is of much interest.

I. A sacrifice to Brahman, indeed, is the laying (of the sacrificial fires) of the ancients. Therefore let the sacrificer, having laid these fires, meditate on the self. Thus, verily, does the sacrifice become complete and flawless. Who is he that is to be meditated upon? He who is called life. Of him there is this story.

pūrvesām: of the ancients or formerly described. The performance of the sacrifices described previously in the Maurāyana Brāhmana is to lead up in the end to the knowledge of Brahman.

According to Rāmatīrtha, the purpose of the Upaniṣad is to show that ceremonial works insofar as they contribute to produce the knowledge of the Supreme Self are themselves indirect causes of the highest end of man: sarveṣām barmaṇām paramālma-jrāna-janmopakārakatvena parama-puruṣārtha-hetutvam darśayitum śrutuh pravavyte.

2 Verily, a king, Brhadratha by name, after having established his son in the kingdom, reflecting that this body is non-eternal, reaching the state of non-attachment (to the things of the world) went into the forest There, performing extreme austenty, he stands, with uplifted arms, gazing at the sun. There are others, superior. We see the destruction of Gandharvas (fairies), Asuras (demons), Yaksas (sprites), Rāksasas (ogres), Bhūtas (ghosts), Ganas, Piśācas (goblins), snakes, vampires, and the like. But, indeed, what of these? Among other things, there is the drying up of great oceans, the falling away of mountain peaks, the deviation of the fixed pole-star, the cutting of the wind-ropes (that hold the stars in their places), the submergence of the earth, the departure of the gods from their station. In such a world as this, what is the good of enjoyment of desires? For he who has fed on them is seen to return (to this world) repeatedly. Be pleased, therefore, to deliver me. In this world (cycle of existence) I am like a frog in a waterless well Revered Sir, you are our way (of deliverance) you are our way

I Then, the revered Sākāyanya, well pleased, said to the king 'Great King Brhadratha, banner of the race of Iksvāku, speedily will you who are renowned as Marut (the wind) attain your purpose and become a knower of the self This, indeed, is thy self'

'Which, O Revered One,' said the King

Then he said to him

dehendriya mano buddhi prānānām madhye kim anyatamah kim vā tad vilaksane anya iti prašnārthah, tatra samghātavilaksana cvālmeti gurur uttaram pratijajñe

The question is raised whether the self is different from the body, the senses, mind, understanding and life and the answer is given that the self is different from the composite of all these

The teaching concerning the self continues till VI 20

Now, indeed, O King, this is the brahma knowledge, even the knowledge contained in all the Upanisads as declared to us by the revered Maitri I will narrate it to you Now we hear that Vālikhilyas were free from evil, of resplendent glory and vigorous chastity. Now they said to Krahi Prajā-pah, 'O Revered One, this body is like a cart without intelligence To what supersensuous being belongs such power by which such a sort of thing has been made intelligent, or in other words, who is its mover? By him this body is set up as possessing intelligence or in other words, this one, verily, is its driver Then they said, 'How, Revered sir, by this kind of desireless being is this sort of thing set up as possessing intelligence, or in other words, how is this one its mover?' 5 Verily, that subtile, ungraspable, invisible one, called the person, dwells here (in the body) with a part (of himself), with previous awareness (volition) even as the man who is fast asleep awakes of his own awareness (volition) Now. assuredly that part of him, which is entirely intelligent in every person is the spirit (knower of the body) which has the marks of conception, determination and self-love, Praja-pati called Visva By him as intelligence is his body set up as possessed of intelligence, or in other words this very one is its mover. Then they said, 'Revered sir, if by this kind of desireless being this sort of thing is set up as possessed of intelligence, still, how is this one its mover?' Then he said to them.

6 Verily, in the beginning Prajā-pati (the lord of creatures) stood alone. He had no happiness, being alone. Then, meditating on himself, he created numerous offspring. He saw them to be like a stone, without understanding, without life, standing like a post. He had no happiness. He then thought to himself, 'Let me enter within in order to awaken (enlighten) them' He made himself like wind and sought to enter into him Being one, he could not do it. He divided himself fivefold and is called prāna, apāna, samāna, udāna, vyāna (five kinds of breath) That breath which rises upwards that, assuredly, is the prana (breath) Now that which moves downwards, that, assuredly, is the apana (breath) Now that, verily, by which these two are supported, that, assuredly, is the vyāna (breath). Now that which carries unto the apana breath gross elements of food and distributes the subtle (elements) in each limb, that, assuredly, is called samana (breath) It is a higher form of the vyana (breath) and between them is the production of the udana (breath) That which brings up or carries down what has been drunk and eaten is the udana (breath). Now the upāmśu vessel is over against the antaryāma vessel and the antaryāma vessel is over against the upāmśu vessel and between these two the god generated heat That heat is the person and the person is the universal fire And thus it is said elsewhere, 'This is the universal fire namely that which is here within a person by means of which the food that is eaten is cooked (digested) Its noise is that which one hears on covering the eyes thus When a man is about to depart this life he does not hear this noise' He, verily, having divided himself fivefold is hidden in a secret place, he who consists of mind, whose body is life, whose form is light, whose conception is truth, whose soul is space Verily, not having attained his purpose, he thought to himself from within the heart here, Let me enjoy objects' Thence having pierced these openings (the five apertures of the senses), he enjoys the objects by means of the five reins. These reins of his are the organs of perception. His horses are the organs of action. His chariot is the body. The character is the mind. The whip is made of one's character. By him thus driven, this body goes round and round like the wheel (driven) by the potter So this body is set up as possessing intelligence or in other words, this very one is its mover,

7. Verily, this self, the seers declare, wanders here on earth in every body (from body to body) unaffected, as it seems, by the light or the dark fruits of action. On account of this unmanifestness, subtility, imperceptibility, ungraspability, freedom from self-sense, (the self) is unabiding and a doer only in seeming, truly is not a doer, he is abiding. Verily, he is pure, steadfast, unswerving, stainless, unagitated, free from desire, remains fixed like a spectator and abiding in his own self As an enjoyer of righteous work he covers himself with a veil made of qualities, but he remains fixed, yea, he remains fixed.

THE GREAT SELF AND THE INDIVIDUAL SOUL

I te hocuh, bhagavan, yady evam asy ātmano mahimānam sūcayasīty anyo vā parah; ko'yam ātmākhyo yo'yam sitāsitaih karma-phalair abhibhūyamānah sad-asad-yonim āpadyatā ity avāūcyordhvā vā gatir dvandvair abhibhūyamānah paribhramati.

They (the Valikhilyas) said (to Praja-pair Kratu), 'Revered One, if you thus indicate the greatness of this self then there is that other, different one also called self, who, affected by the bright or dark fruits of action, enters a good or an evil womb, so that his course is downward or upward and he wanders about, affected by the pairs (of opposites like pleasure

- 2 asti khalvanyo'paro bhūtāimākhyo yo'yam sitāsitaih karmaphalair abhibhuvamanah sad-asad-yonim apadyata ity avañcyordhvā vā gatır dvandvaır abhıbhüyamānah parıbhramatīty asyopavyākhyānam, pañca-tanmātrā bhūta-sabdenocyante, atha pañca-maha-bhūtāni bhūta-sabdenocyanie'tha tesam yai samudayam, tat śarīram siy uktam, atha yo ha khalu vā va śarīra siy uktam sa bhūtāimety uktam, athāmrio'syāimā bindur īva puskarā iti sa vā eso'bhibhūtah prākrtair gunair iti. atho'bhibhūtatvāt sammūdhatvam prayatah, sammudhatvad atmastham prabhum bhaga vantam karayıtaram napasyad gunaughair uhyamanah kalusīkrtas cāsthiras cancalo lupyamānah sasprho vyagras cābhimānitvam prayātā iti, aham so mamedam iti, evam manyamāno nıbadhnaly almanatmanam jäleneva kha-carah kriasyanu phalair abhibhuyamanah sad-asad-yonim apadyala ily avancyordhva va galır dvandvair abhibküyamanah paribhramati katama esa iti tan hovaceti
- 2 There is, indeed, another, different, called the elemental self, he who, affected by the bright or the dark fruits of action, enters a good or an evil womb so that his course is downward or upward and he wanders about affected by the pairs (of opposites). And this is its explanation. The five subtle elements are called by the name element. Likewise the five gross elements are called by the name element. Now the combination of these is called the body. Now he, indeed, who is said to be in the body is called the elemental self. Now its immortal self is like a drop of water on the lotus leaf. This (elemental self) verily, is affected by nature's qualities. Now because of being affected, he gets to bewilderment (becomes confused); because of bewilderment.

he sees not the blessed Lord who dwells in himself, the causer of action Borne along and defiled by the stream of qualities, unstable, wavering, bewildered, full of desire, distracted, he gets to the state of self-love Thinking, 'I am he,' 'This is mine,' he binds himself with his self like a bird in a snare So being affected by the fruits of his action, he enters a good or an evil womb so that his course is downward or upward and he wanders about, affected by the pairs of opposites Which one is this? Then he said to them

śarīram body prānendriyāniah karana-sahita-sūksma-bhūla-samudāyo linga-śarīram, pañcīkṛta-pañca-mahā-bhūta-samudāyah sthūlam śarīram

gunaughair uhyamānā. this refers to the torrent of gunas by which one is swept along Cp Plato's river of sensations, Timaeus 43B and Philo 'river of the objects of sense that swamps and drowns our soul under the flood of the passions until he crosses it' The self is overcome by the gunas and falls into an illusion in which it becomes weak, disordered, sensual and believes in its own separate existence, fettering itself by its own action like a bird in the net

3 And thus it has been said elsewhere Verily, he who is the doer is the elemental self: he who causes to act by means of the organs is the inner person. Now even as a ball of iron, overcome by fire and beaten by workmen takes many forms, the elemental self overcome by the inner person and beaten by the qualities self overcome by the inner person and beaten by the qualities takes many forms. The mode of that form has a fourfold covering, is fourteenfold, is transformed in eighty-four different ways, is a host of beings, is verily manifold. All these varieties, verily, are impelled by the person even as the wheel by the potter. Now, as when a ball of iron is being beaten, the fire is not overcome, even so the person is not overcome. The elemental self is overcome because of its attachment (to qualities)

4 And thus it has been said elsewhere. This body arises from sexual intercourse. It is endowed with growth in darkness. Then it comes forth through the urinary passage. It is built up with bones, smeared over with flesh, covered with skin, filled with faeces, urine, bile, phlegm, marrow, fat, grease and also with many diseases, like a treasure house full of wealth.

5 And then it has been said elsewhere bewilderment, fear, depression, sleepiness, sloth, heedlessness, old age, grief, hunger, thirst (mental), weakness, anger, unorthodoxy, ignorance, jealousy, cruelty, stupidity, shamelessness, meanness, rashness, unequableness, these are the characteristics of the quality of darkness. Inner thirst, affection, passion, covetousness, hurting others, lust, hatred, deceit, envy, insatiability, unsteadfastness fickleness, distractedness, ambitiousness, acquisitiveness, patronage of friends, family pride, aversion to unpleasant objects and over-attachment to pleasant objects, sourness of utterance and gluttonousness, these are the characteristics of the quality of passion. By these he is filled, by these he is affected, therefore the elemental self attains manifold forms, yea, attains (manifold forms)

You are our way (of deliverance) and there is no other. What is the method (rule) by which this elemental self, after leaving this (elemental body) obtains union with the (true) self?' 2 And this it has been said elsewhere. Like the waves in large rivers there is no turning back of that which has been done previously; like the tide of the ocean, the approach of one's death is hard to keep back Like a lame man, bound by the fetters made of the fruits of good and evil, like the condition of a man in prison, lacking independence, like the condition of one in the realm of death, beset by many fears, like one intoxicated with liquor, intoxicated with the liquor of delusion, rushing about like one possessed by an evil spirit, like one bitten by a great serpent, bitten by the objects of sense, like gross darkness, the darkness of passion, like jugglery, consisting of illusion, like a dream, false appearances, like the inside of the banana tree, unsubstantial, like an actor changing dress every moment, like a painted scene, falsely delighting the mind and therefore it has been said, 'Objects of sound, touch and the like are worthless objects for a man,' the elemental self, through attachment to them, does not remember the highest state

3 This is, indeed, the antidote for the elemental self, acquirement of the knowledge of the Veda and the due performance of one's own duty Pursuit of the duties of the stage of life to which each one belongs, this is the rule for one's own duty, others are like the branches of a stem. Through it one goes upwards, otherwise downwards That is one's regular duty which is set forth in the Vedas Not by transgressing one's regular duty does one belong to the stage of life If one says that a man does not belong to any of the stages of life for he is (one) who practises austerity, it is not proper (However) if one does not practise austerity there is no success in the knowledge of the self or in the perfection of works For thus has it been said By austerity goodness is obtained and from goodness understanding is reached and from the understanding is the self obtained and he who obtains the self does not return

6 These are but the chief forms of the Supreme, the immortal, the bodiless Brahman To whichever one each man is devoted here, in his world he rejoices For it has been said, 'Verily, this whole world is Brahman' Verily, these, which are its chief forms one meditates upon, worships and discards For with these one moves higher and higher in the worlds And when all things perish (in universal dissolution), he attains unity of (with) the person, yea, of the person

At the end of this world, at the time of universal dissolution, the lord of this world Hiranya-garbha lapses into the Absolute Brahman Till then individualities are retained by the souls including the world-soul

By the worship of these derties one rises to higher states of being When these forms are resolved he attains to the unity of the Person The different concepts of the Supreme are supports for contemplation Here apparently ends the conversation begun in II 3 between the Välikhilyas and Prajā-pati as derived by tradition from Maitrī and narrated by Sākāyanya to King Brhadratha Sākāyanya's teaching is said to be continued till VI 29, though it evidently is a later addition as undoubtedly chapters VI and VII are, even according to the commentator.

2 Verily, in the beginning this (world) was darkness alone That was in the Highest When impelled by the Highest it moves on to differentiation That form, verily, is passion That passion, when impelled, moves on to differentiation. That, verily, is the form of goodness. That goodness, when impelled, the essence flowed forth. That part is what the intelligence principle in every person is, the knower of the body, which has the marks of conception, determination and self-love, Praja-pair (the lord of creation) called Visva. His forms have been previously mentioned Now then, indeed the part of him which is characterised by darkness that, O students of sacred knowledge, is this Rudra. Now then, indeed, that part of him which is characterised by passion, that, O students of sacred knowledge. is this Brahma Now then, indeed, that part of him which is characterised by goodness, that, O students of sacred knowledge, is this Visnu Verily, that one becomes threefold He developed forth eightfold, elevenfold, twelvefold, in unlimited parts. Because he thus developed, he is a (created) being, he moves about, having entered all beings. He became the lord of (created) beings. That is the self within and without, yea, within and without

The relation of the three forms (mūrii-iraya), to the Supreme is here indicated. The three Brahmā, Visnu and Siva are not to be conceived as independent persons, they are the threefold manifestations of the one Supreme.

visual every one, i.e. every individual. He is not only the sum-total of all existences but is also the principle of the individual being cightfold, etc. The eight forms are the five vital airs, the sun, moon and stars or the last three and the five elements. The eleven are the eleven organs of sense and action and mind. If we make mind and understanding (buddhi), different, we get twelve. It becomes unlimited if we take the endless activities in the various individuals.

INWARD BREATH AND OUTWARD SUN, CORRELATED MANIFESTATIONS OF THE SELF

- I. dvidhā vā esa ātinānam bibharty ayam yah prāno yas cāsā ādityo'tha dvau vā etā asya panthānā antar bahis cāhorātrenaitau vyāvartete, asau vā ādityo bahir ātināntarātinā prāno'to bahir ātmakyā gatyāntarātinano'nunīyate gatir ity evam hy āhātha yah kascidvidvān apahata-pāpmā' ksādhyakso'vadāta-manāstan-nistha āvrtta-caksuh so antarātinakyā gatyā bahir ātināno'nunīyate gatir ity evam ha āha, atha ya eso'ntarāditye hiranmayah puruşo yah pasyatīmām hiranyavasthāt sa eşo'ntare hri-puskara evās-rito'nnam atti
- r He (the self) bears himself in two ways, as he who is breath and he who is the Sun Therefore, two, verily, are these paths, inward and outward They both turn back in a day and night Yonder sun, verily, is the outer self, the inner self is breath. Hence the course of the inner self is measured (inferred from) by the course of the outer self For thus has it been said, 'Now, whoever is a knower, who has freed (himself) from evil, the overseer of the senses, pure-minded, firmly established in that, locking away (from outward objects) is even he (the self) Likewise, the course of the outer self is measured by the course of the inner self For thus has it been said, 'Now that golden person who is within the Sun, who looks on this earth from his golden place is even he who has entered into the lotus of the heart and eats food '

The sixth and seventh chapters are treated as supplementary. The main purpose of the Upanisad is to affirm that there is one Supreme Self to be known and the various forms of Brahmā, Visnu and Siva are only aspects or manifestations of that Supreme Self In these chapters we find references to various modes of worship and means by which spiritual knowledge can be gained. See R V X 00.2

2 Now, he who has entered the lotus of the heart and eats food is the same as that fire of the Sun which enters the sky, called Time the Invisible, who eats all beings as his food What is the lotus and of what is it made? That lotus, assuredly, is the same as space. The four quarters and the four intermediate quarters are its leaves. These two, breath and the Sun, move near each other. Let him reverence them with the syllable aum, with the mystic utterances (bhūh, bhivah, svah) and with the Sāvitrī prayer.

- 3 There are, assuredly, two forms of Brahman, the formed and the formless Now that which is formed is unreal, that which is the formless is the real, that is the Brahman, that is the light That which is the light is the Sun Verily, that came to have aum as its self. He divided himself threefold (for aum consists of three letters (a, u, m). By means of these all this (world) is woven, warp and woof, across him. 6 Now (in the beginning) this (world) was, verily, unuttered When he, the Real, the lord of creation, performed austerity, he uttered (the words) bhūh, bhuvah, svah This, indeed, is Prajā-pati's very gross form, this world-form. Its head is the sky, the navel is the atmosphere, the feet are the earth, the eye is the sun, for a person's great material world depends on the eye, for with the eye he measures all things Verily, the eye is the real for stationed in the eye a person moves about among all objects Therefore one should reverence bhūh, bhuvah, svah, for this Prajā-pati, the self of all, the eye of all, becomes reverenced, as it were For thus has it been said, 'Verily this is the all-supporting form of Prajā-pati, for in it all this (world) is hidden, and it is hidden in this whole (world). Therefore, this is what one should reverence.'

For thus has it been said, Assuredly the self of one's self is called the leader, immortal, perceiver, thinker, the goer, the evacuator, the delighter, the doer, the speaker, the taster, the smeller, the seer and the hearer and he touches He, the all-pervader has entered the body For thus has it been said, Now where knowledge is of a dual nature (implying a subject which knows and an object which is known), there, indeed, one hears, sees, smells, tastes and also touches, the self knows everything Where knowledge, being devoid of effort, cause or action, unspeakable, incomparable, indescribable, what is that? It is impossible to say.

q Therefore, verily, he who knows that this has both these (breath and the sun) as his self, meditates only on his self, sacrifices only to his self, such meditation, the mind absorbed in such practice, is praised by the wise. One should purify the impurity of his mind with the verse 'What has been defiled by the leavings ' He reads the verse Leavings or what has been defiled by leavings and what has been given by a sinner or (what is rendered impure) by a still birth, may the purifying power of Vasu, Agni and of Savitri's rays purify my food and any other that may be evil First (before taking his food), he swathes (his breath) with water Hail to the prana breath, hail to the apana breath, hail to the vyana breath, hail to the samāna breath, hail to the udāna breath With these five invocations, he offers the oblation. Then he eats the remainder, with restrained voice (in silence) Then, afterwards he again swathes with water So, having sipped (the water), having made the sacrifice to the self, he should meditate on the self with the two (formulas) 'As breath and fire,' 'Thou art all' 'As breath and fire, the highest self has entered in with the five airs May he when pleased himself, please all, the enjoyer of all' Thou art all, thou art the Vaisvanara (fire) All that is born is supported by thee. Let all oblations enter into thee There creatures live where thou, the all-immortal art. So he who eats according to this rule comes not again into the condition of food.

In this passage the taking of food is represented as a sacrifice offered by the self to the self ātma-yayāa-rūpam bhojanam.

The formal running of the mouth at the beginning and the end of meals is described here. See C U V 2 pāpena by a sinner, pāpātmanā, patitena yata-vāk with restrained voice, maint viśva-bhuk the enjoyer of all, viśvam bhunakti, pālayati viśvāmṛtah all-immortal, viśvam amṛtayasi jīvayasīli viśvāmṛtah comes not again into the condition of food. 10. Now, there is something else to be known There is a further development of this self-sacrifice, namely, what concerns the food and the eater thereof The further explanation of this (follows) The conscious person abides within nature He is the enjoyer for he enjoys (feeds on) the food (supplied by) of nature This elemental self, verily, is food for him, its maker is nature Therefore, that which is to be enjoyed consists of the three qualities and the enjoyer is the person who stands within Here the evidence is what is observed (by the senses) Since animals spring from seed and as seed is the food, by this is explained that nature is what is to be enjoyed. Therefore, the person is the enjoyer, nature is what is to be enjoyed Abiding in it, he enjoys All that begins with the intellect and ends with the elements, being a transformation of the distinction of nature with its three qualities is the sign (that there must be a self) And by this, the fourteenfold course is explained This world is indeed the food, called pleasure, pain and delusion There is no apprehension of the taste of the seed (cause) so long as there is no production (of effect). And in its three conditions also it has the character of food, as childhood, youth and old age. There is in them the character of food, on account of transformation Thus as nature moves to the state of becoming manifest, there arises the perception of it. For the tasting (of the effects of nature) arise intellect and the like, determination, conception and self-love. Then there are the five objects of sense, for the tasting of them Thus arise all actions of organs and actions of senses Thus the manifest is food and the unmanifest is food. The enjoyer of it is without qualities (but) from the fact of his being an enjoyer it is evident that he possesses consciousness As fire, verily, is the eater of food among the gods and Soma is the food, so he who knows this eats food by fire. The elemental self is called Soma He who has the unmanifest as his mouth is called Agni because of the saying, 'The person truly with the unmanifest as his mouth enjoys the three qualities' He who knows this is a renouncer, a contemplator, a performer of the self-sacrifice. Even as there is no one to touch sensual women who have entered into an empty house, so he who does not touch objects of sense that enter into him is a renouncer, a contemplator, a performer of the self-sacrifice.

14 And thus it has been said elsewhere Food, verily is the source of this whole (world), and time of food, and the Sun is the source of time The form of it (time) is the year, which is composed of moments (twinklings) and other measures of time, and which consists of twelve months Of it one half (when the Sun moves northward, belongs to Agm, the (other) half (when the sun moves southward) belongs to Varuna The course from the asterism Magha (the sickle) to half of Sravistha (the drum) belongs to Agni In its northward course from Sarpa (the serpent) to half of Sravistha belongs to the moon Among these each month of the self (named as the year) includes nine quarters according to the corresponding course (of the Sun through the asterism) Because of its subtilty (imperceptibility of senses) this (course of the Sun) is the proof for only in this way is time proved (to exist) Without proof there is no apprehension of the thing to be proved However the thing to be proved may become proved from the fact of its containing parts and for the sake of making itself known For this it has been said, As many parts of time as there are, through this the yonder (sun) moves He who worships time as Brahmā from him time moves away very far For this has it been said. 'From time all beings flow, from time they advance to growth; in time they obtain rest (they disappear) Time is formed and formless too.'

Half the year is uttarāyana, belongs to Agni, ausnya-pradhānaivāt, and the other half daksinayana belongs to Varuna, jala-pradhanaina The two periods are predominantly warm and moist respectively sarpam the asterism of Aslesa, sacred to the surpents, sarpa-devaly am āślesā-naksatram.

15. There are, verily, two forms of Brahman, time and the timeless. That which is prior to the sun is the timeless, without parts But that which begins with (has a beginning from) the Sun is time, which has parts. Verily, the form of that which has parts is the year. From the year, verily, are these creatures produced By the year, verily, after having been produced they grow. In the year they disappear. Therefore, the year, verily, is Prajā-pati, is time, is food, is the abode of Brahman, is the self. For thus has it been said 'Time cooks (ripens) all things, indeed, in the great self He who knows in what time is cooked, he is the knower of the Veda.'

r6 This embodied (incarnate) time is the great ocean of creatures. In it abides he who is called Savitr (the Sun as begetter) from whom, indeed, are begotten the moon, stars, planets, the year and the rest. And from them comes this whole (world) here and whatever of good or evil is seen in this (world) comes from them. Therefore, Brahman is the self of the Sun. Therefore one should reverence the Sun under the name of time. Some say the Sun is Brahman and thus is it said. 'The offerer (of the sacrifice), the enjoyer (of the sacrifice), the oblation, the hymn, the sacrifice, Visnu, Prajā-pati all this is the lord, the witness who shines in yonder orb.'

Verily, in the beginning this world was Brahman, the infinite one, infinite in the east, infinite in the south, infinite in the west, infinite in the north and above and below, infinite in every direction For him, indeed, east and the other directions exist not nor across, nor below, nor above Incomprehensible is that Supreme Self, unlimited, unborn, not to be reasoned about, not to be thought of (unthinkable), he whose self is space. At the dissolution of all he alone remains awake. Thus from that space, he awakes this (world) which consists of thought only. By him alone is all this meditated on and in him it is dissolved. He is that luminous form which gives heat in the yonder sun, the wonderful light on the smokeless fire, as also the fire in the stomach which cooks (digests) food. For thus has it been said, He who is in the fire, and he who is here in the heart and he who is yonder in the sun—he is one. He who knows this goes to the oneness of the one

18 This is the rule for achieving this (oneness), control of the breath, withdrawal of the senses, meditation, concentration, contemplative inquiry and absorption, (this is) said to be the sixfold yoga. When, by this (yoga) he beholds the gold-coloured maker, the lord, the person, the Brahmā source, then the sage, shaking off good and evil, makes everything into oneness in the supreme indestructible. For thus has it been said, 'As beasts and birds do not resort to a burning mountain, so sins do not find shelter in those who know Brahman'

Yoga is the means by which we control the mind citta-vasikaro

npāyah See Yoga Sūtra II 29 Withdrawal of the senses from their objects is pratyāhāra indriyānām visayebhyah pratyāharanam pratinivartanam pratyāhārah

Contemplative inquiry or tarka is savikalpaka-samādhi. It may also mean an inquiry whether the mind has become transformed or not into the object of meditation or an investigation into the hindrances of concentration caused by the inferior powers acquired by meditation

pasyati beholds By means of yoga we achieve direct perception of the Supreme, sāksād anubhavati See MU III. 1 3

Thence he goes to selflessness' On account of selflessness, he is not (ceases to be) an experiencer of pleasure and pain. He obtains aloneness. For thus has it been said 'Having first fixed the breath that has been restrained, having crossed the limit, let him join the limitless in (the crown of) the head.'

22 And thus it has been said elsewhere: 'There are, verily, two Brahmans to be meditated upon, sound and non-sound By sound alone is the non-sound revealed Now here the sound is aum Moving upward by it one comes to ascend in the nonsound So (one says) this is the way, this is immortality, this is complete union and also tranquillity. And now as the spider moves upward by the thread, obtains free space, thus assuredly, indeed the meditator moving upward by the syllable aum obtains independence.' Other expounders of the sound (as Brahman) think otherwise By closing the ears with the thumbs they hear the sound of the space within the heart. There is the sevenfold comparison of it, like rivers, a bell, a brass vessel, a wheel, the croaking of frogs, rain, as when one speaks in a still place Having passed beyond this variously characterised (sound), they disappear (become merged) in the supreme, the non-sound, the unmanifest Brahman There they are uncharacterised and indistinguishable like the various juices that have reached the condition of honey. For thus has it been said, There are two Brahmans to be known, the sound Brahman and what is higher. Those who know the sound Brahman get to the higher Brahman'

The mind is its point, darkness is the mark Having pierced through the darkness, one goes to what is not enveloped in darkness. Then having pierced through what is thus enveloped one sees Brahman who sparkles like a wheel of fire, of the colour of the sun, full of vigour, beyond darkness, that which shines in yonder sun, also in the moon, in the fire, in the lightning And having seen Him assuredly, one goes to immortality? For thus has it been said 'Meditation is directed to the highest being within and to the (outer) objects Hence the unqualified understanding becomes qualified But when the mind is dissolved and there is the bliss of which the witness is the self, that is Brahman, the immortal, the radiant, that is the way That indeed is the (true) world'

27 And thus it has been said elsewhere. Verily, this is the heart of Brahman, the supreme, the immortal, the bodiless, even the warmth of the body. For that (heat) this (body) is the ghee (melted butter) Although it is manifest, verily, it is hidden in the space of the heart. Then by intense concentration they disperse the space within the heart that the light, as it were of that (heat) appears. Then one passes speedily into the same condition (of light) even as a ball of iron that is hidden in the earth passes speedily into the condition of earthiness. As fire and brass smiths and the like do not trouble about the ball of iron that is in the condition of earth, so does thought disappear together with its support. And thus it is said, 'The store house which consists of the space in the heart, the blissful, the supreme abode, is our self, our Yoga (goal) too and this the heat of fire and sun' for that this body is the ghee the splendour of Brahman which is otherwise unmanifested is manifested, even as fire blazes up by contact with ghee

Having passed beyond the elements, the senses and the objects of sense and then having seized the bow, whose string is the life of a mendicant, and whose stick is steadfastness and having struck down, with the arrow which consists of freedom from self-conceit. the first guardian of the door to Brahma, (who has) bewilderment as his crown, greed and envy as his ear-rings, sloth, sleep and impurity as his staff, the cord of self-love, who seizes the bow whose string is anger, whose stick is lust, who slays beings here with the arrow that consists of desires, having slain him, having crossed over with the raft of the syllable aum to the other side of the space in the heart, in the inner space which gradually becomes manifest one should enter the half of Brahmā as a miner seeking minerals enters into the mine Then let him disperse the fourfold sheath of Brahmā by the teaching of his spiritual perceptor. Henceforth being pure, clean, void (of being), tranquil, breathless, selfless, endless, undecaying, steadfast, eternal, unborn, independent, he abides in his own greatness Thereafter, having seen (the self) which abides in his own greatness, he looks down on the wheel of births and deaths as on a revolving wheel (of a chariot) For thus has it been said. If a man practises yoga for six months and is constantly freed (from the world) then the infinite supreme, mysterious Yoga is accomplished. But if a man, though well-enlightened, is afflicted with passion and darkness, if he is attached to son, wife and family, for such a one, no, never at all.'

29. Having thus spoken (to Brhadratha) Sākāyanya with his heart (fixed) on the inner self bowed before him and said, by this brahma knowledge, did the sons of Prajā-pati ascend the path of Brahman By the practice of Yoga one gains contentment, endurance of the dualities (of pleasure and pain) and tranquility Let no one declare this most secret doctrine to any one who is not a son, who is not a pupil, who is not of a tranquil (mind) To one who is devoted to none other (than his teacher) to one endowed with all qualities, one may give it

30 Aum One should be in a pure place, himself pure, abiding in goodness, studying the real, speaking of the real, meditating on the real, sacrificing to the real Henceforth absorbed in the real Brahman is he who yearns for the real, becomes another He has the reward of having his bonds (fetters) cut, becomes void of expectation, is freed from fear in regard to others as in regard to himself, void of desire, he remains, having attained imperishable and immeasurable happiness Verily, freedom from desire is, as it were, the highest prize from the choicest treasure For a person who is made up of all desires, who has the marks of determination, conception and self-love is bound He who is the opposite of that is liberated On this point, some (the Sāmkhyas) say, it is the quality which, through the force of the differentiation of nature, binds the self with determination (and the like) and from the destruction of the fault of determination (and the like) liberation (results) It is with the mind, verily, that one sees It is with the mind that one hears Desire, conception, doubt, faith and lack of faith, steadfastness and lack of steadfastness, shame, meditation, fear, all this is truly mind Borne along and defiled by the stream of qualities, unsteady, fickle, bewildered, full of desire, distracted, one gets into the state of self-love In thinking I am he, this is mine, he binds himself with himself as a bird in a snare Hence a person who has the marks of determination, conception and self-love is bound. He who is the opposite of that is liberated Therefore stand free from determination, free from conception, free from self-love This is the mark of liberation This is the path to Brahman in this world. This is the opening of the door here in this world Through it one will go to the farther shore of darkness for therein are all desires contained

(fulfilled) On this point they quote, 'When the five forms (of sense) of knowledge along with the mind stand still and the intellect stirs not, that, they say, is the highest state ' Having spoken thus, Sākāyanya had his heart (fixed) on the inner self Then Marut having bowed before hun and properly honoured him, having obtained his end, departed by the northern course of the sun for there is no way thither by a side-path. This is the path to Brahma here in the world. Bursting open the door of the sun, he rose on high and departed On this point they quote, Endless are the rays of him, who, like a lamp, dwells in the heart, white and black, brown and blue, tawny and pale red One of them leads upwards piercing the solar orb, by it, crossing the world of Brahma they go to the highest path. The other hundred rays lead upwards also and through them (the worshipper) reaches the abiding-places of the gods. But the rays of dim colour which manifestly lead downwards by them one wanders here helplessly for experiencing (the fruits of) his deeds Therefore, the yonder blessed sun is the cause of creation, of heaven and of final emancipation '

31. (One asks) Of what nature, verily, are these senses that go forth (towards their objects)? Who is the one that sends them out here and who restrains them? Another answers they are of the nature of self for the self is he who sends forth and restrains them There are enticing objects of sense and there are what are called the luminous rays Now the self feeds on objects by the five rays Who is the self? He who has been defined as pure, clean, void, tranquil and of other marks He is to be apprehended by his own marks. Some say that the mark of him who is without any mark is as heat and anything pervaded by it are to fire, or what the most agreeable taste is to water, others say that it is speech, hearing, sight, mind, breath, others say that it is understanding, steadfastness, memory, wisdom Now, verily, these are the marks of him even as the sprouts here are the mark of a seed, as smoke, light and sparks are the marks of a fire On this point they quote As indeed the sparks from fire, and likewise as the rays from the sun, living creatures and the rest in proper order again and again proceed from him here on earth

See II 4, VI 28, ŜU VI 13, AU III 2, BU IV 4 18, Kena 2 The sprout reminds us of the invisible seed, bhūmyaniargalatayā'dršyasya sad-bhāva-jūāpakā ankurā Even so from the manifestations of self we infer the reality of self 33 Verily, this (garhapatya sacrificial) fire with its five bricks is the year For that the bricks are these, spring, summer, the rainy season, autumn, winter So it has a head, two wings, a back and a tail. In the case of one who knows the person, this earth is Praja-patr's first sacrificial pile. With its hands it raises the sacrificer to the atmosphere and offers him to Vayu (the wind) Wind, verily, is breath Breath is the fire (daksināgni) For that the bricks are these, the prana breath, the vyana breath, the apāna breath, the samāna breath and the udāna breath So it has a head, two wings, a back and a tail In the case of one who knows the person, this atmosphere is Prajā-pati's second sacrificial pile With its hands it raises the sacrificer up to the sky and offers him to Indra Verily, Indra is yonder sun He is this (third ahavanīya) fire For that the bricks are these, the Rg Veda, the Yajur Veda, the Sāma Veda (the hymns of the), Atharvans and Angirasas, legendary stories, ancient lore, so it has a head, two wings, a back and a tail In the case of one who knows the person, this sky is Praja-pati's third sacrificial pile With its hands it presents the sacrificer to the knower of the self Then the knower of the self raises him up and offers him to Brahma There he becomes blissful and joyful.

The three fires which are used in religious sacrifices are treated as three sacrificial piles erected by $Praj\bar{a}$ -pah the lord of creation on earth, the atmosphere and the sky. The year, the wind and the sun rule in these three regions They raise the sacrificer to the next higher stage until, finally, he reaches Brahmā

34 The earth is the garhapatya fire, the atmosphere is the dakşına fire and the sky the āhavanīya fire Hence they are (called) the pure, the purifying, the bright By this the sacrifice is made manifest. Since the digestive fire is the combination of the pure, the purifying and the bright, therefore this fire should be worshipped with oblations, is to be built (with bricks). is to be praised, is to be meditated upon The sacrificer, when he takes the oblation seeks (to perform) his meditation of the divinity thus. 'The bird of golden hue abides in the heart and in the sun, a diver-bird, a swan, of surpassing radiance. Let us worship him in the fire 'Having recited, one discerns the meaning of this verse, the adorable splendour of Savitri should be meditated upon by him, who, abiding in his understanding, meditates thereon Here he reaches the place of tranquillity for the mind He places it in the self, indeed, on this point there are these verses. Even as fire without fuel becomes extinct in its own place, even so thought, by the cessation of activity becomes extinct in its own source. Even in a mind which seeks the truth and has quieted down in its own place, there arise false ideas due to past acts when deluded by the objects of sense One's own thought, indeed, is samsāra; let a man cleanse it by effort What a man thinks, that he becomes, this is the eternal mystery For by the scremty of one's thought, one destroys all actions, good or bad Dwelling within the self, with a serene self, he enjoys imperishable happiness. If the thought of man is so fixed on Brahman as it is on the things of this world, who will not then be free from bondage? The mind, it is said, is of two kinds, pure and impure, impure from contact with desire and pure when freed from desire By freeing mind from sloth and distraction and making it motionless, he becomes delivered from his mind (reaches mindlessness), then that is the supreme state So long should the mind be restrained in the heart till it reaches its end, that is knowledge, that is liberation All else is but extensions of the knots that bind us to this life The happiness of a mind whose stains are washed away by concentration and who has entered the self, it cannot be here described by words It can be grasped by the inner organ (only) One cannot distinguish water in water, fire in fire or ether in ether, even so he whose mind has entered in, he is released completely Mind, in truth, is the cause of bondage and liberation for mankind; for bondage if it is bound to objects, freedom from objects, that is called liberation Therefore, for those who do not perform the agnihotra sacrifice, who do not build up the fire, who are ignorant, who do not meditate, the remembering of the ethereal (heavenly) place of Brahman is obstructed Therefore that fire should be worshipped with oblations, should be built (with bricks), is to be praised, is to be meditated upon

He who knows this, is the knower, he knows the difference, having grasped the oneness, he becomes identified with it They who rise forth perpetually like spray drops (from the sea) like lightnings from the light within the clouds in the highest sky, they, by virtue of their entrance into the light of glory appear like crests of flame in the track of fire.

36 Verily, indeed, of the Brahma light there are these two forms, one, the tranquil and the other the abounding Now of that which is tranquil, space is the support, of the other which is the abounding, food here is the support Therefore one should offer sacrifice in the sacrificial altar with sacred hymns, herbs, ghee, flesh (sacrificial), cakes, boiled rice and the like, and also with food and drink cast into the mouth, knowing the mouth to be the ahavaniya fire for the sake of abundance of vigour, for winning the world of sanctity and for immortality On this point they quote. He who is desirous of heaven should offer the agmhotra sacrifice One wins the kingdom of Yama by the agnistoma sacrifice, the kingdom of the moon by the uktha, the kingdom of the Sun by the sixteen-day sacrifice, the kingdom of independence by the attraira sacrifice, the Kingdom of Praja-pate by the sacrifice which continues to the end of a thousand years As the continued existence of a lamp is because of the union of wick, support and oil, so also the self and the bright (sun) continue to exist because of the union of the Inner One and the world egg.

Even as the lamp burns so long as there is oil to be consumed so the light of Brahman remains divided as the individual soul and the Sun so long as the latent brightness of previous actions in the incorporated being and in the world are not exhausted. If the Sun is taken as the symbol of the cosmic process it means that the process will continue until all men are liberated.

38 He who performs the agnihoira sacrifice rends the net of selfish desire. Then having cut through bewilderment he does not approve of anger Meditating on desire, he cuts through the fourfold sheath of Brahmā. Thence he goes to the highest space. There having broken through the spheres of the sun, of the moon, of the fire and of the pure being, he, then, being purified himself, he sees the intelligence which abides in the pure being, immovable, immortal, indestructible, enduring, bearing the name of Visnu, the ultimate abode, endowed with love of truth (or the desires) and omniscience, independent, which stands in its own greatness. On this point they quote. In the midst of the sun stands the moon, in the midst of the moon, the fire, in the midst of fire stands pure being, in the midst of pure being stands the indestructible one.

meditated on him who is of the measure of a thumb within the span (of the heart) in the body, who is smaller than the small, then one goes to the supreme condition. For in that all desires are contained On this point they quote: Having the measure of a thumb within the span in the body like the flames of a light burning twofold or threefold, the Brahmā who is praised, the great god, has entered (all) the worlds Aum, adoration to Brahmā, yea, adoration.

7 And he, verily, is the self within the heart, very subtile, kindled like fire, endowed with all forms Of him all this is food. In him are woven creatures here. He is the self which is free from evil, ageless, deathless, sorrowless, free from uncertainty, free from fetters, whose conception is the real, whose desire is the real. He is the supreme lord, he is the ruler of beings, he is the protector of beings. He is the determining bridge. This self, verily, is the lord, the beneficent, the existent, the terrible, the lord of creation, creator of all, the golden germ, truth, life, spirit, the ruler, the unshaken, the pervader, Nārāyana. He who is in the fire, he who is here in the heart, he who is yonder in the sun, he is one. To thee who art this, endowed with all forms hidden in the real space, be adoration.

8. Now then, the hindrances to knowledge, O King, This is indeed the source of the net of delusion, the association of one who is worthy of heaven with those who are not worthy of heaven, that is it Though it is said that there is a grove before them, they cling to a low shrub. Now there are some who are always hilamous, always abroad, always begging, always making a living by handicraft And others there are who are beggars in town, who perform sacrifices, for the unworthy, who are the disciples of Sudras and who, though Sudras, are learned in the scriptures And others there are who are wicked, who wear their hair in a twisted knot, who are dancers, who are mercenaries, travelling mendicants, actors, those who have been degraded in the King's service And others there are who, for money, profess that they can allay (the evil influences) of Yaksas (sprites), Rāksasas (ogres), ghosts, goblins, devils, serpents, imps and the like And others there are who, under false pretexts, wear the red robe, earrings and skulls. And others there are who love to distract the believers in the Veda by the jugglery of false arguments, comparisons and paralogisms, with these one should not associate These creatures, evidently, are thieves and unworthy of heaven. For thus has it been said The world bewildered by doctrines that deny the self, by false comparisons and proofs does not discern the difference between wisdom and knowledge

9 Verily, Brhaspati (the teacher of the gods) became Sukra (the teacher of the demons) and for the security of Indra and for the destruction of the demons created this ignorance By this (they) declare the mauspicious to be auspicious and the auspicious to be inauspicious. They say that there should be attention to the (new) law which is destructive of the (teaching of the) Vedas and the other scriptures Therefore one should not attend to this teaching It is false It is like a barren woman. Mere pleasure is the fruit thereof as also of one who has fallen from the proper course. It should not be attempted For thus has it been said Widely opposed and divergent are these two, the one known as ignorance, and the other as knowledge I (Yama) think that Naciketas is desirous of obtaining knowledge and many desires do not rend you He who knows at the same time knowledge and ignorance together, having crossed death by means of ignorance he wins the immortal by knowledge Those who are wrapped up in the midst of ignorance, fancying themselves alone wise and learned, they wander, hard smitten and deluded like blind men led by one who is himself blind

10 Verily, the gods and the demons, being desirous of (knowing) the self went into the presence of Brahmā Having bowed before him they said, Revered Sir, we are desirous of (knowing) the self, so do you tell us. Then, after having reflected a long while, he thought in himself. Verily, these demons are desirous of a self different (from the true one) Therefore, a very different doctrine was told to them On that these deluded (demons) here live their life, with intense attachment, destroying the means of salvation and praising what is false. They see the false, as if it were true, as in jugglery. Therefore what is set forth in the Vedas, that is the truth On what is said in the Vedas, on that wise men live their life. Therefore a Brāhmana should not study what is not of the Veda This should be the purpose

II Verily, the nature of the ether within the space (of the heart) is the same as the supreme bright power. This is manifested in a threefold way, in fire, in the sun and in the breath of life Verily, the nature of the ether within the space (of the heart) is the same as the syllable aum. With this syllable, indeed, that (light) rises up (from the depths) goes upwards and breathes forth Verily, it becomes for ever, the support of the meditation on Brahma In the breathing, that (bright power) has its place in the heart that casts forth light In the breathing that is like the action of smoke, for when there is breathing the smoke rises to the sky in one column and follows afterwards one branch after another That is like throwing salt into water, like heat in melted butter, like the range (of the thought) of a meditator On this point they quote, now, why is it said to be lightning? Because in the very moment of going forth it lights up the whole body Therefore one should meditate with the syllable aum that boundless light The person who is in the eye, who abides in the right eye, he is Indra and his wife abides in the left eye The union of these two (takes place) within the hollow of the heart and the lump of blood which is there is indeed the life-vigour of these two. There is a channel extending from the heart up to the eye and fairly fixed there That is the channel which serves both of them, by being divided in two though but one The mind stirs up the fire of the body; that stirs the wind The wind, then moving through the chest produces the low sound As brought forth in the heart, by contact with the fire of friction it is smaller than the smallest, it becomes double (the minimum size) in the throat, know that it is treble on the tip of the tongue and when it comes forth they call it the alphabet. The seer does not see death, nor sickness, nor any sorrow The seer sees the all and becomes all everywhere He who sees with the eye, who moves in dreams, who is sound asleep and he who is beyond the sound sleeper, these are a person's four distinct conditions. Of these the fourth is greater than the rest. Brahman with one quarter moves in the three and with three-quarters in the last. For the sake of expenencing the true and the false the great self has a dual nature, yea, the great self has a dual nature.

SUBĀLA UPANISAD

This Upanisad belongs to the Sukla Yapur Veda and is in the form of a dialogue between the sage Subāla and Brahmā, the creator God. It discusses the nature of the universe and the character of the Absolute I

THE ORIGIN OF THE WORLD AND OF THE FOUR CASTES

I tad āhuh, kım tad āsīt, tasmaı sa hovāca, na san nāsan na sad asad ıtı, tasmāt tamah samjāyate, tamaso bhutādıh, bhūtādeh ākāšam, ākāšād vāyuḥ, vāyor agnıh, agner āpaḥ, adbhyah prthivī; tad andam samabhavat; tat samvatsara-mātram usıtvā dvidhākarot, adhastād bhūmım, uparıstād ākāsam, madhye puruso divyah, sahasra-šīrsā purusah, sahasrākṣah, sahasra-pāt, sahasra-bāhur iti soʻgre bhūtānām mrtyum asrjat, tryakṣaram, trisiraskam, tripādam khandaparasum, tasya brahmābhidheti, sa brahmānam eva vivesa, sa mānasān sapta-putrān asrjat, te ha virājah satya mānasān asrjan, te ha prajā-patayo brāhmano'sya mukham āsīd, bāhū rājanyah krtaḥ, ūrū tad asya yad vaisyah, padbhyām śūdro ajāyata.

I (He) discoursed on that What was there then? To him (Subāla) he (Brahmā) saud It was not existent, not nonexistent, neither existent and non-existent. From that emerged darkness, from darkness the subtle elements, from the subtle elements ether, from ether air, from air fire, from fire water, from water earth, then there came into being the egg; that (egg) after incubation for a year split in two, the lower one being the earth and the upper one being the sky; in the middle (between the two parts) there came into being the divine person, the person with a thousand heads, a thousand eyes, a thousand feet and a thousand arms. This (person) created death the foremost of all beings, the three-eyed, three-headed and threefooted Khandaparasu. Of him Brahmā became afraid. He got hold of Brahmā alone He (Brahmā) created seven sons out of his mind These (seven) created in their turn, out of their minds, seven sons filled with truth These are, verily, the Praja-patis Out of his (the divine person's) mouth came forth the Brahmanas, out of his arms were made the Rajanyas (the Ksatriyas), out of his (two) thighs the Vaisyas were produced and from his feet came forth the Sudras

From his mind came the moon, and from his eyes came the sun and from his ear came forth air and the vital principle From his heart sprang forth all this

In the beginning was the formless state which cannot be described as either existent or non-existent or as both Cp RV Nasadiya Sükta X 129

The first existent was darkness, the principle of objectivity, the void which has to be illumined

The egg is the world-form and the person is the world-spirit Earth and heaven are generally represented as the two forces whose interaction produces the manifold universe

characteristic of the cosmic process

I From the apāna of the Person (sprang forth) the Nisādas (forest tribes) as also the Yaksas, the Rāksasas and the Gandharvas, from the bones the mountains, from the hairs herbs and trees of the forest, from the forehead Rudra, the embodiment of anger Of this great person's outbreathing are the Rg Veda, the Yajur Veda, the Sāma Veda, the Atharva Veda, Siksā (pronunciation), Kalpa Sutras, grammar, lexicography, prosody, the science of the movements of the heavenly bodies, the Nyāya logic, investigation of the rules of conduct and nature of reality, the codes of conduct, commentaries and sub-commentaries and all other things relating to all beings

That light of gold (the world-spirit) in whom are reflected the self and all the worlds, (he) split his own form into two, half female and half male. Becoming a celestial he created the celestials, becoming a seer he created seers and similarly the Yaksas, the Rāksasas, the Gandharvas, village folk, and forest dwellers and animals he created, the one a cow, the other a bull, the one a mare, the other a stallion, the one a she-ass. the other a he-ass, the one the earth goddess, the other the lord of the world (Visnu) At the end he, (the same world spirit) becoming Vaisvānara, completely burns all existing things (dissolves the world), earth dissolves in water, water dissolves in fire, fire dissolves in air, air dissolves in ether, ether in the senses, the senses in the subtle elements, the subtle elements dissolve in their subtile sources, the subtile sources dissolve in the principle of mahat, the principle of mahat dissolves in the principle of the Unmanifested and the principle of the Unmanifested dissolves in the Imperishable The Imperishable dissolves in the darkness. The darkness becomes one with the transcendent (Brahman) Beyond the transcendent there is no (other) existence nor non-existence nor both existence and non-existence This is the doctrine relating to liberation This is the doctrine of the Veda; this is the doctrine of the Veda.

I In the beginning this was non-existent. He who knows (the Brahman) as unborn, uncaused, unestablished (in anything else), devoid of sound, devoid of touch, devoid of form. devoid of taste, devoid of smell, imperishable, not dense, not prodigious, originless, as one's own self (he), sorrows not That which is lifeless, mouthless, earless, speechless, mindless, splendourless, devoid of name and clan, headless, devoid of hands and feet, devoid of attachment, devoid of glowing redness (like fire), immeasurable, not short, not long, not gross, not minute (like a speck), not small, not great, not definable, not obscure. not demonstrable, not manifest, not shrouded, without an interior, without an exterior It does not feed on anything nor does anything feed on it One should attain this (Brahman) by recourse to the six means of truthfulness, charity, austerity, fasting, chastity (of mind and body) and complete indifference to worldly objects (renunciation of all objects which do not help the attainment of the knowledge of the self) One should also attend to the following three, self-control, charity and compassion The pranas (vital airs) of this (knower of Brahman) do not go out; even where he is they get merged He who knows thus, becoming Brahman remains as Brahman alone

See BU III 8 8

Brahman is described in negative terms and the means for its attainment are mentioned. While this is the ultimate reality, the world can be accounted for by the concepts of the Supreme Person and the world-spirit

I In the centre of the heart is a lump of flesh of red colour. In it the dahara of the white lotus blooms with its petals spread in different directions like the red lotus. There are ten hollows in the heart. In them are established the (chief) vital airs When the individual soul is yoked with the prana breath, then he sees rivers and cities, many and varied. When voked with the vyāna breath, then he sees gods and seers. When yoked with the apana breath then he sees the Yaksas, the Raksasas and the Gandharvas When yoked with the udana breath, then he sees the heavenly world and the gods, Skanda, Jayanta and others When yoked with the samana breath, then he sees the heavenly world and wealth (of all kinds). When yoked with the varrambha, then he sees what he has (formerly) seen, what he has (formerly) heard, what he has (formerly) enjoyed or not enjoyed, whatever is existent or non-existent. In fact he sees all (in the waking state) (In the subtle sheath) these branch into ten branches of ten each. Out of each of these branch out seventy-two thousands of nadis. In these (ramifications) the soul experiences the state of dream and causes sounds to be apprehended Then in the subtle second sheath the soul experiences dreams, sees this world and the other world and knows all sounds (The soul) declares it to be the state of serene perception (In this state) the vital air protects the (gross) body. The branched nadis are filled with fluids of greenish yellow, blue, yellow and white colours Then in that in which the dahara is enclosed in the white lotus-like sheath which has bloomed like the red lotus, with its petals spread in different directions, are manifest nādīs called the Hitā, of the size of a thousandth section of the hair. In the ether of the heart situated in the interior of the sheath, the divine soul attains the state of sleep. When in the state of sleep (the soul) does not desire any desires, does not see any dreams. In it there are no gods or worlds of gods, no sacrifices or absence of sacrifices, neither mother nor father, nor kinsmen nor relations, neither a thief nor a killer of a Brāhmana. His form is one of radiance, of immortality. He is only water and remains submerged. Then by resorting to the same course he leaps into the waking state. He rules on all sides, said (Brahmā to the sage Subāla)

guard over the body

We have here a repetition of the description of luta which extends from the heart of the person towards the surrounding body Small as a hair divided a thousand times, these arteries are full of a thin fluid of various colours, white, black, yellow, red In these the person dwells When sleeping he sees no dreams He becomes then one with the life principle alone

When we wake up from the state of sleep we get back to the experience of dreams in the dream state and experiences of the world in the waking state See Ma U

THE INDIVIDUAL SELF'S FUNCTIONS AND THE SUPREME SPIRIT

1. sthānāni sthānibhyo yacchati nādī tesām nibandhanam, caksur adhyātmam, drastavyam adhibhūtam, ādityas tatrādhidavatam, nādī tesām nibandhanam, yas caksusi yo drastavye ya āditye yo nādyām yah prāne yo vijūāne ya ānande yo hrdy ākāśe ya etasmin sarvasminn antare samcarati so'yam ātmā, tam ātmānam upāsītājaram, amrtam, abhayam, asokam, anantam

I (The supreme self) bestows on the different local functionaries their (respective) spheres of action. The nādīs are the links establishing connection with them (the different organs). The eye is the sphere of the self, what is seen is the sphere of the objective, the sun is the divine principle (exercising its influence in aid of the self) The connecting link (between the self and the organ of the eye) is the (concerned) $n\bar{a}d\bar{i}$ He who moves in the eye, in what is seen, in the sun, in the $n\bar{a}d\bar{i}$, in the life principle, in the (resultant) knowledge, in the bliss (derived from such knowledge), in the ether of the heart, in the interior of all these is this self. One should meditate on this self which is devoid of old age, which is free from death, which is fearless, sorrowless, endless

- 2 śrotram adhyātmam, śrotavyam adhibhūtam, diśas tatrādhidavatam, nādī tesām nibandhanam, yah śrotre yah śrotavye yo diksu yo nādyām yah prāne yo vijūāne ya ānande yo hrdy ākāśe ya etasmin sarvasminn antare samcarati so'yam ātmā, tam ātmānam upāsītājaram, amrtam, abhayam, aśokam, anantam
- 2 The ear is the sphere of the self, what is heard is the sphere of the objective, the (guardians of the) quarters are the divine principles. The connecting link is the $n\bar{a}d\bar{i}$. He who moves in the ear, in what is heard, in the quarters, in the $n\bar{a}d\bar{i}s$, in the life-principle, in the knowledge, in the bliss, in the ether of the heart, in the interior of all those is this self. One should meditate on this self which is devoid of old age, which is free from death, which is fearless, sorrowless, endless
- 3 nāsādhyātmam, ghrātavyam adhībhūtam, prthivī tatrādhīdavatam, nādī tesām nībandhanam, yo nāsāyam yo ghrātavye yah prthīvyām yo nādyām yah prāne yo vijhāne yo ānande yo hrdy ākāse ya etasmin sarvasminn antare samcarati so'yam ātmā, tam ātmānam upāsītājaram, amrtam, abhayam, asokam, anantam
- 3 The nose is the sphere of the self what is smelt is the sphere of the objective Earth is the divine principle. The connecting link is the $n\bar{a}d\bar{i}$. He who moves in the nose, in what is smelt, in earth, in the $n\bar{a}d\bar{i}$, in the life-principle, in the knowledge, in the bliss, in the ether of the heart, in the interior of all these, in this self. One should meditate on this self which is devoid of old age, which is free from death, which is fearless, sorrowless, endless
- 4 Jihvädhyätmam, rasayıtavyam adlırbhütam, varunas tatrādhıdavvatam, nādī tesām nibandhanam, yo jihväyām, yo rasayitavye, yo varune, yo nādyām, yaḥ prāne yo vijñāne ya ānande yo hrdy ākāše ya etasmin sarvasmini antare samcarati so'yam ālmā, tam ātmānam upāsītājaram, amrtam, abhayam, asokam, anantam

- 4 The tongue is the sphere of the self, what is tasted is the sphere of the objective Varuna is the divine principle. The connecting link is the $n\bar{a}d\bar{\imath}$. He who moves in the tongue, in what is tasted, in Varuna, in the $n\bar{a}d\bar{\imath}$, in the life-principle, in the knowledge, in the bliss, in the ether of the heart, in the interior of all these is this self. One should meditate on this self which is devoid of old age, which is free from death, which is fearless, sorrowless, endless

15. This (self) is all-knowing This is the lord of all This is the ruler of all. This is the indwelling spirit This is the source of all This, that is resorted to by all forms of happiness, does not stand in need of happiness of any kind This, that is adored by all the Vedic texts and scriptures does not stand in need of Vedic texts and scriptures Whose food is all this but who (himself) does not become the food of any For that very reason (it is) the most excellent, the supreme director of all Consisting of food (it is) the self of (all) gross objects, consisting of life (it is) the self of (all) sense organs, consisting of mind (it is) the self of (all) mental determination, consisting of intelligence (it is) the self of time, consisting of bliss, (it is) the self of dissolution. When there is not oneness whence (can arise) duality? When there is not mortality, whence (can arise) immortality? (It is) not (endowed) with internal knowledge nor with external knowledge, nor with both these kinds of knowledge, not a mass of knowledge, not knowledge, nor not-knowledge, not (previously) known nor capable of being known. This is the doctrine relating to liberation. This is the doctrine of the Veda.

SELF AND THE BODY

I antah śarīre nihito guhāyām śuddhah so'yam ātmā sarvasya medo-māmsa-kledāvakīrne śarīramadhye'tyantopahate citra-bhitti-pratīkāśe gandharva-nagaropame kadalī-garbhavan nihsāre jala-budbudavac cancale nihsrtam ātmānam, acintyarūpam, divyam, devam, asangam, śuddham, tejaskāyam, arūpam, sarveśvaram, acintyam, aśarīram, hihitam guhāyām, amrtam, vibhrājamānam, ānandam, tam paśyanti vidvāmsas tena laye na paśyanti.

I This self abiding within the secret place in the body of all beings is pure. Though intimately connected with the interior of the body, which is full of stinking fluid oozing out of the fat and the flesh, resembling (for its durability) the wall painted in a picture (for its invulnerability) the city of the Gandharvas (a castle in the air), as substanceless as the pith of a plantain tree, as fickle as a bubble of water, the self is pure The learned perceive the self, of inconceivable form, radiant, divine, non-attached, pure, with a body of radiance, formless, lord of all, inconceivable, incorporeal, abiding in the secret place, immortal, shining (of the form of) bliss When it subsides they do not perceive.

The similes used here indicate the fragility of the human body. The inner self remains unaffected by the changes of the body

I Then Raikva asked thus Venerable Sir, in what do all things reach their extinction? To him he replied He (the self) who absorbs the eye alone, in his own self does the eye reach its extinction (or disappearance). He who absorbs (forms) that are seen, in his own self do the (forms) that are seen reach extinction. He who absorbs the sun, in his own self does the sun reach extinction. He who absorbs the Virāja, in him does Virāja reach extinction. He who absorbs hife, in him does life reach extinction. He who absorbs knowledge, in him does knowledge reach extinction. He who absorbs the turīya, in him does turīya reach extinction. (The individual self) merges in the immortal, fearless, sorrowless, endless, seedless Brahman. This he said.

absorbs responds to ādītya the sun Different deities exercise beneficent influence over different organs seedless the individual self has the basis or seed of individuality while the supreme Brahman has not this seed nijūāna knowledge It is repeated because the knowledge of tastes is different from the knowledge of smells and so on 15 He who knows this as seedless, he verily becomes seedless He is not born (again) He does not die He is not bewildered. He is not broken. He is not burnt. He is not cut asunder He does not tremble He is not angry (Knowers of Brahman) declare him to be the all-consuming self. The self is not attainable even by a hundred expositions (of the Vedas), not by the study of countless scriptures, not through the means of intellectual knowledge, not through brain power, not through the (study of the) Vedas, not through severe austernies, not through the Samkhya (knowledge), not through Yoga (discipline), nor through the (observance of the four) stages of life nor through any other means do people attain the self Only through a rigorous study and through discipline and devoted service to the knowers of Brahman, do they attain (the self) Having become tranquil, self-controlled, withdrawn from the world and indifferent to it and forbearing, he sees the Self in the self. He becomes the Self of all, he who knows this

'I do nothing of myself,' said Jesus Boehme says, 'Thou shalt do nothing but forsake thy own will, viz that which thou callest "I" or thyself by which means all thy evil properties will grow weak, faint and ready to die, and then thou wilt sink down again into that one thing, from which thou art originally sprung' Signatura Rerum.

I Then Raikva asked, 'Venerable Sir, in what are all (these worlds) become firmly established?' In the rasātala worlds, said he. In what are the rasātala worlds (established) as warp and woof? In the terrestrial $(bh\bar{u}r)$ world, said he. In what are the terrestrial worlds (established) as warp and woof? In the worlds of atmosphere (bhuvar), said he. In what are the worlds of atmosphere (established) as warp and woof? In the heavenly (suvar) worlds, said he In what are the heavenly worlds (established) as warp and woof? In the mahar worlds, said he In what are the mahar worlds (established) as warp and woof? In the janas worlds, said he In what are the janas worlds (established) as warp and woof? I. Then Raikva asked thus Venerable Sir, How and by what means does this self which is a mass of intelligence after leaving its seat and moving upwards have its exit? To him he replied. In the centre of the heart is a red mass of flesh In it is the white lotus called the dahara which has bloomed like a red lotus with its petals spread in different directions In the middle of it is an ocean In the middle of the ocean is a sheath. In it are four nadis called Rama, Arama, Icchā and Apunarbhavā Of these, Ramā leads (the practitioner of righteousness) through righteousness to the world of righteousness Aramā leads (the practitioner of unrighteousness) through unrighteousness to the world of the unrighteous Through Iccha one attains whatever object of desire one recalls. Through Apunarbhava one breaks through the sheath Having broken through the sheath one breaks through the shell of the crest (skull). Having broken through the skull, he breaks through the earth element Having broken through the earth element he breaks through water Having broken through water, he breaks through light Having broken through light, he breaks through air Having broken through air, he breaks through ether Having broken through ether, he breaks through mind Having broken through mind, he breaks through the subtle elements Having broken through the subtle elements, he breaks through the mahat tativa Having broken through the mahat tativa he breaks through the Unmanifested Having broken through the Unmanifested, he breaks through the Imperishable Having broken through the Imperishable, he breaks through Death Then Death becomes one with the Supreme In the Supreme there is neither existence nor non-existence nor existence and non-existence This is the doctrine leading to liberation This is the doctrine of the Veda

PURITY OF FOOD

I nārāyanād vā annam āgatam, pakvam brahmalokemahā-samvartake, punah pakvam ādriye, punah pakvam krairyādi, punah pakvam jālakilaklinnam paryusitam, pūtam annam ayācitam asamblidam arīsas.

asamklpiam aśniyān, na kam cana yāceta

I From Nārāyana came into being food (in a raw state) In the Mahā-samvartaka (the great dissolution) in the world of Brahmā it becomes ripe (cooked). It is again cooked in the world of the sun. It is again cooked in the sacrifices. Food with water oozing out of it or rendered stale (should not be eaten). Food which is clean (devoid of the defects mentioned) which is not acquired by begging or not got according to a previously arranged plan should one eat. He should not beg for food of any one whatsoever.

Punty of food makes for purity of disposition.

It is only avimukta It is kuruksetra which is for the gods, the resort of the gods, and for all creatures the abode of Brahmā There when the lives of living creatures go upwards, Rudra teaches the taraka mantra By it they become immortal and are liberated Therefore meditate on avimukta Do not give up avimukta, Yāiñavalkva

Yājñavalkya said (in reply), meditate on avimukta (for) the self which is infinite and unmanifested is established in avimikta (Atri then inquired) In what is avimukta established? (Yājñavalkya answered) It is established in the middle of Varana and Nasī. (Atn inquired) What is Varanā and what is Nāśī? (Yājñavalkya answered) As it overcomes all the faults done by the sense organs it is called Varana, as it destroys all the evils done by

4 Once Janaka (King) of Videha approached Yājñavalkya and said, 'Venerable Sir, teach me about renunciation.' Yājñavalka said After completing the life of a student, let one become a householder, after completing the life of a householder let one become a forest dweller, after completing the life of a forest dweller, let one renounce, otherwise (if a suitable occasion arises) let one renounce even from the state of a student or from the state of a householder or from that of a forest dweller Whether one has not completed the injunctions or completed the injunctions, whether he is a student or not, even if he has not completed the sacrificial rites, on whatever day he has the spirit of renunciation, that very day let him renounce (and become a recluse) Some, indeed, perform the brājāpatya sacrifice One need not do this but should only perform the fire sacrifice. Fire is life and one performs the life sacrifice thus (He makes the fire take the form of life, or merge into its original source, life) Then he should also perform the trandhataviya sacrifice. The three elements represent the three qualities saitva, rajas and tamas (which are to be burnt) He should inhale the fire (smoke) by uttering the following mantra (verse), 'O Fire, this life who is the source of your birth and from whom, having sprung forth you shone Knowing this you climb up to life and then make my wealth (spiritual wealth) increase He who is life is the source (material cause) of fire. O Fire, you assume the form of life, your source (As for one who has not performed the fire sacrifice having taken the fire from the village (i e any house in the village), he should inhale the fire as mentioned before If he is not able to get the fire, he should perform the sacrifice in the water For water represents all the gods So uttering this mantra 'I offer unto all the gods,' he should perform the sacrifice, he should take the sacrificial remnant with ghee, which cures all diseases He should utter the pranava (which leads to release), which represents (the substance of) the three Vedas) This is Brahman It should be meditated upon 'Even so is it, Revered Yājñavalkya,' said Janaka

5 Then Atrı enquired of Yajñavalkya On being asked how one who does not wear the sacred thread can be (treated as) a Brāhmana, Yājñavalkya answered, this alone is the sacred thread of him that purifies himself by the offering and sipping water This is the procedure for becoming a recluse (For one who is weary of the world but not yet fit to become a recluse the following are prescribed), he may choose a hero's death (by following the path of the warrior in the battlefield), he may fast unto death, throw himself into water or enter fire (burn himself to death) or perform the last journey (walk on unto death) Then the wandering ascetic who (puts on) orange robes, who is shaven, who has non-possession, purity, nonenmity, lives on alms, obtains the state of Brahman If he is diseased he can renounce by mind and speech. This is not to be done by one who is healthy Such a renouncer becomes the knower of Brahman, so said the venerable Yājñavalkya

upavita the sacred thread is a cotton thread of three strands running from the left shoulder across the body to the right hip

It is first placed on the youth by the teacher at the ceremony of initiation. It is the outward and visible symbol of the satratman, the thread-spirit on which all the individual existences are strung like beads and by which all are inseparably linked to their source

Among the ancient Iranians as among the Parsees to this day, at the age of 15, a boy or a gurl is admitted to the community of

āturah diseased When one is about to die he may renounce by mind or speech. It is unnecessary to go through the ceremonies This passage seems to justify suicide, in certain conditions.

PAINGALA UPANIŞAD

This Upanisad belongs to the Sukla Yajur Veda and is in the form of a dialogue between Yājūavalkya and his pupil Paingala Some of the important questions such as meditation on the Supreme, the nature of release, are discussed in it

1. atha ha paingalo yājñavalkyam upasametya dvādasavarṣaśuśrūsāpūrvakam paramarahasyam kaivalyam anubrūhīti papraccha

I Then Paingala approaching Yājñavalkya, after duly serving him for twelve years, asked, 'Do tell us about the great secret of aloneness.'

then after the required ethical preparation paingala: the son of Pingala.

BRAHMAN

2. sa hovāca yājñavalkyah sad eva saumyedam agra āsīt, tan nilya-muktam, avikrīyam, satyajñānānandam, parīpūrņam, sanātanam, ekam evādvitīyam brahma.

² Yājñavalkya replied to him: 'At the beginning, all this, my dear, was being alone. That is Brahman, the ever free, indeterminate, of the nature of truth, knowledge and bliss, ever full, ancient (or eternal) one without a second.

sad being, with the names and forms unmanifest.

3 tasmin maru-šuktikā-sthāņu-sphatikādau jala-raupya-purusa-rekhādīval lohita-šukla-kṛṣṇa-guna-mayī guṇa-sāmyānirvācyā mūlaprakrtir āsīt, tat pratibimbītam yat tat sākṣi-caitanyam āsīt.

3 Even as in the mirage, the pearl-oyster, a log of wood, a piece of crystal and the like there is (respectively) the manifestation of water, silver, the figure of a human being, streaks of light and the like, in that (pure being) is the root-principle of all objectivity, possessed of the qualities of red, white and black, with the qualities in equipoise and incapable of being adequately expressed. When this is reflected in Brahman, it becomes the witness self

The Pure Brahman becomes the witnessing consciousness, the eternal subject faced by the principle of all objectivity. The Pure Spirit develops into the subject-object relationship.

The similes employed suggest the apparent character of the reflection. The point stressed is that this development does not

tāni pānca-tanmātrāņi triguņāni bhavanti.

6. From the power of projection dwelling in Hiranya-garbha there comes into being the power of making gross bodies, known as the self-sense. What is reflected in it becomes the Virāţ consciousness That (Virāţ consciousness), conceiving the self-sense as its own, with its form manifested distinctly becomes the chief person Viṣṇu, the sustainer of all gross creation From that (Virāt) self ether originates; from ether air, from air fire, from fire water, from water earth; these five subtile elements become the three qualities (sattva, rajas and tamas).

See TU. II 1.3

In these passages the nature of the Supreme Reality is mentioned Brahman which transcends the distinction of subject and object. Others are conceived on the subject-object pattern. Witness self has confronting it mūla-prahrii, Iśvara, avyahta; Hiranya-garbha, mahai; Virāt, aharikāra. All these are necessary for one another. Witness Self and Iśvara are sometimes combined. See Mā. U.

CREATION

7. srastu-kāmo jagad-yonis tamo-gunam adhisthāya sūkşmatanmātrāni bhūtāni sthūlīkartum so kāmayata, srsteķ parimitāni bhūtāny ekam ekam dvidhā vidhāya punas caturdhā kṛtvā svasi etaradvitīyāmsaiķ pañcadhā samyojya paūcīkṛta-bhūtair ananta-koli-brahmāndāni-tat-tad-andocita-catur-dasa-bhuvanāni

7 He (the creator of the world) desirous of creating, embracing the quality of tamas (inertia) desired to change the subtile elements into gross ones. Dividing each of the elements measured at the time of creation into two and again subdividing each (first equal part) into four equal parts each and mixing each of the four subdivided equal parts with each of the four (second) equal parts of the other four elements and thus forming five heaps (of five sorts each); out of the elements thus quintuplicated he created many crores of brahmāndas (macrocosms), fourteen worlds appropriate to each (of these macrocosms) and globular gross bodies appropriate to each (of these worlds).

The process of quintuplication, pañcikarana, is mentioned here

10 Out of the totality of the rhythm he created the organs of the sense organs. He then cast them into the macrocosm Under his orders they stood pervading the entire macrocosm Under his orders the Virat possessed of self-sense protected the gross elements Under his orders Hiranya-garbha ruled over the subtile elements

ISVARA AND THE INDIVIDUAL SOUL

I atha paıngalo yājñavalkyam uvāca, sarvalokānām srstī-sthīty-anta-krd vibhur īšah katham jīvatvam agamad iti

I Then Paingala asked Yājñavalkya thus 'How does the Lord, the all-pervading, the cause of the creation, maintenance and dissolution of all the worlds, attain the state of the individual soul?'

THE GROSS BODY

- 2. sa hovāca yājñavalkyah, sthūla-sūksma-kārana-dehodbhavapūrvakam jīveśvara-svarūpam vivicya kathayāmīti sāvadhānenaikāgratayā śrūyatām īśah pañcīkṛta-mahā-bhūta-leśān ādāya vyasti-samasiyātmaka-sthūla-śarīrāni yathākramam akarot kapālacarmāntrāsthi-māmsa-nakhāni prthivy-amśāh, rakta-mūtra-lālāśvedādikam ab-amśāh, ksut-trsnosna-moha-maidhunādyā agnyamśāh, pracāranottārana-śvāsādikā vāyv-amśāh, kāma-krodhādayo vyomāmśāh etat samghātam, karmani sancitam, tvagādi-yuktam, bālyādy avasthābhimānāspadam, bahu-dosāśrayam, sthūla-śarīram bhavati
- 2 Yājñavalkya replied to him thus I shall relate the character of the individual soul and the Divine in distinction from each other preceded by an account of the origin of the gross, subtle and causal bodies Let it be listened to by you with attention and one-pointed mind The Lord, after getting together the minute parts of the quintuplicated great elements, created in order, gross bodies in their individual and collective aspects The skull, the skin, the intestines, the bones, the flesh and the nails are parts (of the character) of the earth Blood, unne, saliva, sweat and the like are of the character of water Hunger, thirst, (bodily) heat, swooning, sex impulse and the like are of the character of fire Movement, lifting, breathing and the like are of the character of air Lust, anger and the like are of the character of ether The combination of these becomes the gross body, organised by (under the influence of) previous karma, provided with the skin and the like, affording the basis for the notion that the stages of infancy and the like belong to it and forming the haunt of various ailments

dosa evil Evils of the gross body are ailments

THE SUBTLE BODY

3 athāpañcīkrta-mahā-bhūta-rajo'mśa-bhāga-traya-samasistah prānam asrjat, prānāpāna-vyānodāna-samānāh prānavṛttayah nāga-kūrma-krkara-devadatta-dhanamjayā-upaprānāh, hrdāsa-na-nābh-kantha-sarvāngānı sthānānı, ākāśādi-rajo-guna-turīya-bhāgena karmendriyām asrjat, vāk-pāni-pāda-pāyupasthās tad vrttayah, vacanādāna-gamana-visargānandās tad-visayāh

- 3 Then out of the three parts (of four) of the great elements in their mobile character and nonquintuplicated state he created the life principle. Prāna, apāna, vyāna, udāna and samāna are the (varied) functions of the life principle The minor functions of these are Nāga, Kūrma, Krhara, Devadatta and Dhanamjaya The heart, the anus, the navel, the throat and all the limbs form the seats (of the vital airs) Out of the (remaining) fourth part of the ether and other elements in their mobile character he created the organs of action Its variants are the vocal organ, the hands, the feet, the excretory and the generative organs Their functions are articulate expression, grasping, movement, excretion and (sex) enjoyment
- 4 evam bhūta-sattvāmśa-bhāga-traya-samastīto'ntah-karanam asrjat, antah-karana-mano-buddhī-cittāhamkārās tad-vrttayah, samkalpa-miścaya-smaranābhīmānanusamdhānās tad-vrsayāh; gala-vadana-nābhī-hrdaya-bhrū-madhyam sthānam, bhūta-sattva-turīya-bhāgena jūānendrīyam asrjat, śrotra-tvak-caksur-jīhvā-ghrānās tad-vrttayah, śabda-sparśa-rūpa-rasa-gandhās tad-vrsayāh, dīg-vātārka-praceto'śvi-valinīndropendra-mrtynikāh, candro-visnuś-caturvaktrah śambhūs ca kāranādhībāh
- 4 In the same manner out of the totality of the three parts of the great elements in their rhythmic character, he created the inner sense. Its various forms (or modifications) are the inner sense, the mind, understanding, thought and self-sense Determination, conviction, memory, love and dedication are its functions. The throat, the face, the navel, the heart and the middle of the eyebrows are the seats. Out of the fourth part of the great elements in their rhythmical character, he created the organs of perception. Its varied forms are the ears, the skin, the eyes, the tongue and the nose (Perceptions of) sound, touch, shape, taste, smell are its functions. Direction, Air, the Sun Varuna, the Aśvins, Fire, Indra, Upendra, Death, the Moon, Visnu, the fourfaced Brahmā and Siva are the deities presiding over the inner senses.

THE FIVE SHEATHS

- 5 athānnamaya prāna-maya-mano-maya-vijnāna-mayānandamayāh pancakośāh, annarasenaiva bhūtvānnarasenābhivrddhim prāpyānna-rasa-maya-prthivyām yad vilīyate so'nna-maya-kosah, tad eva sthula-sariram karmendriyaih saha pranadi-pancakam prāna-maya-kośah, jñanendriyaih saha mano mano-maya-kośah, rñanendriyaih saha buddhir vijñana-maya-kośah, etat kośa-trayam lınga-sariram, svarüba-ıñanam ananda-maya-kosas tat karanaśarīram
- 5 Then the five sheaths made of food, vital air, mind, understanding and bliss What is brought into being only by the essence of food, what grows only by the essence of food, that which finds rest in earth full of the essence of food, that is the sheath made of food That alone is the gross body The five vital airs, along with the organ of action constitute the sheath made of the vital principle Mind along with the organs of perception is the sheath made of mind. The understanding along with the organs of perception is the sheath made of intelligence These three sheaths (of life, mind and intelligence) form the subtle body The knowledge of one's own form is of the sheath made of bliss That is also the causal body

7 By the command of the Supreme Lord, after entering each individual gross body and abiding in the intellect, he (Virādātman) attained the Viśva state. The intellectual self reflecting consciousness is the Viśva that has pragmatic relations with and conceives of the waking state and the gross body as its own The field of action is the name of the Viśva state. At the command of the Supreme Lord, the subtle self, after entering each individual subtle body and abiding in the mind attained the Tayasa state The Tayasa state is what manifests itself in the world of appearances The product of dreams is the name of the Tarjasa state. By the command of the Supreme Lord, the self conditioned by maya and along with the (principle of) unmanifested, after entering each separate body attained the Prājna state The Prājna state is non-differentiated from and (in quest of) the highest truth. That which conceives of the sleeping state as its own is the name of the Prajna state The Vedic texts 'That thou art' and the like sing about the identity with the Supreme of the individual soul that is (in quest of) the highest end and shrouded by ignorance and traces of the (principle of) unmanifested, which is unrelated to the empirical and the apparent worlds. It is only the consciousness reflected in the inner sense that is capable of attaining the three states (of waking, dream and sleep) After attaining these states of waking, dream and sleep, becoming distracted like a potter's wheel, he becomes, though alive, dead as it were Then there are the states of waking, dreaming, sleeping, fainting and dying, five in number

This passage assumes the Advaita Vedānta view of the three grades of reality, pāramārthika, vyāvahārika and prātibhāsika, metaphysical or ultimate, empirical and illusory respectively

8. The state of waking consists in the knowledge acquired through the perception of sound and other objects by means of the organs of perception like the ear and others accompanied by the blessings of the respective deities (presiding over the different forms of perception) Therein the individual soul who has established himself in the middle of the eyebrows, after pervading (the entire body) from head to foot, becomes the doer of all actions like husbandry, study of the sacred books He becomes the enjoyer of their respective fruits On reaching another world he alone enjoys the fruit He then stands like an emperor overcome with fatigue, on account of his activities having taken the path leading to the entry into (another) body. When the sense organ has come to rest (ceased to function) the knowledge of the percepts and perceptions arising out of impressions (left by) of the waking state is the dream state Therein, owing to the cessation of active functioning such as we have in the waking state, Visva alone, after attaining the Taijasa state, moves through the middle of the nadis, manifesting through his own power the variety of the world in the form of impressions, and himself enjoys as he desires

THE STATE OF SLEEP

9 The sleeping state is that in which only thought (functions) Even as a bird tired of flying about turns towards its nest, restraining its wings, even so the individual soul tired of functioning in the worlds of waking and dream, entering on the state of ignorance, enjoys his own bliss

He retires from his outward and inward activities and enters into his own nature. The principle of ignorance, of objectivity is present in the state of sleep though it is not manifest.

See BG VII 19

10. akasmān mudgaradandādyais tāditavad bhayājñānābhyām indriya-sanghātaih kampann iva mrta-tulyā mūrchā bhavati

10. As if struck unawares by a hammer or a club, manifesting itself as tremor due to fright or loss of consciousness, caused by the fusing together of the several organs of perception is the state of fainting which resembles the state of a dead man

II. jāgrat-svapna-susupti-mūrchāvasthānām anyā brahmādistamba-paryantam sarva-jīva-bhaya-pradā sthūla-dehavisarjanī maranāvasthā bhavati. karmendriyāni jñānendriyāni tat-tad-visayān prānān samhrtya kāma-karmānvitā avidyā-bhūtavestito jīvo dehāntaram prāpya lokāntaram gacchati. prāk karma-phalapākenāvartāntara-kītavad visrāntim naiva gacchati satkarmaparipākato bahūnām janmanām ante nrnām moksecchā jāyate

II. What is different from the waking, dreaming, sleeping and fainting states, what instils fear into (the hearts of) all living creatures from Brahmā (the creator) to a tuit of grass, what causes the giving up of the gross body, that is the state of dying After drawing together the organs of action and the organs of perception, their respective functions and the vital airs, the soul attended with desire and conduct (in the form of impressions left by conduct) and wrapped up in elements of ignorance goes to another world after attaining another body. Through the ripening of the fruits of his past actions he does not attain any rest, like a worm caught within a whirlpool The desire for liberation arises in human beings at the end of many births through the ripening of their past virtuous conduct

BONDAGE AND RELEASE

12 Then, after resorting to a good teacher and serving him for a long time he questions him as to the nature of bondage and release Bondage produced by the lack of investigation becomes release by (proper) investigation. Therefore one should always inquire. It is possible to determine the nature of the self through the way of super-imposition (of qualities that do not belong to it) and denial. Therefore one should always inquire into the nature of the world, the individual and the supreme self. With the denial of the (ultimate) reality of the soul and the world, the innermost self non-differentiated from Brahman alone remains.

The way of superposition and denial is developed by S in his Introduction to S B

CHAPTER III

MEDITATION AND HIGHEST ENLIGHTENMENT

- athahaınampaingalahpapracchayājñavalkyam,mahā-vākyavivaranam anubrūhīti
- r Then Pamgala asked Yājñavalkya, please relate to me a detailed account of the great texts
- 2 sa hovāca yājñavalkyas tat tvam ası, tvam tad asi, tvam brahmāspadam brahmāsmīty anusandhānam kuryāt, tatra parokşya-sabalah sarvajñatvādı-laksano māyopādhıh sac-cıd-ānanda-laksano jagad-yonis tad-pada-vācyo bhavati; sa evāntah-karanasambhinnabodho'smāt pratyayāvalambanas tvam-pada-vācyo bhavati, parajivopädhimäyävidye vihäya tat-ivam-pada-laksvam pratyagābhinnam brahma; tattvamasīty aham brahmāsmīti vākyārtha-vicārah śravanam bhavati, ekāntena śravanārthānusandhānam mananam bhavair, śravana-manana-nirvicikitse'rthe vastuny ekatānavattayā cetah sthāpanam mididhyāsanam bhavati; dhyatrdhyane vihaya nivatasthila dipavad dhyeyaikagocaram cıttam samadlır bhavatı, tadanım atma-gocaravrttayalı samuttlıta arñata bhavanti, tah smaranad anumiyante, ihanadisamsare samcıtâh karma-kofayo'nenawa vılayam yantı, tato'bhvasabatavat sahasrasah sadā amṛtadhārā varsatī, tato yoga-viltamāh samādhim dharma-megham prāhuh, vāsanā-jāle nihšesam amunā pravilāpite karma-samcaye punya-pāpe samūlonmūlite prāk paroksam api kara-talāmalakavad vākyam apratībaddhāparoksa-sāksāt-kāram prasilyate, tadā jīvan-mukto bhavati.
- 2 Yājāavalkya replied to him One should engage in meditation of the kind 'That thou art,' 'Thou art the seat of Brahman' 'I am Brahman' Therein the imperceptible personal Lord with the qualities of omniscience and others, endowed with the power of māyā, of the character of being, consciousness and bliss, the source of the world is (what is connoted by) the word 'that' (of the text). That alone, being influenced by the inner sense, supported by the conception of self (I-conception) is (what is connoted by) the word 'thou' (of the text) Giving up the power of māyā and ignorance which envelop (the two), the supreme and the individual soul, what is meant by the terms 'that' and 'thou' becomes Brahman which is non-distinct from the self The investigation into the import of the texts 'That thou art,' I am Brahman is hearing Exclusive attention to the meaning of what is heard is reflection.

fixing of thought with one-pointed attention solely on the object attained through hearing and reflection is meditation The thought absorbed only in the object meditated upon, giving up the distinction of the meditator and the act of meditation resembling a lamp in a windless spot attains the highest enlightenment. In that state, when the functionings directed towards the cognition of the self are roused (the intuitions of the self), are not cognised but only inferred from memory Through this the numberless previous karmas accumulated during this beginningless cycle of births and deaths attain their dissolution Thence, through the power of practice, a stream of nectar showers always from a thousand directions Therefore the adepts in yoga call this highest enlightenment 'the cloud of virtue' When the nets of dispositions (good and bad) are dissolved without any residue, when the accumulated deeds, virtuous and vicious, are completely destroyed, to the very roots, the past and the future alike, owing to the removal of all impediments bring about the direct and immediate perception (of Brahman) as of the amalaka fruit, on the palm of the hand Then (the knower of Brahman) becomes one liberated while in life

śabalah muxed The Absolute is viewed as the personal lord with māyā or the power of manifestation Though sac-cid-ānanda, he is the source of the world, jagad-yoni

3 Isvara developed the desire to disquintuplicate the quintuplicated elements. After causing the macrocosms, the worlds comprised in them and other effects to recede into their (antecedent) causal form, after making into one the subtle body, the organs of actions, the life principles, the organs of perception and the fourfold inner sense, and after merging all elements in the fivefold causal elements, he causes earth to dissolve in water, water in fire, fire in air, air in ether, ether in the self-sense, the self-sense in the great, the great in the unmanifested and the unmanifested in the self in due order. The Virāt, the Hiranya-garbha and the Supreme Lord, owing to the dissolutions of their respective adjuncts, lapse into the Supreme Self The gross body composed of the quintuplicated great elements, organised through the accumulated (past) karma, owing to the destruction of karma and the ripening of the fruits of good karma, becoming one with the subtle body. attaining the form of the causal body, causes the causal body to merge in the unchanging inner self. The three states of Visva. Taijasa, Prājūa, on account of the dissolution of their adjuncts merge in the inner self. The microcosm being burnt (and purified) by the fire of knowledge becomes merged along with its causes in the Supreme Self Therefore let the Brahmana, after becoming possessed of self-control engage in meditation incessantly on the identity of That and Thou Thereafter, even as the sun shines with all his splendour on the dissipation of the clouds, the self manifests himself. After meditating on the self seated in the middle (of the heart) like a lamp placed inside a vessel, of the size of a thumb and of the form of smokeless flame (the self manifests himself)

The order of involution is the reverse of the order of evolution. The subordination of the world, world-soul and the Supreme Lord to the Ultimate Reality is suggested here. The logical priority of Brakn an to these three is to be understood.

4 prakāsayantam ar tahstham dhyāyet kūtastham avyayam dhyāyan nāste munis cawa cāsupter āmṛtes tu vah

- 4. One should meditate on the unchanging, imperishable that is inside, manifesting (the diverse functions). The sage who is continuously engaged in meditation till he goes to sleep or is overtaken by death.
 - jīvanmuktas sa vijneyah sa dhanyah kṛta-kriyavān jīvanmuktapadam iyaktvā svadehe kālasātkrie visatya deha-muktatvam pavano'spandatām īva.
- 5 He should be known as one liberated while alive (in this body). He is blessed and is of fulfilled duties. After giving up the state of being liberated while alive, when the time arrives for his quitting the body, he enters on the state of disembodied liberation even as the air attains the state of non-movement.
 - aśabdam, aśparśam, arūpam, avyayam, tathā rasam mtyam, agandhavac ca yat anādy anantam, mahatah param, dhruvam, tad eva śisyaty

6 (He attains the state) that is devoid of sound, devoid of touch, devoid of forms, devoid of wasting, likewise devoid of taste, that is eternal, and devoid of smell, having neither beginning nor end, that transcends the Great, constant, that alone remains, which is flawless and free from ailing.

It is the supreme state which is negatively described, it is oneness with the transcendent Brahman.

I. Then the sage Panigala asked Yājñavalkya. What is the (nature of) action of a knower? What is his condition? Yājñavalkya replied unto him The seeker after liberation endowed with humility and other good qualities carries (safely) across (the ocean of worldly existence) twenty-one generations of his class. The moment he becomes a knower of Brahman he carries across one hundred and one generations of his class. Know the self as the lord of the chariot and the body as verily, the chariot Know the intellect as the charioteer and the mind as, verily, the reins

See Katha I. 111, 2 ff.

2 The senses, they say, are the horses and the objects (of the senses) the paths (they range over). The hearts of the knowers (of Brahman) are so many air chariots

- 3 (The self) associated with the body, the senses and the mind, the great sages declare, is the enjoyer. Therefore, Nārāyana is actually established (as the self) in the hearts (of all beings) The seeker after God, after becoming one with God, becomes the self of all beings
 - 4 prārabdha-karma-paryaniam ahinirmokavad vyavaharati candravac carate dehī sa muktas cāniketanah.
- 4 As long as his previously commenced karma remains unspent, he functions (very much) like the snake with the slough on. He who has attained liberation, though possessed of the body, wanders about homeless like the moon (on the sky).

His body does not fall off until the karmas which have started waking out reach their culmination

5. Casting off his body either in a place of pilgrimage or in the house of an eater of dog's flesh (the knower) attains aloneness After scattering the vital airs he attains aloneness After (the knower has run the appointed course of life and dies) his body should be cast away as an offering to the cardinal points, or else it may be buried. Only in the case of a male who is eligible for the order of monkhood is (burial) prescribed, never for others.

7 Even as there is no cooking of food that has already been cooked, there is no cremation of the body (of a knower) which has already been burnt (in the fire of austerity) For one whose body has already been consumed by the fire of knowledge, there is no need for the performance of śrāddha ceremonies or any other obsequies.

- o With a purified mind, with a purified consciousness, full of forbearance, and in the attitude 'I am he' full of forbearance, and when he gains the attitude 'I am he,' when the supreme self, the basis of all knowledge gets firmly fixed in the heart, when the body attains the state of quiescence then does the mind scintillating with the intellect become void of its functionings. What is the use of milk to one satiated with nectar? Even so what is the use of the study of the Vedas for one who has perceived the Self? For the Yogin who is satisfied with the nectar of knowledge (of Brahman) there is nothing whatsoever that has vet to be achieved If there is anything (still to be achieved), he is not a knower of the truth Remaining aloof, yet not aloof. remaining in the body, yet not of the body, the innermost self. becomes the all-pervading (Brahman) After purifying the heart, thinking of Brahman the perfect (free from ailment), the Yogin should perceive that he is the all, the transcendent. the blissful
 - 10 yaihā jale jalam ksiptam, ksīre ksīram, ghrie ghriam, avišcio bhavci tadvaj jīvātma paramātmanoh
- 10 As water poured into water, milk poured into milk, ghee into ghee becomes one without differentiation, even so the individual soul and the Supreme Self (become one).

- II dehe jñanena dipite buddhir akhandākāra-rūpā yadā bhavati, tadā vidvān brahma-jñānāgina sarva-bandham nirdahet, tataļi pavitram paramesvarākhyam, advaita-rūpam, vimalām-barābham yathodake toyam anupravistam tathātma-rūpo nirupādhi-samsthitah
- II When the body is lit (with the flame of) knowledge, when the understanding becomes indivisible in form, then the knower should burn all the bonds with the fire of the knowledge of Brahman. Then he who has attained the form of the self, firmly established in the state without limitations should enter on the state hallowed, that is known as the supreme lord, that is of non-dual form, that resembles ether devoid of impurities, like water that has flown into water

The state of liberation is described not as that of a fish in water but as that of a dewdrop in the sea Complete identity is maintained

- 14 The knower who knows the self to be indissoluble, like the ether of the pot, reaches independence with the range of his knowledge (spreading) on all sides

As the ether in the pot gets dissolved in the all-pervading ether when the limitations are broken, even so the liberated individual is lost in the universal self

18 ananta-karma saucam ca japo yajñas tathawa ca tirtha-yātrābhīgamanam yāvat tatīvam na vindati

18 (It is only) so long as the seeker does not attain knowledge of the real that endless ceremonies, observances of purity, prayers, likewise performance of sacrifices, visits to places of pilgrimage (are prescribed by the scriptures)

All these are not ends in themselves. They are means to the realisation of the eternal

19. For the great souled, the surest way to liberation is the conviction that I am Brahman The two terms, what leads to bondage and what leads to liberation, are the sense of mineness and the absence of the sense of mineness

Selfishness or looking upon the body and the world as one's own, as means to one's enjoyment causes bondage. The realisation that the body and the world are external to the true self and the consequent universality of spirit lead to liberation.

- 20. With the sense of mineness the soul is bound, with the absence of the sense of mineness it is liberated. When the mind uses to the state of illumination, the sense of duality is never attained.
 - 21. yadā yaiy unmanībhāvas tadā tat paramam padam yaira yaira mano yāti tatra tatra param padam

He becomes disciplined in the performance of all the vows prescribed in the Vedas. By him are attained the fruits resulting from a hundred thousand recitals of the Ithasas, the Puranas and the Rudras. By him has been repeated the syllable pranava (aum) myriads of times. He sanctifies ten previous and ten future generations He sanctifies the rows of people with whom he dines. He becomes a great-souled one He becomes freed from the sins of killing a Brahmana, drinking liquor, stealing gold, sharing the bed with the teacher's wife and associating with those who have committed these sins.

VAJRASUCIKA UPANISAD

The Upanisad belongs to the Sāma Veda and describes the true character of a Brāhmaṇa and incidentally offers comments on the nature of the Supreme Reality. The Upanisad is valuable in that it undermines caste distinctions based on birth.

r I shall describe the Vajrasūci doctrine which blasts ignorance, condemns those who are devoid of the knowledge (of Brahman) and exalts those endowed with the eye of knowledge

- 2 brāhmana-ksatrīya-vaisya-sūdrā īti catvāro varnāh; teṣām varnānām brāhmana eva pradhāna itī veda-vacanānurūpam smrtībhir apy uktam tatra codyam astī, ko vā brāhmano nāma? kīm jīvah? kīm dehah? kīm jātīh? kīm jñānam? kim karma? kīm dhārmīka ītī
- 2. The Brāhmana the Kṣatriya, the Vaisya and the Sūdra are the four classes (castes). That the Brāhmana is the chief among these classes is in accord with the Vedic texts and is affirmed by the Smrtis In this connection there is a point worthy of investigation Who is, verily, the Brāhmana? Is he the individual soul? Is he the body? Is he the class based on birth? Is he the knowledge? Is he the deeds (previous, present or prospective)? Is he the performer of the rites?
- 3 taira prathamo jīvo brāhmana iti cet tan na, atītānāgatāneka-dehānām jīvasyaikarūpatvāt ekasyāpi karma-vasād anekadeha-sambhavāt sarva-sarīrānām jīvasyaikarūpatvāc ca, tasmān na jīvo brāhmana iti
- 3 Of these, if the first (position) that the Jīva or the individual soul is Brāhmana (is to be assumed), it is not so; for the individual's form is one and the same in the large number of previous and prospective bodies. Even though the jīva (the individual soul) is one, there is scope for (the assumption of) many bodies due to the stress of (past) karma, and in all these bodies the form of the jīva is one and the same. Therefore the jīva is not the Brāhmana
- 4 larlı deho brahmana ili cet tan na acandaladi paryantanam manusyanam panca-bhautikatvena dehasyalkarüpatvat; jara-mara-na-dharmadharmadi-samyadarsanat, brahmanas sveta-varnah, kşalrıyo rakla-varnalı, vaisyah pita-varnalı, südrah krsna-varna ili miyamabhavat pitradı-dahane putradinam brahma-hatyadı-doşa-sambhavac ca, lasman na deho brahmana ili
 - 4 Then if (it is said) that the body is the Brāhmana, it is not so, because of the oneness of the nature of the body which is composed of the five elements, in all classes of human beings down to the candālās (outcastes), etc., on account of the perception of the common features of old age and death, virtue and vice, on account of the absence of any regularity (in the complexion of the four classes) that the Brāhmana is of the white complexion, that the Ksatriya is of the red complexion, that the Vaisya is of the tawny complexion, that the Sūdra is of the dark complexion and because of the hability of the sons and others (kinsmen) to becoming tainted with the murder of a Brāhmaṇa and other (sins) on cremating the bodies of their fathers and other kinsmen. Therefore the body is not the Brāhmana

5 Then (if it is said) that birth (makes) the Brāhmans, it is not so, for there are many species among creatures, other than human, many sages are of diverse origin. We hear from the sacred books that Rsyaśringa was born of a deer, Kauśika of Kuśa grass, Jāmbuka from a jackal, Vālmīki from an ant-hill, Vyāsa from a fisher girl, Gautama from the back of a hare, Vasistha from Ūrvašī (the celestial nymph), Agastya from an earthen jar. Among these, despite their birth, there are many sages, who have taken the highest rank, having given proof of their wisdom. Therefore birth does not (make) a Brāhmaṇa.

6. tarhı jäänam brāhmana iti cet tan na; ksatriyādayo'hi paramārthadarsano'bhijāā bahavas santi, tasmān na jäänam brāhmana iti

6. Then (if it is said) that knowledge (makes a) Brāhmana, it is not so because among Kṣatriyas and others there are many who have seen the Highest Reality and attained wisdom. Therefore knowledge does not (make) a Brāhmana.

 tarhi karma brāhmana iti cet tan na, sarvešām prāninām prārabdha-sañcitāgāmi-karma-sādharmya-daršanāt. karmābhipreritāh santo janāh krīyāh kurvantīti, tasmān na karma brāhmana iti

- 7. Then (if it is said) that work (makes a) Brāhmana, it is not so, for we see that the work commenced in the present embodiment or accumulated during the previous or to commence on a future embodiment is common to all living creatures and that good men perform works impelled by their past karma Therefore work does not (make) a Brāhmaṇa
 - 8 tarhı dhārmiko brāhmana iti cet tan na, ksatriyādayo hiranya-dātāro bahavas santi; tasmān na dhārmiko brāhmana iti
- 8 Then (if it is said) that the performer of religious duties is a Brāhmana, it is not so, for there have been many Ksatriyas and others who have given away gold. Therefore the performer of religious rites is not the Brāhmaṇa.

- 9 tarhı ko vā brāhmano nāma? yah kaścıd ātmānam, advıtīyam, jālı-guna-kriyā-hīnam, sadūrmı-şadbhāvetyādi-sarva-dosa-rahıtam, salya-jñānānandānanta-svarūpam, svayam, nirvikalpam, aśesa-kalpādhāram, aśesa-bhūtāntaryāmitvena vartamānam, antar-ba-hiśc-ākāśavad anusyūtam, akhandānanda-svabhāvam, aprameyam, anubhavaikavedyam, aparoksatayābhāsamānam, karatalāmala-kavat sāksāt aparoksīkriya krtārthatayā kāma-rāgādi-doṣa-rahitaḥ śamādi-guna sampanno bhāva-mātsarya-tṛsnāśā-mohādi-rahitaḥ dambhāhamkārādibhir asamsprstacetā vartate, evam ukta-laksanu yah sa eva brāhmana iti śruti-smṛti-purānetihāsānām abhiprāyah; anyathābrāhmanatva-siddhir nāsty eva sac-cid-ānandamātmānam, advitīyam, brahma bhāvayet, ātmanam, advitīyam, brahma bhāvayet ity upanisad
- 9 Then, who, verily is the Brāhmana? He who, after directly perceiving, like the amalaka fruit in the palm of one's hand, the Self, without a second, devoid of distinctions of birth, attribute and action, devoid of all faults such as the six infirmities, and the six states, of the form of truth, wisdom, bliss and eternity, that is by itself, devoid of determinations, the basis of endless determinations, who functions as the indwelling spirit of all beings, who pervades the interior and the exterior of all like ether, of the nature of bliss, indivisible, immeasurable, realisable only through one's experience and who manifests himself directly (as one's self), and through the fulfilment of his nature, becomes rid of the faults of desire, attachment, etc., and endowed with qualities of tranquility, etc., rid of the states of being, spite, greed, expectation, bewilderment, etc., with his mind unaffected by ostentation, self-sense and the like, he lives. He alone who is possessed of these qualities is the Brāhmana. This is the view of the Vedic texts and tradition, ancient lore and history. The accomplishment of the state of the Brāhmana is otherwise impossible. Meditate on Brahman, the Self who is being, consciousness and bliss, without a second, meditate on Brahman, the Self who is being, consciousness and bliss without a second. This is the Upanişad.

FOREWORD

By RABINDRANATH TAGORE to The Philosophy of the Upanisads

Nor being a scholar or a student of philosophy, I do not feel justified in writing a critical appreciation of a book dealing with the philosophy of the Upanisads What I venture to do is to express my satisfaction at the fact that my friend, Professor Radhakrishnan, has undertaken to explain the spirit of the

Upanisads to English readers

It is not enough that one should know the meaning of the words and the grammar of the Sanskrit texts in order to realize the deeper significance of the utterances that have come to us across centuries of vast changes, both of the inner as well as the external conditions of life. Once the language in which these were written was living, and therefore the words contained in them had their full context in the life of the people of that period, who spoke them. Divested of that vital atmosphere, a large part of the language of these great texts offers to us merely its philological structure and not life's subtle gesture which can express through suggestion all that is ineffable.

Suggestion can neither have fixed rules of grammar nor the rigid definition of the lexicon so easily available to the scholar Suggestion has its unanalysable code which finds its depth of explanation in the living hearts of the people who use it Code words philologically treated appear childish, and one must know that all those experiences which are not realized through the path of reason, but immediately through an inner vision, must use some kind of code word for their expression. All poetry is full of such words, and therefore poems of one language can never be properly translated into other languages, nay, not even re-spoken in the same language.

All these words have their synonyms in our Bengali language But if through their help I try to understand these lines or express the idea contained in them, the result would be contemptible Should I suffer from a sense of race superiority in our own people, and have a low opinion of English literature, I could do nothing better to support my case than literally to translate or to paraphrase in our own tongue all the best poems

Unfortunately, the Upanisads have met with such treatment in some parts of the West, and the result is typified disastrously in a book like Gough's Philosophy of the Upanisads My experience of philosophical writings being extremely meagre, I may be wrong when I say that this is the only philosophical discussion about the Upanisads in English, but, at any rate, the lack of sympathy and respect displayed in it for some of the most sacred words that have ever issued from the human mind, is amazing

Though many of the symbolical expressions used in the Upanisads can hardly be understood to-day, or are sure to be wrongly interpreted, yet the messages contained in these, like some eternal source of light, still illumine and vitalize the religious mind of India. They are not associated with any particular religion, but they have the breadth of a universal soil that can supply with living sap all religions which have any spiritual ideal hidden at their core, or apparent in their fruit and foliage. Religions, which have their different standpoints,

This has been possible because the Upansads are based not upon theological reasoning, but on experience of spiritual life. And life is not dogmatic, in it opposing forces are reconciled—ideas of non-dualism and dualism, the infinite and the finite, do not exclude each other. Moreover the Upanisads do not represent the spiritual experience of any one great individual, but of a great age of enlightenment which has a complex and collective manifestation, like that of the starry world. Different creeds may find their sustenance from them, but can never set sectarian boundaries round them, generations of men in our country, no mere students of philosophy, but seekers of life's fulfillment, may make living use of the texts, but can never exhaust them of their freshness of meaning

For such men the Upamsad-ideas are not wholly abstract, like those belonging to the region of pure logic. They are concrete, like all truths realized through life. The idea of Brahma when judged from the view-point of intellect is an abstraction, but it is concretely real for those who have the direct vision to see it. Therefore the consciousness of the reality of Brahma has boldly been described to be as real as the consciousness of an amlaka fruit held in one's palm. And the Upanisad says—yato vāco nivartante aprāpya manasā saha ānandam bi ahmano vidvān na bibheti kadācana.

From Him come back baffled both words and mind But he who

Cannot the same thing be said about light itself to men who may by some mischance live all through their life in an underground world cut off from the sun's rays? They must know that words can never describe to them what light is, and mind, through its reasoning faculty, can never even understand how one must have a direct vision to realize it intimately and be glad and free from fear

We often hear the complaint that the Brahma of the Upanisads is described to us mostly as a bundle of negations. Are we not driven to take the same course ourselves when a blind man asks for a description of light? Have we not to say in such a case that light has neither sound, nor taste, nor form, nor weight, nor resistance, nor can it be known through any process of analysis? Of course it can be seen, but what is the use of saying this to one who has no eyes? He may take that statement on trust without understanding in the least what it means, or may altogether disbelieve it, even suspecting in us some abnormality.

Does the truth of the fact that a blind man has missed the perfect development of what should be normal about his eyesight depend for its proof upon the fact that a larger number of men are not blind? The very first creature which suddenly groped into the possession of its eyesight had the right to assert that light was a reality. In the human world there may be very few who have their spiritual eyes open, but, in spite of the numerical preponderance of those who cannot see, their want of vision must not be cited as an evidence of the negation of light

In the Upanisads we find the note of certainty about the spiritual meaning of existence. In the very paradoxical nature of the assertion that we can never know Brahma, but can realize Him, there lies the strength of conviction that comes from personal experience. They aver that through our lov we know the reality that is infinite, for the test by which reality is apprehended is joy Therefore in the Upanisads satvam and anandam are one. Does not this idea harmonize with our

The self of mine that limits my truth within myself confines me to a narrow idea of my own personality When through some great experience I transcend this boundary I find joy. The negative fact of the vanishing of the fences of self has nothing in itself that is delightful But my joy proves that the disappearance of self brings me into touch with a great positive truth whose nature is infinitude. My love makes me understand that I gain a great truth when I realize myself in others, and therefore I am glad. This has been thus expressed in the Iśopanisad —

> yas tu sarvāņi bhūtāni ālmany evānupašyati sarvabhūtesu cāimānam taio na vijugupsale.

He who sees all creatures in himself, and himself in all creatures, no longer remains concealed.

His Truth is revealed in him when it comprehends Truth in others And we know that in such a case we are ready for the utmost self-sacrifice through abundance of love

It has been said by some that the element of personality has altogether been ignored in the Brahma of the Upanisads, and thus our own personality, according to them, finds no response in the Infinite Truth But then, what is the meaning 'Vedahametam puruşam mahantam' I of the exclamation have known him who is the Supreme Person Did not the sage who pronounced it at the same time proclaim that we are all amriasya putrāh, the sons of the Immortal?

Elsewhere it has been declared tam vedyam purusam veda yathā ma vo mṛtyuh parıvyathāh. Know him, the Person who only is to be known, so that death may not grieve thee The meaning is obvious. We are afraid of death, because we are afraid of the absolute cessation of our personality Therefore, if we realize the Person as the ultimate reality which we know in everything that we know, we find our own personality in

eşa devo vısvakarmā mahātmā sadā janānām hṛdaye sannıvıstaḥ hṛdā manīsā manasābhiklpto ya etad vidur amṛtās te bhavantı

This is the God who is the world-worker, the supreme soul, who always dwells in the heart of all men, those who know him through their mind, and the heart that is full of the certainty of knowledge, become immortal

To realize with the heart and mind the divine being who dwells within us is to be assured of everlasting life. It is mahālma, the great reality of the inner being, which is wisvaharmā, the world-worker, whose manifestation is in the outer work occupying all time and space.

Our own personality also consists of an inner truth which expresses itself in outer movements. When we realize, not merely through our intellect, but through our heart strong with the strength of its wisdom, that Mahātmā, the Infinite Person, dwells in the Person which is in me, we cross over the region of death. Death only concerns our limited self, when the Person in us is realized in the Supreme Person, then the limits of our self lose for us their finality

The question necessarily arises, what is the significance of this self of ours? Is it nothing but an absolute bondage for us?

If in our language the sentences were merely for expressing grammatical rules, then the using of such a language would be a slavery to fruitless pedantry But, because language has for its ultimate object the expression of ideas, our mind gains its freedom through it, and the bondage of grammar itself is a help towards this freedom

If this world were ruled only by some law of forces, then it would certainly have hurt our mind at every step and there would be nothing that could give us joy for its own sake But the Upanisad says that from anandam, from an inner spirit of Bliss, have come out all things, and by it they are maintained Therefore, in spite of contradictions, we have our joy in life, we have experiences that carry their final value for us

It has been said that the Infinite Reality finds its revelation in ananda-rūpam amrtam, in the deathless form of joy The supreme end of our personality also is to express itself in its creations But works done through the compulsion of necessity, or some passion that blinds us and drags us on with its impetus, are fetters for our soul, they do not express the wealth of the infinite in us, but merely our want or our weakness

Our soul has its anandam, its consciousness of the infinite, which is blissful. This seeks its expression in limits which, when they assume the harmony of forms and the balance of movements, constantly indicate the limitless. Such expression is freedom, freedom from the barrier of obscurity. Such a medium of limits we have in our self which is our medium of expression. It is for us to develop this into ananda-rūpam amriam, an embodiment of deathless joy, and only then the infinite in us can no longer remain obscured.

This self of ours can also be moulded to give expression to the personality of a business man, or a fighting man, or a working man, but in these it does not reveal our supreme reality, and therefore we remain shut up in a prison of our own construction. Self finds its ānanda-rūpam, which is its freedom in revelation, when it reveals a truth that transcends self, like a lamp revealing light which goes far beyond its material limits, proclaiming its kinship with the sun When our self is illuminated with the light of love, then the negative aspect of its separateness with others loses its finality, and then our relationship with others is no longer that of competition and conflict, but of sympathy and co-operation

I feel strongly that this, for us, is the teaching of the Upanisads, and that this teaching is very much needed in the present age for those who boast of the freedom enjoyed by their nations, using that freedom for building up a dark world of spiritual blindness, where the passions of greed and hatred are allowed to roam unchecked, having for their allies deceifful diplomacy and a widespread propaganda of falsehood, where the soul remains caged and the self battens upon the decaying

flesh of its victims

APPENDIX B

AN INTRODUCTION

By Edmond Holmes

to The Philosophy of the Upanisads

PROFESSOR RADHAKRISHNAN'S work on Irdian Philosophy. the first volume of which has recently appeared, meets a want which has long been felt. The Western mind finds a difficulty in placing itself at what I may call the dominant standpoint of Indian thought, a difficulty which is the outcome of centunes of divergent tradition, and which therefore opposes a formidable obstacle to whatever attempt may be made by Western scholarship and criticism to interpret the speculative philosophy of India If we of the West are to enter with some measure of sympathy and understanding into the ideas which dominate, and have long dominated, the Indian mind, India herself must expound them to us Our interpreter must be an Indian critic who combines the acuteness and originality of the thinker with the learning and caution of the scholar, and who has also made such a study of Western thought and Western letters as will enable him to meet his readers on common ground If, in addition to these qualifications, he can speak to us in a Western language, he will be the ideal exponent of that mysterious philosophy which is known to most of us more by hearsay than by actual acquaintance, and which, so far as we have any knowledge of it, alternately fascinates and repels us

All these requirements are answered by Professor Radha-krishnan A clear and deep thinker, an acute critic and an erudite scholar, he is admirably qualified for the task which he has set himself of expounding to a 'lay' audience the main movements of Indian thought His knowledge of Western thought and letters makes it easy for him to get into touch with a Western audience, and for the latter purpose he has the further qualification, which he shares with other cultured Hindus, of being a master of the English language and an accomplished writer of English prose

But the first volume of Indian Philosophy contains over 700 closely printed pages, and costs a guinea, and it is not every one, even of those who are interested in Indian thought, who can afford to devote so much time to serious study, while the price, though relatively most reasonable, is beyond the means of many readers That being so, it is good to know that Professor Radhakrishnan and his publisher have decided to bring out the section on The Philosophy of the Upanisads as a separate volume and at a modest price

For what is quintessential in Indian philosophy is its spiritual idealism; and the quintessence of its spiritual idealism is in the Upanisads. The thinkers of India in all ages have turned to the Upanisads as to the fountain-head of India's speculative thought 'They are the foundations,' says Professor Radhakrishnan, 'on which most of the later philosophies and religions of India rest . . Later systems of philosophy display an almost pathetic anxiety to accommodate their doctrines to the views of the Upanisads, even if they cannot father them all on them. Every revival of idealism in India has traced its ancestry to the teaching of the Upanisads' 'There is no important form of Hindu thought,' says an English exponent of Indian philosophy, 'heterodox Buddhism included, which is not rooted in the Upanisads '1 It is to the Upanisads, then, that the Western student must turn for illumination, who wishes to form a true idea of the general trend of Indian thought, but has neither time nor inclination to make a close study of its various systems. And if he is to find the clue to the teaching of the Upanişads he cannot do better than study it under the guidance of Professor Radhakrıshnan

It is true that treatises on that philosophy have been written by Western scholars. But the Western mind, as has been already suggested, is as a rule debarred by the prejudices in which it has been cradled from entering with sympathetic insight into ideas which belong to another world and another age Not only does it tend to survey those ideas, and the problems in which they centre, from standpoints which are distinctively Western, but it sometimes goes so far as to assume that the Western is the only standpoint which is compatible with mental samity. Can we wonder, then, that when it criticizes the speculative thought of Ancient India, its adverse judgment is apt to resolve itself into fundamental misunderstanding, and even its sympathy is sometimes misplaced?

In Gough's Philosophy of the Upanisads we have a contemptuously hostile criticism of the ideas which dominate that philosophy, based on obstinate misunderstanding of the Indian point of view-misunderstanding so complete that our author makes nonsense of what he criticizes before he has begun to study it. In Deussen's work on the same subject-a work of close thought and profound learning which deservedly commands respect—we have a singular combination of enthustastic appreciation with complete misunderstanding on at least one vital point. Speaking of the central conception of the Upanisads, that of the ideal identity of God and the soul. Gough says, 'this empty intellectual conception, void of spirituality, is the highest form that the Indian mind is capable of' Comment on this jugement saugrenu is needless. Speaking of the same conception, Deussen says, 'it will be found to possess a significance reaching far beyond the Upanisads, their time and country; nay, we claim for it an inestimable value for the whole race of mankind . . . one thing we may assert with confidence—whatever new and unwonted paths the philosophy of the future may strike out, this principle will remain permanently unshaken, and from it no deviation can take place.' This is high praise. But when our author goes on to argue that the universe is pure illusion, and claims that this is the fundamental view of the Upanisads, he shows, as Professor Radhakrishnan has fully demonstrated, that he has not grasped the true inwardness of the conception which he honours so highly.

With these examples of the aberration of Western criticism before us, we shall perhaps think it desirable to turn for instruction and guidance to the exposition of the Upanisads which Professor Radhakrishnan, an Indian thinker, scholar and critic, has given us. If we do so, we shall not be disappointed As the inheritor of a great philosophical tradition, into which he was born rather than indoctrinated, Professor Radhakrishnan has an advantage over the Western student of Indian philosophy, which no weight of learning and no degree of metaphysical acumen can counterbalance, and of which he has made full use His study of the Upanisads—if a Western reader may presume to say so—is worthy of its theme.

The Upanisads are the highest and purest expression of the speculative thought of India. They embody the meditations on great matters of a succession of seers who lived between 1000 and 300 B c. In them, says Professor J. S. Mackenzie, 'we have the earliest attempt at a constructive theory of the cosmos, and certainly one of the most interesting and remarkable,"

What do the Upanisads teach us? Its authors did not all think alike, but, taking their meditations as a whole, we may say that they are dominated by one paramount conception. that of the ideal oneness of the soul of man with the soul of the universe. The Sanskrit word for the soul of man is Atman, for the soul of the universe Brahman 'God's dwelling place,' SALS Professor Radhakrishnan in his exposition of the philosophy of the Upameads, 'is the heart of man. The inner immortal self and the great cosmic power are one and the same. Brahman is the Atman, and the Atman is the Brahman The one supreme power through which all things have been brought into being is one with the inmost self in each man's heart." What is real in each of us is his self or soul What is real in the universe is its self or soul, in virtue of which its All is One. and the name for which in our language is God. And the individual soul is one, potentially and ideally, with the divine or universal soul. In the words of one of the Upanisads 'He who is the Brahman in man and who is that in the sun, these are one'

The significance of this conception is more than metaphysical. There is a practical side to it which its exponents are apt to ignore. The unity of the all-pervading life, in and through its own essential spirituality—the unity of the trunty of God and Nature and Man—is, from man's point of view, an ideal to be realized rather than an accomplished fact. If this is so, if oneness with the real, the universal, the divine self, is the ideal end of man's being, it stands to reason that self-realization, the finding of the real self, is the highest task which man can set himself. In the Upanisads themselves the ethical implications of their central conception were not fully worked out. To do so, to elaborate the general ideal of self-realization into a comprehensive scheme of life, was the work of the great teacher whom we call Buddha.

This statement may seem to savour of paradox. In the West the idea is still prevalent that Buddha broke away completely from the spiritual idealism of the Upanişads, that he denied God, denied the soul, and held out to his followers the prospect of annihilation as the final reward of a righteous life. This singular misconception, which is not entirely confined to the West, is due to Buddha's agnostic silence having been mistaken for comprehensive demial. It is time that this mistake was corrected It is only by affiliating the ethics of Buddhism to the metaphysics of the Upanisads that we can pass behind the silence of Buddha and get into touch with the philosophical ideas which ruled his mind, ideas which were not the less real or effective because he deliberately held them in reserve This has long been my own conviction, and now I am confirmed in it by finding that it is shared by Professor Radhakrishnan, who sets forth the relation of Buddhism to the philosophy of the Upanisads in the following words 'The only metaphysics that can justify Buddha's ethical discipline is the metaphysics Buddhism helped to democratize underlying the Upanisads the philosophy of the Upanisads, which was till then confined to a select few. The process demanded that the deep philosophical truths which cannot be made clear to the masses of men should for practical purposes be ignored. It was Buddha's mission to accept the idealism of the Upanisads at its best and make it available for the daily needs of mankind Historical Buddhism means the spread of the Upanişad doctrines among the people It thus helped to create a heritage which is living to the present day.'

Given that oneness with his own real self, which is also the soul of Nature and the spirit of God, union with the ultimate is the ideal end of man's being, the question arises How is that end to be achieved? In India, the land of psychological experiments, many ways to it were tried and are still being tried. There was the way of jñāna, or intense mental concentration. There was the way of bhakti, or passionate love and devotion There was the way of Yoga, or severe and systematic self-discipline. These ways and the like of these might be available for exceptionally gifted persons. They were not available, as Buddha saw clearly, for the rank and file of mankind. It was for the rank and file of mankind, it was for the plain average man, that Buddha devised his scheme of conduct. He saw that in one's everyday life, among one's fellow men, there were ample opportunities for the higher desires to assert themselves as higher, and for the lower desires to be placed under due control. There were ample opportunities, in other words, for the path of self-mastery and self-transcendence, the path of emancipation from the false self and of affirmation of the true self, to be followed from day to day, from year to year, and even-for Buddha, like the seers of the Upanisads, took the reality of re-birth for grantedfrom life to life. He who walked in that path had set his face towards the goal of his own perfection, and, in doing so, had, unknown to himself, accepted the philosophy of the Upanisads

If this interpretation of the life-work of Buddha is correct. if it was his mission to make the dominant idea of the Upanisads available for the daily needs of ordinary men, it is impossible to assign limits to the influence which that philosophy has had and is capable of having in human affairs in general and in the moral life of man in particular The metaphysics of the Upanisads, when translated into the ethics of selfrealization, provided and still provides for a spiritual need which has been felt in divers ages and which was never more urgent than it is to-day. For it is to-day, when supernatural religion is losing its hold on us, that the secret desire of the heart for the support and guidance which the religion of nature can alone afford, is making itself felt as it has never been felt before And if the religion of nature is permanently to satisfy our deeper needs, it must take the form of devotion to the natural end of man's being, the end which the seers of the Upanisads discerned and set before us, the end of oneness with that divine or universal self which is at once the soul of all things and the true being of each individual man. In other words, it is as the gospel of spiritual evolution that the religion of nature must make its appeal to our semi-pagan world. It was the gospel of spiritual evolution which Buddha, true to the spirit of the Upanisads, preached 2,500 years ago, and it is for a re-presentation of the same gospel, in the spirit of the same philosophy, that the world is waiting now

It was the gospel of spiritual evolution which Christ preached in a later age, to a different audience and through the medium of other forms of thought Such at least is my earnest conviction. Of the two pivotal sayings, 'I and my Father are one,' and 'Be ye perfect even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect,' the former falls into line with the spiritual idealism of the Upanisads, the latter into line with the ethical idealism of Buddha The notation, as might be expected, is different, but the idea and the ideal are the same.
